A Paris telegram, dated Thursday, states:—M. Poincaré is continuing to receive an enthusiastic welcome on his tour through Alsace-Lorraine. To-day he visited Haguenau, Woerth, and Wissenburg, and placed wreaths on the monuments erected on the battlefields of 1870. He afterwards awarded the Cross of the Legion of Honour to the City of Bitche, and, in an address, dwelt upon the manner in which this brave city had retained firmly and unshakably its determination to belong only to France. Proceeding to Metz, M. Poincaré was the object of a warm demonstration.

Bon Ton CORSETS

are the highest grade of the
ROYAL WORCESTER MAKE,
and range in price from 25/9 to 5 Gns.

The Leading French Couturiers use Bon Ton Corsets as models because they know that a perfect foundation is as necessary to them as the fabrics of which their beautiful gowns are made, so they now co-operate with the Royal Worcester Corset Company in producing the fashionable silhouette for each season. This partly explains why smart Parisiennes, well dressed Americans and English ladies who follow fashion prefer Bon Tons to having corsets specially made.

No unsightly angles mar the beauty of a gown worn over them because when carefully selected they fit like body gloves. The athletic movements in tennis or golf are as well provided for as are the graceful motions of dancing.

Why not be corseted by the world's leading corsetier, Monsieur Lacoute? No small concern could afford to pay the salary of such a designer who has in the Royal Worcester Corset Company the most up to date plant in the world to carry out his graduating principle for the perfect corseting of practically every type of figure.

SPORTING NEWS.

LEOPARDSTOWN RACES.

A CURTAIN-RAISER TO THE HORSE SHOW.

An August in Dublin without a Horse Show is like a summer without a swallow or the play without Hamlet—there is a something lacking for which even the most brilliant sunshine, the most fragrant flowers, and the most soothing sea breezes fail to make atonement. Of all the inflictions that Dublin has suffered since the fateful August of 1914 the loss of the Horse Show was certainly not the least keenly regretted by the majority of the citizens or by the thousands of visitors, many of them from countries far away, who in former years have been attracted to the city by the great carnival. And now, at last, peace has come again, and the Horse Show is being revived in all its old-time glory. That the war has wrought many changes goes without saying, but the horse—the splendid central figure of this great revival—is not one whit disturbed in popular favour and esteem. Men and nations—and even Empires—may misbehave themselves, but the horse—as the immortal Dean of St. Patrick's demonstrated in one of his most striking satires—is above all that sort of thing. Nor have motor cars or aeroplanes or any other ingenious devices of the human brain succeeded in depriving the horse of the place he has ever held in the hearts of men.

A CURTAIN-RAISER.

For many years the August race meeting at Leopardstown has been regarded as a sort of informal inauguration of the social side of the Horse Show, and, though the meeting was continued during the years of the war, it was shorn of its most brilliant attractions by the absence of the great Irish festival to which it served as a curtain-raiser. From noon on Saturday all the roads and rails that led to Foxrock were densely thronged by pleasure-seekers. There was an ample supply of all kinds of conveyances—from the luxurious Rolls-Royce to the ever-popular hackney car—while the train arrangements at Harcourt street Station were adequate to meet public requirements. Both in the city and at the approaches to the course there were not lacking evidences of that "profiteering" which has latterly extended itself into almost every branch of trading. Vendors of racecards were demanding, and in many cases receiving, two shillings each for cards upon which the price of one shilling was plainly marked, and for which they would not have dreamt of demanding more than the printed price of sixpence before the war. However, there were but few articulate complaints from the good-humoured crowd regarding this sign of the times, with which, doubtless, they have become almost too familiar for comment.

A CHARMING SCENE.

A series of scenes are revealed to the spectator which might well delight the eye of an artist. Leopardstown racecourse is situated amid the most beautiful natural surroundings of any course in Ireland, if not in the Three Kingdoms. All around the course is a belt of foliage in its August splendour, ripening into the rich hues of autumn; beyond and above the trees the Dublin Mountains rise in rugged grandeur, the shadow of the clouds passing over their slopes and the rays of the sun playing ever and again among the heather. Around about are many and varied groups. From the members' enclosure have come society dames and their pretty daughters in all the glory of the latest fashions; old Irish gentlemen, with their soldier sons, and others, unhappily, without them. Then there are many officers and soldiers bearing upon them the scars of war; trainers, hard-faced, healthy, and keen of eye; jockeys, diminutive and sharp-faced, with overcoats covering their gaudy colours; jovial, sporting farmers; professional and business men who are finding relaxation from the cares of everyday life, and all sorts and conditions of men. And all these varied groups are assembled with one common purpose—inspecting the horses, talking about the horses, whispering about the horses, thinking about the horses.

THE RACING.

Taken all round, the racing was much better than had been expected, and it was certainly an advance on that seen at some recent meetings—that is, since the drought began to make itself felt and the ground became so hard. Runners were forthcoming in what must be considered satisfactory numbers, even if fields were below the average for Leopardstown, and, with several of the events furnishing exhilarating finishes, the proceedings were of a thoroughly enjoyable character, while backers, for the most part, would have come out winners on the day.

In the absence of Pastures New, Galley Law left off in most demand for the Pavilion Plate, with which a beginning was made, but he ran none too generously, and failed to get into the first three. Little Doon, who made most of the running, was done with half-way up the straight, and Wild Pam, on the outside, overhauling the Burnchurch filly close home, scored cleverly, if not easily, and thus avenged his defeat at Baldoyle, where he was meeting her on much worse terms than on Saturday. As the betting presaged, the Tower Selling Plate proved a good thing for Outrun, whose success was assured when he had shaken off Salaam a furlong out, and when put up for sale he was knocked down to Mr. R. Sullivan for 110 sovs.

The principal item on the day's card—the Londonderry Plate—was contested by a party of half a dozen juveniles, all of whom passed muster well with the paddock critics, notably Lycurgus and Money Glass, both very fine stamps of the thoroughbred. The first-named, though still backward, was fancied by the stable connections, and as little as 2 to 1 was taken about him, but actual favouritism rested with the débutante, Anna B., a shapely daughter of Drinmore and the once speedy Garryhoe, hailing from Conyngham Lodge. In the race, however, she was the victim of ill-luck, and in a bumping finish was relegated into third place by Lycurgus and Money Glass, the first-named of this pair winning by a head. Anna B., on the inside, striking off very quickly, was in the van for nearly four furlongs, when Money Glass and Lycurgus closed with her opposite the members' lawn, and, being cannoned into, she was nearly sent over the rails, and Quirke, her jockey, had his right leg slightly injured. This contretemps, of course, destroyed the filly's prospects, and it came as no surprise when a couple of protests were promulgated, the rider of Money Glass objecting to Lycurgus for bumping, and the owner of Anna B. to both the first and second for boring and bumping. The Stewards lost no time about investigating the matter, and the result of their deliberations was the disqualification of Lycurgus and the awarding of the race to Money Glass, but Mr. Mallick's objection was over-ruled.

They were a very moderate lot in the Dundrum Plate, which, none the less, was associated with a rousing set-to between Cheerio and Barto, who ran home locked together, and the judge was unable to separate them. A division of the stake was arranged; and then the good field of twelve turned out for the Bray Nursery, for which the unnamed colt by Shogun out of Mind the Step and Miss Brian Boru were entrusted with weight of coin, it being a near thing as regards first favouritism between the pair. Mind the Step colt was beaten a furlong from home, and in another grand finish Miss Brian Boru prevailed over Cork Glass, who only failed by a short head to bring off a double event for Lady McCalmont, whose horses are now under the charge of Colonel F. F. MacCabe, and he has certainly done well with them in the short time they have been with him. The end of a nice day's racing came with the success of the well-backed Gleneffy in the Provincial Plate, in which he was in receipt of 19lb. and 35lb. respectively from Roi Allie and Jenny Jones, who hunted him home.

SELECTIONS FOR TO-DAY.

The Grand Prize.

Big as was the attendance on Saturday, it can safely be anticipated it will be still larger to-day, when the Grand Prize constitutes the chief attraction. This valuable race may not bring out a strong field, numerically, at all events, but the runners include some speedy youngsters, and there is material at hand for a fine contest. It had not been definitely decided on Saturday whether Money Glass would be pulled out for to-day's race, and he may be held in reserve for the Phoenix Plate at Phoenix Park on Saturday, and I shall go for who, however, will have her work cut out to beat Galway Gate.

Other selections are as follow:—

Shankill Plate—All Serene.
Paddock Plate—Coolum.
Stillorgan Plate—The Regiment.
Kingstown Plate—Brown Queen or Emerald Glen.
Carrickmines Plate—L'Africain or Clifton Clinker.

SMITH'S GLASGOW MIXTURE

Dear Sirs,
I might say that I have been a regular smoker of your Glasgow Mixture for the last twelve years, and I might also say that I cannot find any tobacco to suit me like it. In my opinion if Golf Players would smoke your famous Glasgow Mixture they would find it very soothing to the Nerves, as I am sure I do when having to play strenuous Golf matches such as the Open Championship, etc. Yours truly, E. RAY.

MOUNTJOY

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

Both H. H. Beasley and T. Burns had two winning rides at Leopardstown on Saturday.

E. Piggott has been engaged to ride Mr. R. Gore's horses during the forthcoming cross-country season in England.

Money Glass is a doubtful starter for the Grand Prize to-day, but will fulfil his engagement in the Phoenix Plate at the Phoenix Park meeting on Saturday.

Amongst the runners for the Grand Prize at Leopardstown to-day will be Galway Gate (E. M. Quirke), Cahir Lass (S. Donoghue), Miss Orby (T. Burns), Euchre (W. Beasley), and Glenstella (H. H. Beasley).

Dame d'Atout, a filly by Macdonald II. out of Anastasie, was sold at Deauville to Mme. Edrardo for £1,800, and the Duc Decazes gave £2,400 for Erastina, by Le Sagittaire, out of St. Edana. Many brood mares made good prices, several running into four figures.

In the race for the Londonderry Plate at Leopardstown, Anna B. suffered some interference, and was nearly sent over the rails, and in a close finish Lycurgus beat Money Glass, who, however, got the race on an objection for bumping. An objection by the owner of Anna B. to the first and second was over-ruled.

SALE OF MR. R. CROKER'S HORSES.

The sale of Mr. Croker's horses will take place this evening at Glencairn after racing concludes at Leopardstown.

POLO.

NOVICES' TOURNAMENT—FINAL.

The final of the Novices' Tournament in the Phoenix Park on Saturday attracted a big crowd, there being a large and fashionable attendance in the enclosure, whilst the numbers of the general public which lined the rails reached big proportions. The final of the Novices' Tournament proved a one-sided and in other respects disappointing game. The teams were:—

"C" Team—Mr. T. Roark, Capt. B. Daly, Hon. K. Mackay, and Mr. A. Balding.

"A" Team—Major Scott, Mr. J. Daly, Prince Khursu Jung, and Capt. Goulding.

Umpire—Major Hurndall.

Fast play characterised the opening stages of the initial chukkar, but eventually the "A" team assumed the attack, and in fairly rapid succession goals were hit through by Capt. Goulding, Mr. J. Daly, and Prince Khursu Jung. Shortly after the commencement of the second period Mr. J. Daly added the fourth, and with Prince Jung and Major Scott playing up strongly, another score for a time seemed imminent. Captain Daly and Mr. Roark then got away, and Mr. Balding, with some strong drives, kept the ball close to his opponents' goal. This, however, was but for a brief spell, and the attack was soon again monopolised by the "A" team, Major Scott just failing to increase the score before the bell rang. In the next chukkar Hon. K. Mackay and Capt. Daly put in some clever work, which culminated in Capt. Daly scoring the first for his side. "A" team, however, were having the better of the play, and the fifth goal was hit through from a melee. The succeeding play was keenly contested, and in a determined attack Mr. Balding added the second and final score for the "C" team. Capt. Goulding cleared a dangerous shot from Mr. Roark, and at the other end Mr. Balding effected a timely clearance from an effort by Prince Jung. "C" team's goal was subjected to some strong attacks, and both Major Scott and Capt. Goulding were unlucky not to have scored. Fast and keen hitting characterised the concluding stages of the chukkar, but in the final period "A" team worsted their opponents in a pronounced degree, and three further goals were put through by Mr. J. Daly, Major Scott, and Prince Jung. Result:—

"A" Team ..... 8 goals.
"C" Team ..... 2 goals.

A.I.P.C. v. CANARIES.

This friendly game, which preceded the decision of the tournament, was a much more interesting affair. The teams were:—

A.I.P.C.—Mr. J. A. B. Trench, Prince Khursu Jung, Capt. Miley, and Mr. T. P. Tyrrell.

Canaries—Capt. J. Darack, Capt. M. King-French, Major H. C. Hegan, Commander R. W. McGrath.

Umpire—Mr. T. Roark.

Mr. Trench broke away from the throw in of the ball, but the play settled down close to the All-Ireland goal, which ultimately succumbed to a shot from Capt. King-French. Mr. Tyrrell and Prince Jung missed in an effort to bring play to the opposite end, and in a quick return Major Hegan just sent wide. In the next chukkar Capt. Miley cleared a dangerous attack, which was again taken up by Canaries, who scored through Major Hegan. A couple of good openings were lost by All-Ireland from close range, and in the next chukkar Commander McGrath effected several fine clearances. Mr. Darack got away in a fast run, but the ball was sent wide, and at the other end Mr. Trench's effort was baulked by Commander McGrath. Capt. King French registered the third goal for Canaries after some spirited play, following which Prince Jung broke through, but missed from long range. All-Ireland played on strongly, Capt. Miley and Prince Jung being at several times pulled up by Commander McGrath. Continuing to press, All-Ireland scored a well deserved goal by the aid of Capt. Miley. The same player led another strong attack, after which both goals were visited in some keen and fast spells of attack. Result:—

Canaries ..... 3 goals.
A.I.P.C. ..... 1 goal.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—A new depression approaching from the Atlantic will cause southerly winds and some rain in the western districts. Over the remainder of the country weather will be mainly fair under the influence of a belt of high pressure covering these islands.

Ireland.—Light southerly winds, freshening later; dull; rain at times; moderate temperature.

The Irish Times.

MONDAY, AUGUST 25, 1919.

Archduke Joseph's adventure in Hungary has come to an ignominious end. The Supreme Council in Paris has refused to recognise him or his Government, and it is announced that in consequence the Archduke and the Fredrich Cabinet have resigned.

In the course of his visit to Quebec on Saturday the Prince of Wales visited the heights of Abraham, and laid wreaths on the Montcalm and Wolfe Monuments. He also visited the great bridge over the St. Lawrence, and unveiled commemorative tablets there. In the evening he attended a dinner given in his honour at the Garrison Club.

General Gough has issued a proclamation to the citizens of Petrograd informing them of the great victory at Kronstadt, and stating that the Allies' and the new North-West Government's intention is to save the people from Bolshevik tyranny. The way is now believed to be open to Petrograd.

In a speech which he delivered at Widnes on Saturday Mr. Henderson, the Labour candidate, entered into a detailed explanation of the circumstances under which he went to Russia during the war and why he refused the post of Ambassador to Russia and resigned his membership of the Cabinet rather than sacrifice his principles. Mr. Fisher, the Unionist candidate, has challenged Mr. Henderson to a public debate on these and other questions, leaving the audience free to judge between them.

The Rev. Chancellor Hemphill, D.D., dedicated a war memorial in St. Barnabas' Parish Church, Dublin, yesterday to twelve members of the parish who fell in the war.

The strike of farm labourers in Co. Kildare, which has lasted two months, and in which two thousand men were involved, has been settled. The terms of the agreement entered into are given elsewhere.

Claims for compensation amounting to £30,463 have been served on the Meath County Council in connection with the Navan train outrage.

The Cure for Strikes.

In both Great Britain and Ireland there is a welcome pause in industrial strife. The Yorkshire strike has been settled, and the miners generally are beginning to recognise the need of more work and less agitation. The danger of labour troubles on the English railways has been removed by the engineers' acceptance of the new standard rates of pay. The Railway Clerks' Association, too, seems to be on the point of coming to terms with the Railway Executive. In Ireland, apart from the perennial disturbances of politics, the week opens cheerfully. To-day is the eve of our great Horse Show, revived after five dreary and dreadful years of war. The capital, looking its best, is preparing to reap a rich harvest. The spirit of friendship is abroad, and the weather prospects are excellent. Perhaps, these circumstances have helped to banish the spectre of industrial discord. At any rate, it is an agreeable fact that the last two days have witnessed almost simultaneous settlements of half-a-dozen labour disputes which had brought loss and discomfort to the whole community. The strike of agricultural labour in Kildare was settled by a conference in Naas on Saturday. It is hoped and believed that the similar strike in County Meath will be settled to-day. The strike of Dublin printers, which has lasted for nine weeks, has been brought to an end. There is every probability that harmony will be restored in the music trade during the present week. Saturday brought a settlement of the grave-diggers' dispute at Glasnevin—in one sense, perhaps, the least important, but in another the most distressing, of all the strikes which have afflicted Dublin in recent weeks. For the moment our industrial Temple of Janus is closed, and all sober citizens will be thankful for that mercy.

We must not be content, however, merely to rest and be thankful. The voice of reason gets a poor hearing amid the din of battle. Men listen to it more readily in the calmer moments when they are counting the cost and calculating the gains (if any) of the finished fray. Now is the time for Irish Capital and Irish Labour to consider the history of the recent epidemic of strikes, to draw their conclusions from it, and to apply to the industrial situation such of those conclusions as may seem to be sound and practicable. We think that all men—workers and employers alike—will find themselves in agreement on one point. Labour's right to strike and Capital's right to "lock out" are postulates of industrial economy; but it will be agreed that these are expensive and wasteful methods of adjusting difficulties. Almost invariably they involve three things—material loss to both sides, discomfort and loss to the country as a whole, and the creation of much bad blood between employers and employed. Almost invariably, too, the results for the victorious party—if either party is victorious—are wholly incommensurate with the cost of the campaign. The agricultural disputes were serious for the whole country, and might have been tragic if common-sense had not prevailed in time for the saving of the harvest. Two counties were thrown into turmoil; acts of violence were committed; the diversion of cattle was very injurious to the Port of Dublin. Surely these misfortunes could have been avoided and ought to have been avoided. Let us assume—of course, a ridiculous assumption—that in every case masters and men are equally satisfied with the agreements which have ended the recent strikes. The question still remains whether these results could not have been won by swifter, less costly, and more amicable means. Are we still in that early Chinese stage of economic development which burnt down the house in order to obtain roast pig?

The Government has devised much machinery for the adjustment of trade disputes. The Ministry of Labour's conciliation department in Dublin is active and intelligent. The existence of a general association of employers in Ireland (at least its establishment was advertised some months ago) and of an Irish Farmers' Union, and the recent development of one great union of Irish Labour, ought to have averted many industrial disputes, or to have simplified their settlement. The sad fact, however, is that the country has been scourged with such disputes throughout the present year. We may infer, perhaps, that the benefits of all this machinery are hampered by human defects on both sides—defects of management or of temperament or of education. Discipline and co-operation have been lacking in the ranks of Capital as well as in those of Labour. Both have failed to realise their true community of interest. We suggest that now, in a pause of battle and on the eve of a new era in industry, Capital and Labour in Ireland should make a sincere effort to understand one another better and to substitute a state of peace for an almost chronic state of war. Irish agriculture is entering on a period of assured prosperity—if it can get rid of constant and prolonged strikes. Irish industry has great opportunities if Labour's intemperate demands do not drive traffic from our harbours or cry "halt" to impending schemes of reconstruction; and if Capital recognises Labour's right not merely to the necessaries, but to all the decencies and to some of the luxuries of life. If both sides will be loyal to their organisations, if those organisations will recognise that their vital interests are identical and that, in nine cases out of ten, a strike is a confession of bad temper or of incompetency, we may hope to be able not only to shut the Temple of Janus, but to lock the door and throw away the key. The first step to such peace must be the arrangement between the real leaders of our Capital and Labour of some really authoritative tribunal for the settlement of disputes. It ought to be initiated without delay.

The Allies and Hungary.

Another chapter has been opened in Hungary's troubled history. Since the armistice was signed the country has had four Governments. A few weeks ago a stop-gap Socialist Administration was overthrown by a coup d'état which placed the Rumanian Archduke Joseph at the head of the State. Now, in consequence of the firm attitude adopted by the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference, the Archduke has resigned. In no sense of the term was his Government representative of the people. It depended for its authority upon the power of a foreign Army, and never could have negotiated a durable peace. Nobody wanted it, and there can be very little doubt that, if it had been allowed to continue, the people would have been driven into Bolshevism once more. The Archduke's trump card was an offer to submit his position to a popular vote. He played it; but the Allies remained adamant. They pointed out that an election which was conducted under the auspices of the Archduke's Administration would be absolutely useless as an expression of popular will, and that under no circumstances could they allow a member of the Hapsburg family to remain in power. The Allies' firm attitude was dictated mainly by the disclosures made by Mr. Hoover in his report on the state of Hungary. He condemned in the strongest terms both the conduct of the Rumanian troops and the policy of the Archduke's Government. Mr. Hoover urged that Allied agents should be posted at the frontiers to prevent the transport of provisions, and it is understood that the Allied Generals have been instructed to take steps in that direction. That is an act of bare justice. There can be no doubt that Rumania must be restrained from plundering. He suggests that the Government of the country shall be handed over to the Social Democrats. Opinions will differ as to the wisdom of such a step. Everything depends upon the strength of the party. No party should be encouraged that is not merely willing, but able, to regularise its position by an election free from terrorism or coercion of any kind. If the Allies had not acted firmly and promptly in accordance with Mr. Hoover's advice, the consequence might have been disastrous. Rumanian plundering and an Administration which did not possess the confidence of the people were admirably calculated to fan the embers of Bolshevism into flame. We were confronted with the probability of another situation of the kind that we find so baffling in Russia. The position is still very delicate, and will require careful handling. The Russian see-saw continues. Between Denikin's successes and Koltchak's reverses the balance seems to be fairly easy. The fall of Kronstadt and the British Navy's victory, however, weigh heavily in the anti-Bolshevist forces' favour. The plan of a grand attack on Petrograd is being carefully prepared, and the manifesto issued by General Gough should have a powerful effect in inducing the population of the city to throw in their lot with the new democratic Government in the North-West.

"Profiteering."

The Board of Trade announced last night the plans which it has made for putting the "Profiteering" Act into force in England and Wales. Two separate and distinct lines of action are proposed. There will be central committees to investigate the cost of producing and distributing articles "in common use," and local committees to inquire into complaints made by consumers. A person against whom a local Committee have decided to institute proceedings will have the right of appeal to a Superior tribunal. All the committees will be instructed not to take action which may hamper or restrict "legitimate commercial enterprise throughout the country." The local committees will be appointed by the local authorities, and their expenses will be chargeable to the rates. The Board is in consultation with the Irish Government as to the best method of applying the Act to this country. Obviously the English plan is not suited to our needs. It would be absurd, for instance, to ask every urban council to form a committee. If that were done, the committees would consist mainly of shopkeepers, and there would be endless friction. It should prove more feasible to divide the country into a number of large areas, and to invite local authorities and representative bodies of consumers and traders to nominate members of the committees. Four appeal tribunals should be sufficient, and, as in the case of food control, the central authority might operate from Dublin. The great defect in the Act is that it does not give a precise definition of "profiteering." Unless the Act is to become a farce some means of securing uniformity in the decisions of committees must be devised.

Advance Luggage.

Although it comes rather late in the season, holiday-makers will note with satisfaction that the English railway companies are considering proposals to revive the system of booking luggage in advance. There are many facilities which the tourist had to forego as a result of war conditions, but few have been regretted more than this one. It is stated that the new fee will be double the pre-war rate—namely, two shillings for anything up to a cwt. of personal luggage; and that certain charges will be added where considerable cartage is involved at either end. In view of the increased cost of labour and the general rise in prices very few people are likely to object to pay more for such a service. Most travellers will consider the revival of "advance luggage" cheap at any price. The scheme, it is said, provides for the imposition of severe restrictions to ensure that the luggage carried in advance is bona fide personal luggage. Every precaution will be taken to ensure that tickets are actually issued in respect of the "P.L.A." packages, and the tickets will be endorsed to show that luggage has been sent off in advance in order to prevent abuse in respect of excessive weight. It is to be hoped that the Irish railway companies will take steps to bring a similar scheme into operation at an early date.

THE STATE OF COUNTY CLARE.

HOW THE PROCLAMATION OPERATES.

Our special representative in Clare writes:—

Clare just now may be described as a county of contrasts. Never was crime so prevalent, yet never was its gaiety so marked. Soldiers fully equipped and visitors in joyous holiday mood are to be met everywhere. Platoons of Scottish troops and bands of merry pic-nic parties crowd the roads. Military lorries and festive motor cars race along the highway, leaving hapless pedestrians lamenting in an endless trail of dust. Kilkee, Lahinch, and Lisdoonvarna are packed out. It was thought that recent proclamations would affect them adversely. The fact that this is not so is in large measure due to the excellent behaviour of the troops, a fact that the people of Clare would probably be the first to admit. Nowhere, indeed, was the verdict of the Ennistymon jury received with greater amazement and scepticism than in Clare itself. The terms of the proclamations are being carried out with moderation, and, though there are many restrictions on the people, they are not causing appreciable hardship.

The prohibition of fairs and markets is, of course, hitting the farmers all over the county, but in the opinion of the police authorities this course was deemed necessary to bring home to them the gravity of the situation, and also in the hope that it would repress the ardour of those whose "patriotism" takes the form of murdering policemen and attacking remote barracks. On days when markets and fairs are usually held produce is not allowed through to the towns and villages, but it is permitted on other days. The object is to prevent the people from congregating, and for the same object football and hurling matches are forbidden. The supply of butter is mainly affected, especially the salt firkin butter, which is generally made for export to English industrial centres. How the restrictions will affect the harvest it is not yet possible to say, but if they interfere with it it will be a severe blow to the farmers, as even the oldest inhabitant fails to recollect when there was such a bountiful season as this. Everybody is so busy in the fields now that there is little else to think about, and certainly during the past week there has been a calm which some people regard with suspicion. The latest incident which the police report shows that things are not at all as they seem on the surface. In a remote part of West Clare a few nights ago the residence of a school teacher was attacked by a party of masked men, and the windows were smashed, while one of the attackers is alleged to have fired a revolver shot. The motive of the attack is not disclosed. Ammunition of the latest pattern seems to be plentiful. After the attacks on the protection posts at Inch and Connolly and the barracks at Broadford, the police found several military bullets of the Mark 7 type, while the murder of Sergeant Riordan and Constable Murphy at Illaunbawn was also committed through the medium of military bullets.

Owing to the recent outrages the authorities have closed several of the small police barracks which served as outposts throughout the county. This step has been taken to protect the lives of policemen, but it may lead to an increase of ordinary crime, such as the episode at the teacher's house, which is in a district where the barracks has recently been closed. In some instances, however, vigilance committees have been formed to prevent crime, but it is yet too soon to judge their utility. Property owners in such districts are naturally apprehensive, and it certainly is unfortunate that they and other innocent people have to suffer for the sins of others.

Rational public opinion is sadly wanted. Responsible people express their views privately, but dare not do so publicly, and, indeed, one could not honestly blame them, with things as they are. Meantime, the compensation claims are mounting up, the latest being those of the relatives of the murdered policemen at Illaunbawn for £6,000 in each instance, so that, if matters do not soon improve, the ratepayers of Clare will have a huge bill to foot.

IRISH NATIONAL WAR MEMORIAL.

RECEPTION ROOM AT THE HORSE SHOW.

Among the stalls which will attract attention at the Horse Show, perhaps none will evoke more sympathetic interest than that which, through the courtesy of the Council of the Royal Dublin Society, has been arranged as a Reception Room in connection with the Irish National War Memorial. Representative Irishwomen will preside to answer questions and receive donations. Some of the fairest and most energetic workers in Ireland will give their services to this splendid Memorial, showing their sympathy and interest in a work which will commemorate the deeds of Irishmen who fell in the Great War.

The Reception Room will be hung with purple cloth, relieved by shining armour, and made interesting by war pictures kindly lent by Messrs. Combridge. Messrs. Millar and Beatty are generously lending a superb carpet and antique furniture. The Room will be found to the left, inside the main entrance. Among those who will preside there on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, are the Marchioness of Headfort, the Countess of Fingall, the Countess of Wicklow, Viscountess Gormanston, Lady Katherine Beresford, Lady Castlemaine, Lady Talbot de Malahide, Lady De Freyne, Lady Farnham, Lady Coote, Lady Arnott, D.B.E., Lady Nutting, Mrs. Gwynne, Mrs. Bury Barry, Mrs. Gaisford St. Lawrence, Mrs. Fowle, Mrs. Andrew Jameson, Mrs. Frank Brooke, Mrs. Hignett, O.B.E.; Mrs. John Good, Mme. Van Cutsem, Mrs. Lewis Beatty, Miss Moran, and Miss Macnie (Hon. Secretary).

COURT CIRCULAR.

VICEREGAL LODGE, DUBLIN

FRIDAY.

Sir Thomas Stafford, Major the Hon. O. & Vesey and Mrs. Vesey, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Stafford left the Lodge to-day.

SUNDAY.

Lady Milbanke, Mrs. Bennet, and Miss Bennet arrived at the Lodge this evening.

A St. Raphael (Var) telegram, dated Friday, states:—A railway station has been established here for the British Aerial Line from Great Britain to India. It has been placed under the direction of Major A. S. MacLaren, who was the first pilot to fly from England to India. He will be assisted by Captain Berwick.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

Mr. A. Henderson's revelations regarding the incidents which preceded his retirement from the Cabinet in May, 1917, require an official reply, which, no doubt, they will get. Mr. Henderson asserts that when he was sent to Petrograd by the Cabinet he was opposed to the Stockholm Conference, whereas his chief, Mr. Lloyd George, was in favour of it. That is quite possible, for our Prime Minister's temperament is such that he is a little apt to jump to conclusions which, on further consideration, he finds to be unsound.

I find it much more difficult to believe that Mr. Henderson was empowered by the Cabinet to dismiss the then British Ambassador and take his place. It would be an extraordinary thing for the Government to delegate its authority in a matter of such importance to any single individual, however eminent; and it would be still more remarkable to hand it over to a man who—I think I am right in saying—was unacquainted with the Russian language, and was, therefore, dependent upon interpreters for his information regarding affairs in Russia. I cannot help thinking that in this matter Mr. Henderson's memory must have played him false.

Unless the electors of Widnes take an unusual interest in foreign affairs Mr. Henderson's Russian reminiscences, whether accurate or not, are not likely to have a very direct bearing upon the result. Much more interesting from this point of view is his declaration in favour of the nationalisation of coal mines. As a Labour candidate he was, no doubt, bound to support it, but it remains to be seen whether it will gain him many of the non-labour votes that he must capture if he is to win the seat. At any rate, his opponent, Mr. Fisher, has declared against nationalisation on the ground that it could not be carried out successfully.

Even in the Labour ranks there are two opinions regarding the advantages of nationalisation. That very level-headed man, Mr. W. A. Appleton, Secretary of the General Federation of Trade Unions, writes in the Sunday Express:—"Nationalisation will inevitably entail a very pernicious kind of slavery. Organised Labour has been striving for more than a century to ensure the liberties of the workers, but the day the worker accepts any system of nationalisation he will fling away the fruits of all this effort. He will sacrifice his individuality, and he will take his place as a mere cog in the State machine."

There are other signs that Labour is beginning to look at the situation from a broader standpoint. Even Mr. Smillie, I notice, is at pains to assert that the falling off in the output of coal is simply due to the fact that "during the war practically no developments took place in the way of opening out and extending our coal mines." He asserts most emphatically that "no movement, organised or individual, exists for the purpose of deliberately restricting the output of coal."

At a meeting of the Welsh Anthracite Miners' Association the need for the maintenance of the output was insisted upon, and the impossibility of any further reduction in working hours was pointed out. The miners at several Lancashire collieries have adopted resolutions pledging themselves to increase the output as much as possible. Already a slight increase in production is reported in Lancashire, where absenteeism is less prevalent than it has been for some months.

The Saturday Review hopes that some day an authentic account of doings at Riga in recent months will be made public. "Such publication," it adds, "would provide a story in which General Gough and a young Civil Servant play parts which we imagined were reserved for Rudolf Rassendyl or some other gay hero of romance. To ride into Riga, with about two companions, to the salute of machine guns being used in violent street-fighting; to become within twelve hours de facto Governor in Riga, and to hand over the Governorship after some five days to the Premier of the Letts on the sea-shore is a good, ringing record."

It is highly probable that Mr. Lloyd George will go to Paris for the signing of the Austrian Peace Treaty. There is, too, a suggestion that Mr. Balfour may become the first untitled Knight of the Garter. It is difficult to see how that can be. An "untitled Knight" is a contradiction in terms, for a Knighthood must carry a title, and the King is scarcely likely to alter fundamentally the oldest order of chivalry in Europe. I am divulging no special secret when I say that Mr. Lloyd George could have had the Garter had he consented to take a title that would have to go with it.

Now that the Prime Minister is safely in Normandy—it is odd, by the way, how persistently some of the papers assert that he has gone to Brittany—the political speculators, for want of something better to talk about, have revived the story that Mr. Asquith is about to return to the House of Commons. But what they have omitted to do is to indicate the method by which he is to get back. His devoted followers in the House are not many in number, and few of them hold safe seats. Even if one of them were to resign in his favour, it is by no means certain that the sacrifice would not be in vain, for there is still a good deal of personal prejudice against Mr. Asquith for his supposed slackness in prosecuting the war. I may be wrong, but my impression is that the Liberal leader will wait until the next General Election before attempting to re-enter the House.

There is great regret in lawn tennis circles at the death of Mr. H. L. Doherty. He and his brother, "R. F.," were the second founders of the game, which had fallen a little in public estimation after the disappearance of the Renshaws. It will always be a moot point which of the Dohertys was the better. I last saw them at a Fitzwilliam tournament, some eighteen years ago, and I then thought "R. F." a shade the better by reason of his greater height and reach. But after his retirement from singles "H. L." for several years reigned supreme.

Mr. A. E. Crawley tells in the Observer a good story of "H. L.'s" extraordinary accuracy. He had been playing a match in which he had made a number of net cord strokes. His opponent and victim rallied him afterwards on these "flukes." "Well, I don't know," said Doherty, who had a fine sense of humour; "let us have a little bet." So they went to a vacant court. The other man sent three balls, with each of which Doherty hit the top of the net, the ball going over.

Senor Capablanca is probably the best living chess-player, with two exceptions. Those are Lasker, the German, and Rubinstein, the Russian. He only met Lasker once, at the Petrograd tournament just before the war, and the four games between them resulted in one win for Lasker and three draws. Rubinstein defeated him in the only game the Cuban master lost at the San Sebastian Tournament in 1910. In present circumstances there is not much chance of a match between him and Lasker in the near future, but a meeting with Rubinstein is quite on the cards.

ULSTER UNIONISTS.

IMPORTANT MEETING IN BELFAST.

An important meeting of the Ulster Unionist Council will be held in Belfast on the 2nd prox. to consider the present political situation, and to take whatever steps may be considered necessary to place the position of Ulster, in relation to the Home Rule controversy, clearly before the country. Sir Edward Carson is coming specially to Belfast in connection with the meeting, and will, it is anticipated, deliver an important speech, and subsequently fulfil a number of engagements in connection with the observance of Covenant Day.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

THE STATE AND BRITISH COMMERCE.

Long before the war, declares The Times, one of the most insistent demands of the business community was for a thorough reform of the British Consular system. Reform was certainly needed, and the experience gained during the war has emphasised the need. Yet it is very doubtful whether many of the critics of the existing state of affairs are fully acquainted with the real nature of the problem which they set out to solve. Sir A. Steel-Maitland, who recently resigned his position as the First Minister in charge of the Department of Oversea Trade, and has, therefore, had the fullest opportunity of studying these questions, contributes to our columns the first of a series of articles on "Foreign Trade and Foreign Services." The creation of the Department of Oversea Trade is the most recent manifestation of the State's growing conception of its direct interest in, and its duties towards, British trade abroad. Unfortunately the new Department has not justified the hopes of the business world. It has not provided us with an efficient service of commercial intelligence, or done much to bring into their right relationship the efforts of the diplomatists and the enterprise of the traders. The reason for this failure is not to be found in details. Sir A. Steel-Maitland indicates the lines on which he thinks the Consular Service should be reformed, and we agree that a thorough change is needed; but a revision of the Consular Service alone will not avail us very much. Sir Arthur's own experience must have made him realise that what is wrong is the attitude of the State towards trade and commerce. Until the public service is inspired by patriotic enthusiasm for the progress of British commerce abroad the machine will never be really efficient. In the highest quarters there is, we know, a real appreciation of the vital part that commerce plays in promoting the prosperity and well-being of the people. We shall get no lasting improvement until all classes realise that, so far from there being anything derogatory in a commercial career, its followers lay the foundations of future progress and civilisation. So far from being mere dull routine, the pursuit of trade in its widest aspects often proves to be the entry into a world of romance, almost as fascinating as that of Art or Literature, and charged with wonderful opportunities for the advancement of mankind and the amelioration of social conditions.

IRISH-AUSTRALIAN ANALOGY.

Sir J. H. Carruthers writes to The Times from Sydney, Australia, to suggest that the Australian form of Home Rule be followed as a solution of the present deadlock in Irish affairs. To follow the precedent there must be a division of Ireland into self-governing groups, just as Australia is divided into States. In other words, there needs to be a Northern Province and a Southern Province in Ireland, each of which would have its own minor constitution, enabling it to control local matters, such as education, police, justice, Municipal or District Councils, railways, charities, industries, etc. Local bodies to represent the people would be constituted, and, whether termed Councils or Parliaments, they would have legislative powers, and to them the local administration would be responsible. Unless Ireland obtains this form of local autonomy, the Australian system will not be followed. The vexed question of Customs duties need not, continues the writer, be a cause of worry. Just as Australia and Canada and South Africa control their Customs, so should Ireland. It may be that it would be irritating and annoying to have a tariff set up in Ireland against England, or other places within or without the Empire. A few years of experience will, however, teach some lessons, and I, for one, have little fear as to any long outstanding difficulties. Just as Victoria and New South Wales found out the folly of inter-State tariffs and Border duties, so the Irish and British people, in their common-sense, will find that a common policy is the better for both.

MR. HOOVER'S TASK ENDED.

The Times Paris Correspondent has had an interview with Mr. Hoover on the eve of his return to America. The task for the relief of Europe under the auspices of the Supreme Council has now come to an end. "I have had five years of it," he remarked to the Correspondent, and he drew a deep breath, as though the mere thought of it was a burden. Since the armistice 10,000,000 tons of foodstuffs have, he stated, been shipped from America to Europe. Mr. Hoover emphasises the seriousness of the situation, and of the task which awaits the Old World. He is especially emphatic on the necessity of increased effort if Europe is to recover without further calamity from that from which she has just emerged.

URBAN ALLOTMENTS.

Insisting that provision for allotments is more difficult and more necessary in urban than in rural areas, The Times urges that there is a side to the question more important than the money value of the produce. The country is about to undergo an industrial revolution. There is to be a maximum working week of 48 hours for the vast majority of workingmen who dwell in towns. What are the artisans, clerks, shopmen, and the multitudes of indoor labourers to do with their new leisure? Some will do nothing with it, or worse. But if facilities in the way of allotments and of instruction in the growth of flowers and vegetables are given to them, very many will gladly utilise them. It will be an interest, a recreation, and a health-giving pursuit for them. Even when the working day was long, artisans and miners readily cultivated plots when these were within reach, and the dwellers in large towns should be given the same facilities. The compulsory shortening of the hours of labour must be correlated with increased provision for the hours of leisure, and in this provision allotments should be included.

REVIVAL OF COASTING SHIPPING.

Of the coastwise shipping services, which it is now sought by the Government scheme to revive, none, asserts The Times, has suffered more severely than those to and from Liverpool. Of 15 ownerships which maintained services from that port in 1914 none was recently represented in coasting trade. At Glasgow an ownership which in one service in 1914 maintained three steamers a week lately had only one steamer a week in the trade, and from London services of three steamers a week have been reduced to services of one steamer every week, ten days, or every fortnight. Some of the ships which were in the full service before the war have been sunk, while others have been profitably employed in trade with the Continent. It is hoped that as regular cargo is provided through the organisation of the Home Trade District Transport Committees, the place of the latter vessels in the coasting trade will be gradually resumed.

LIQUOR CONTROL.

We understand, says The Times, that the Government have now agreed on a policy to be pursued with regard to the future control of the liquor traffic, and that a bill embodying their decisions will be introduced directly Parliament re-assembles. It is an open secret that the Central Control Board have repeatedly urged that the transfer of authority to a new body which is to be constituted should not be delayed. The feeling of Lord D'Abernon is that the Board was established as an emergency body during the war, and that new powers and new organisation are now required. The view of the Government appears to be that the relaxation of the restrictions must not be allowed to proceed further until the new body has been constituted, as further removal of restraint would gravely prejudice the position which the new controlling authority would inherit.

A NATIONAL FILM MUSEUM.

Discussing the completion of the work of the War Office Cinematograph Committee, The Times recalls that during the past few months £50,000 of the profits have been given to the British and Colonial Governments for division among war charities, and all the negatives have been handed over either to the War Office or to the Canadian Government. They constitute a highly valuable national picture record of certain battles and phases of the Great War, and the fact that they are now in the possession of the Government is likely to raise again the question of a national film museum. The need for an institution of the kind has already been masters and men are equally satisfied with the agreements which have ended the recent strikes. The question still remains whether these results could not have been won by swifter, less costly, and more amicable means. Are we still in that early Chinese stage of economic development which burnt down the house in order to obtain roast pig?

The Government has devised much machinery for the adjustment of trade disputes. The Ministry of Labour's conciliation department in Dublin is active and intelligent. The existence of a general association of employers in Ireland (at least its establishment was advertised some months ago) and of an Irish Farmers' Union, and the recent development of one great union of Irish Labour, ought to have averted many industrial disputes, or to have simplified their settlement. The sad fact, however, is that the country has been scourged with such disputes throughout the present year. We may infer, perhaps, that the benefits of all this machinery are hampered by human defects on both sides—defects of management or of temperament or of education. Discipline and co-operation have been lacking in the ranks of Capital as well as in those of Labour. Both have failed to realise their true community of interest. We suggest that now, in a pause of battle and on the eve of a new era in industry, Capital and Labour in Ireland should make a sincere effort to understand one another better and to substitute a state of peace for an almost chronic state of war. Irish agriculture is entering on a period of assured prosperity—if it can get rid of constant and prolonged strikes. Irish industry has great opportunities if Labour's intemperate demands do not drive traffic from our harbours or cry "halt" to impending schemes of reconstruction; and if Capital recognises Labour's right not merely to the necessaries, but to all the decencies and to some of the luxuries of life. If both sides will be loyal to their organisations, if those organisations will recognise that their vital interests are identical and that, in nine cases out of ten, a strike is a confession of bad temper or of incompetency, we may hope to be able not only to shut the Temple of Janus, but to lock the door and throw away the key. The first step to such peace must be the arrangement between the real leaders of our Capital and Labour of some really authoritative tribunal for the settlement of disputes. It ought to be initiated without delay.

The Allies and Hungary.

Another chapter has been opened in Hungary's troubled history. Since the armistice was signed the country has had four Governments. A few weeks ago a stop-gap Socialist Administration was overthrown by a coup d'état which placed the Rumanian Archduke Joseph at the head of the State. Now, in consequence of the firm attitude adopted by the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference, the Archduke has resigned. In no sense of the term was his Government representative of the people. It depended for its authority upon the power of a foreign Army, and never could have negotiated a durable peace. Nobody wanted it, and there can be very little doubt that, if it had been allowed to continue, the people would have been driven into Bolshevism once more. The Archduke's trump card was an offer to submit his position to a popular vote. He played it; but the Allies remained adamant. They pointed out that an election which was conducted under the auspices of the Archduke's Administration would be absolutely useless as an expression of popular will, and that under no circumstances could they allow a member of the Hapsburg family to remain in power. The Allies' firm attitude was dictated mainly by the disclosures made by Mr. Hoover in his report on the state of Hungary. He condemned in the strongest terms both the conduct of the Rumanian troops and the policy of the Archduke's Government. Mr. Hoover urged that Allied agents should be posted at the frontiers to prevent the transport of provisions, and it is understood that the Allied Generals have been instructed to take steps in that direction. That is an act of bare justice. There can be no doubt that Rumania must be restrained from plundering. He suggests that the Government of the country shall be handed over to the Social Democrats. Opinions will differ as to the wisdom of such a step. Everything depends upon the strength of the party. No party should be encouraged that is not merely willing, but able, to regularise its position by an election free from terrorism of any kind. If the Allies had not acted firmly and promptly in accordance with Mr. Hoover's advice, the consequence might have been disastrous. Rumanian plundering and an Administration which did not possess the confidence of the people were admirably calculated to fan the embers of Bolshevism into flame. We were confronted with the probability of another situation of the kind that we find so baffling in Russia. The position is still very delicate, and will require careful handling. The Russian seesaw continues. Between Denikin's successes and Koltchak's reverses the balance seems to be fairly easy. The fall of Kronstadt and the British Navy's victory, however, weigh heavily in the anti-Bolshevist forces' favour. The plan of a grand attack on Petrograd is being carefully prepared, and the manifesto issued by General Gough should have a powerful effect in inducing the population of the city to throw in their lot with the new democratic Government in the North-West.

"Profiteering."

The Board of Trade announced last night the plans which it has made for putting the "Profiteering" Act into force in England and Wales. Two separate and distinct lines of action are proposed. There will be central committees to investigate the cost of producing and distributing articles "in common use," and local committees to inquire into complaints made by consumers. A person against whom a local committee have decided to institute proceedings will have the right of appeal to a superior tribunal. It should prove more feasible to divide the country into a number of large areas, and to invite local authorities and representative bodies of consumers and traders to nominate members of the committees. Four appeal tribunals should be sufficient, and, as in the case of food control, the central authority might operate from Dublin. The great defect in the Act is that it does not give a precise definition of "profiteering." Unless the Act is to become a farce some means of securing uniformity in the decisions of committees must be devised.

Advance Luggage.

Although it comes rather late in the season, holiday-makers will note with satisfaction that the English railway companies are considering proposals to revive the system of booking luggage in advance. There are many facilities which the tourist had to forego as a result of war conditions, but few have been regretted more than this one. It is stated that the new fee will be double the pre-war rate—namely, two shillings for anything up to a cwt. of personal luggage; and that certain charges will be added where considerable cartage is involved at either end. In view of the increased cost of labour and the general rise in prices very few people are likely to object to pay more for such a service. Most travellers will consider the revival of "advance luggage" cheap at any price. The scheme, it is said, provides for the imposition of severe restrictions to ensure that the luggage carried in advance is bona fide personal luggage. Every precaution will be taken to ensure that tickets are actually issued in respect of the "P.L.A." packages, and the tickets will be endorsed to show that luggage has been sent off in advance in order to prevent abuse in respect of excessive weight. It is to be hoped that the Irish railway companies will take steps to bring a similar scheme into operation at an early date.

THE STATE OF COUNTY CLARE.

HOW THE PROCLAMATION OPERATES.

Our special representative in Clare writes:—

Clare just now may be described as a county of contrasts. Never was crime so prevalent, yet never was its gaiety so marked. Soldiers fully equipped and visitors in joyous holiday mood are to be met everywhere. Platoons of Scottish troops and bands of merry pic-nic parties crowd the roads. Military lorries and festive motor cars race along the highway, leaving hapless pedestrians lamenting in an endless trail of dust. Kilkee, Lahinch, and Lisdoonvarna are packed out. It was thought that recent proclamations would affect them adversely. The fact that this is not so is in large measure due to the excellent behaviour of the troops, a fact that the people of Clare would probably be the first to admit. Nowhere, indeed, was the verdict of the Ennistymon jury received with greater amazement and scepticism than in Clare itself. The terms of the proclamations are being carried out with moderation, and, though there are many restrictions on the people, they are not causing appreciable hardship.

The prohibition of fairs and markets is, of course, hitting the farmers all over the county, but in the opinion of the police authorities this course was deemed necessary to bring home to them the gravity of the situation, and also in the hope that it would repress the ardour of those whose "patriotism" takes the form of murdering policemen and attacking remote barracks. On days when markets and fairs are usually held produce is not allowed through to the towns and villages, but it is permitted on other days. The object is to prevent the people from congregating, and for the same object football and hurling matches are forbidden. The supply of butter is mainly affected, especially the salt firkin butter, which is generally made for export to English industrial centres. How the restrictions will affect the harvest it is not yet possible to say, but if they interfere with it it will be a severe blow to the farmers, as even the oldest inhabitant fails to recollect when there was such a bountiful season as this. Everybody is so busy in the fields now that there is little else to think about, and certainly during the past week there has been a calm which some people regard with suspicion. The latest incident which the police report shows that things are not at all as they seem on the surface. In a remote part of West Clare a few nights ago the residence of a school teacher was attacked by a party of masked men, and the windows were smashed, while one of the attackers is alleged to have fired a revolver shot. The motive of the attack is not disclosed. Ammunition of the latest pattern seems to be plentiful. After the attacks on the protection posts at Inch and Connolly and the barracks at Broadford, the police found several military bullets of the Mark 7 type, while the murder of Sergeant Riordan and Constable Murphy at Illaunbawn was also committed through the medium of military bullets.

Owing to the recent outrages the authorities have closed several of the small police barracks which served as outposts throughout the county. This step has been taken to protect the lives of policemen, but it may lead to an increase of ordinary crime, such as the episode at the teacher's house, which is in a district where the barracks has recently been closed. In some instances, however, vigilance committees have been formed to prevent crime, but it is yet too soon to judge their utility. Property owners in such districts are naturally apprehensive, and it certainly is unfortunate that they and other innocent people have to suffer for the sins of others.

Rational public opinion is sadly wanted. Responsible people express their views privately, but dare not do so publicly, and, indeed, one could not honestly blame them, with things as they are. Meantime, the compensation claims are mounting up, the latest being those of the relatives of the murdered policemen at Illaunbawn for £6,000 in each instance, so that, if matters do not soon improve, the ratepayers of Clare will have a huge bill to foot.

IRISH NATIONAL WAR MEMORIAL.

RECEPTION ROOM AT THE HORSE SHOW.

Among the stalls which will attract attention at the Horse Show, perhaps none will evoke more sympathetic interest than that which, through the courtesy of the Council of the Royal Dublin Society, has been arranged as a Reception Room in connection with the Irish National War Memorial. Representative Irishwomen will preside to answer questions and receive donations. Some of the fairest and most energetic workers in Ireland will give their services to this splendid Memorial, showing their sympathy and interest in a work which will commemorate the deeds of Irishmen who fell in the Great War.

The Reception Room will be hung with purple cloth, relieved by shining armour, and made interesting by war pictures kindly lent by Messrs. Combridge. Messrs. Millar and Beatty are generously lending a superb carpet and antique furniture. The Room will be found to the left, inside the main entrance. Among those who will preside there on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, are the Marchioness of Headfort, the Countess of Fingall, the Countess of Arran, Viscountess Gormanston, Lady Katherine Beresford, Lady Castlemaine, Lady Talbot de Malahide, Lady De Freyne, Lady Farnham, Lady Coote, Lady Arnott, D.B.E.; Lady Nutting, Mrs. Gwynne, Mrs. Bury Barry, Mrs. Gaisford St. Lawrence, Mrs. Fowle, Mrs. Andrew Jameson, Mrs. Frank Brooke, Mrs. Hignett, O.B.E.; Mrs. John Good, Mme. Van Cutsem, Mrs. Lewis Beatty, Miss Moran, and Miss Macnie (Hon. Secretary).

COURT CIRCULAR.

VICEREGAL LODGE, DUBLIN.

Friday.

Sir Thomas Stafford, Major the Hon. O. R. Vesey and Mrs. Vesey, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Stafford left the Lodge to-day.

Sunday.

Lady Milbanke, Mrs. Bennet, and Miss Bennet arrived at the Lodge this evening.

A St. Raphael (Var) telegram, dated Friday, states:—A railway station has been established here for the British Aerial Line from Great Britain to India. It has been placed under the direction of Major A. S. MacLaren, who was the first pilot to fly from England to India. He will be assisted by Captain Berwick.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

Mr. A. Henderson's revelations regarding the incidents which preceded his retirement from the Cabinet in May, 1917, require an official reply, which, no doubt, they will get. Mr. Henderson asserts that when he was sent to Petrograd by the Cabinet he was opposed to the Stockholm Conference, whereas his chief, Mr. Lloyd George, was in favour of it. That is quite possible, for our Prime Minister's temperament is such that he is a little apt to jump to conclusions which, on further consideration, he finds to be unsound.

I find it much more difficult to believe that Mr. Henderson was empowered by the Cabinet to dismiss the then British Ambassador and take his place. It would be an extraordinary thing for the Government to delegate its authority in a matter of such importance to any single individual, however eminent; and it would be still more remarkable to hand it over to a man who—I think I am right in saying—was unacquainted with the Russian language, and was, therefore, dependent upon interpreters for his information regarding affairs in Russia. I cannot help thinking that in this matter Mr. Henderson's memory must have played him false.

Unless the electors of Widnes take an unusual interest in foreign affairs Mr. Henderson's Russian reminiscences, whether accurate or not, are not likely to have a very direct bearing upon the result. Much more interesting from this point of view is his declaration in favour of the nationalisation of coal mines. As a Labour candidate he was, no doubt, bound to support it, but it remains to be seen whether it will gain him many of the non-labour votes that he must capture if he is to win the seat. At any rate, his opponent, Mr. Fisher, has declared against nationalisation on the ground that it could not be carried out successfully.

Even in the Labour ranks there are two opinions regarding the advantages of nationalisation. That very level-headed man, Mr. W. A. Appleton, Secretary of the General Federation of Trade Unions, writes in the Sunday Express:—"Nationalisation will inevitably entail a very pernicious kind of slavery. Organised Labour has been striving for more than a century to ensure the liberties of the workers, but the day the worker accepts any system of nationalisation he will fling away the fruits of all this effort. He will sacrifice his individuality, and he will take his place as a mere cog in the State machine."

There are other signs that Labour is beginning to look at the situation from a broader standpoint. Even Mr. Smillie, I notice, is at pains to assert that the falling off in the output of coal is simply due to the fact that "during the war practically no developments took place in the way of opening out and extending our coal mines." He asserts most emphatically that "no movement, organised or individual, exists for the purpose of deliberately restricting the output of coal."

At a meeting of the Welsh Anthracite Miners' Association the need for the maintenance of the output was insisted upon, and the impossibility of any further reduction in working hours was pointed out. The miners at several Lancashire collieries have adopted resolutions pledging themselves to increase the output as much as possible. Already a slight increase in production is reported in Lancashire, where absenteeism is less prevalent than it has been for some months.

The Saturday Review hopes that some day an authentic account of doings at Riga in recent months will be made public. "Such publication," it adds, "would provide a story in which General Gough and a young Civil Servant play parts which we imagined were reserved for Rudolf Rassendyl or some other gay hero of romance. To ride into Riga, with about two companions, to the salute of machine guns being used in violent street-fighting; to become within twelve hours de facto Governor in Riga, and to hand over the Governorship after some five days to the Premier of the Letts on the sea-shore is a good, ringing record."

It is highly probable that Mr. Lloyd George will go to Paris for the signing of the Austrian Peace Treaty. There is, too, a suggestion that Mr. Balfour may become the first untitled Knight of the Garter. It is difficult to see how that can be. An "untitled Knight" is a contradiction in terms, for a Knighthood must carry a title, and the King is scarcely likely to alter fundamentally the oldest order of chivalry in Europe. I am divulging no special secret when I say that Mr. Lloyd George could have had the Garter had he consented to take a title that would have to go with it.

Now that the Prime Minister is safely in Normandy—it is odd, by the way, how persistently some of the papers assert that he has gone to Brittany—the political speculators, for want of something better to talk about, have revived the story that Mr. Asquith is about to return to the House of Commons. But what they have omitted to do is to indicate the method by which he is to get back. His devoted followers in the House are not many in number, and few of them hold safe seats. Even if one of them were to resign in his favour, it is by no means certain that the sacrifice would not be in vain, for there is still a good deal of personal prejudice against Mr. Asquith for his supposed slackness in prosecuting the war. I may be wrong, but my impression is that the Liberal leader will wait until the next General Election before attempting to re-enter the House.

There is great regret in lawn tennis circles at the death of Mr. H. L. Doherty. He and his brother, "R. F.," were the second founders of the game, which had fallen a little in public estimation after the disappearance of the Renshaws. It will always be a moot point which of the Dohertys was the better. I last saw them at a Fitzwilliam tournament, some eighteen years ago, and I then thought "R. F." a shade the better by reason of his greater height and reach. But after his retirement from singles "H. L." for several years reigned supreme.

Mr. A. E. Crawley tells in the Observer a good story of "H. L.'s" extraordinary accuracy. He had been playing a match in which he had made a number of net cord strokes. His opponent and victim rallied him afterwards on these "flukes." "Well, I don't know," said Doherty, who had a fine sense of humour; "let us have a little bet." So they went to a vacant court. The other man sent three balls, with each of which Doherty hit the top of the net, the ball going over.

Senor Capablanca is probably the best living chess-player, with two exceptions. Those are Lasker, the German, and Rubinstein, the Russian. He only met Lasker once, at the Petrograd tournament just before the war, and the four games between them resulted in one win for Lasker and three draws. Rubinstein defeated him in the only game the Cuban master lost at the San Sebastian Tournament in 1910. In present circumstances there is not much chance of a match between him and Lasker in the near future, but a meeting with Rubinstein is quite on the cards.

ULSTER UNIONISTS.

IMPORTANT MEETING IN BELFAST.

An important meeting of the Ulster Unionist Council will be held in Belfast on the 2nd prox to consider the present political situation, and to take whatever steps may be considered necessary to place the position of Ulster, in relation to the Home Rule controversy, clearly before the country. Sir Edward Carson is coming specially to Belfast in connection with the meeting, and will, it is anticipated, deliver an important speech, and subsequently fulfil a number of engagements in connection with the observance of Covenant Day.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

THE STATE AND BRITISH COMMERCE.

Long before the war, declares The Times, one of the most insistent demands of the business community was for a thorough reform of the British Consular system. Reform was certainly needed, and the experience gained during the war has emphasised the need. Yet it is very doubtful whether many of the critics of the existing state of affairs are fully acquainted with the real nature of the problem which they set out to solve. Sir A. Steel-Maitland, who recently resigned his position as the First Minister in charge of the Department of Oversea Trade, and has, therefore, had the fullest opportunity of studying these questions, contributes to our columns the first of a series of articles on "Foreign Trade and Foreign Service." The creation of the Department of Oversea Trade is the most recent manifestation of the State's growing conception of its direct interest in, and its duties towards, British trade abroad. Unfortunately the new Department has not justified the hopes of the business world. It has not provided us with an efficient service of commercial intelligence, or done much to bring into their right relationship the efforts of the diplomatists and the enterprise of the traders. The reason for this failure is not to be found in details. Sir A. Steel-Maitland indicates the lines on which he thinks the Consular Service should be reformed, and we agree that a thorough change is needed; but a revision of the Consular Service alone will not avail us very much. Sir Arthur's own experience must have made him realise that what is wrong is the attitude of the State towards trade and commerce. Until the public service is inspired by patriotic enthusiasm for the progress of British commerce abroad the machine will never be really efficient. In the highest quarters there is, we know, a real appreciation of the vital part that commerce plays in promoting the prosperity and well-being of the people. We shall get no lasting improvement until all classes realise that, so far from there being anything derogatory in a commercial career, its followers lay the foundations of future progress and civilisation. So far from being mere dull routine, the pursuit of trade in its widest aspects often proves to be the entry into a world of romance, almost as fascinating as that of Art or Literature, and charged with wonderful opportunities for the advancement of mankind and the amelioration of social conditions.

IRISH-AUSTRALIAN ANALOGY.

Sir J. H. Carruthers writes to The Times from Sydney, Australia, to suggest that the Australian form of Home Rule be followed as a solution of the present deadlock in Irish affairs. To follow the precedent there must be a division of Ireland into self-governing groups, just as Australia is divided into States. In other words, there needs to be a Northern Province and a Southern Province in Ireland, each of which would have its own minor constitution, enabling it to control local matters, such as education, police, justice, Municipal or District Councils, railways, charities, industries, etc. Local bodies to represent the people would be constituted, and, whether termed Councils or Parliaments, they would have legislative powers, and to them the local administration would be responsible. Unless Ireland obtains this form of local autonomy, the Australian system will not be followed. The vexed question of Customs duties need not, continues the writer, be a cause of worry. Just as Australia and Canada and South Africa control their Customs, so should Ireland. It may be that it would be irritating and annoying to have a tariff set up in Ireland against England, or other places within or without the Empire. A few years of experience will, however, teach some lessons, and I, for one, have little fear as to any long outstanding difficulties. Just as Victoria and New South Wales found out the folly of inter-State tariffs and Border duties, so the Irish and British people, in their common-sense, will find that a common policy is the better for both.

MR. HOOVER'S TASK ENDED.

The Times Paris Correspondent has had an interview with Mr. Hoover on the eve of his return to America. The task for the relief of Europe under the auspices of the Supreme Council has now come to an end. "I have had five years of it," he remarked to the Correspondent, and he drew a deep breath, as though the mere thought of it was a burden. Since the armistice 10,000,000 tons of foodstuffs have, he stated, been shipped from America to Europe. Mr. Hoover emphasises the seriousness of the situation, and of the task which awaits the Old World. He is especially emphatic on the necessity of increased effort if Europe is to recover without further calamity from that from which she has just emerged.

URBAN ALLOTMENTS.

Insisting that provision for allotments is more difficult and more necessary in urban than in rural areas, The Times urges that there is a side to the question more important than the money value of the produce. The country is about to undergo an industrial revolution. There is to be a maximum working week of 48 hours for the vast majority of workingmen who dwell in towns. What are the artisans, clerks, shopmen, and the multitudes of indoor labourers to do with their new leisure? Some will do nothing with it, or worse. But if facilities in the way of allotments and of instruction in the growth of flowers and vegetables are given to them, very many will gladly utilise them. It will be an interest, a recreation, and a health-giving pursuit for them. Even when the working day was long, artisans and miners readily cultivated plots when these were within reach, and the dwellers in large towns should be given the same facilities. The compulsory shortening of the hours of labour must be correlated with increased provision for the hours of leisure, and in this provision allotments should be included.

REVIVAL OF COASTING SHIPPING.

Of the coastwise shipping services, which it is now sought by the Government scheme to revive, none, asserts The Times, has suffered more severely than those to and from Liverpool. Of 15 ownerships which maintained services from that port in 1914 none was recently represented in coasting trade. At Glasgow an ownership which in one service in 1914 maintained three steamers a week lately had only one steamer a week in the trade, and from London services of three steamers a week have been reduced to services of one steamer every week, ten days, or every fortnight. Some of the ships which were in the full service before the war have been sunk, while others have been profitably employed in trade with the Continent. It is hoped that as regular cargo is provided through the organisation of the Home Trade District Transport Committees, the place of the latter vessels in the coasting trade will be gradually resumed.

LIQUOR CONTROL.

We understand, says The Times, that the Government have now agreed on a policy to be pursued with regard to the future control of the liquor traffic, and that a bill embodying their decisions will be introduced directly Parliament re-assembles. It is an open secret that the Central Control Board have repeatedly urged that the transfer of authority to a new body which is to be constituted should not be delayed. The feeling of Lord D'Abernon is that the Board was established as an emergency body during the war, and that new powers and new organisation are now required. The view of the Government appears to be that the relaxation of the restrictions must not be allowed to proceed further until the new body has been constituted, as further removal of restraint would gravely prejudice the position which the new controlling authority would inherit.

A NATIONAL FILM MUSEUM.

Discussing the completion of the work of the War Office Cinematograph Committee, The Times recalls that during the past few months £80,000 of the profits have been given to the British and Colonial Governments for division among war charities, and all the negatives have been handed over either to the War Office or to the Canadian Government. They constitute a highly valuable national picture record of certain battles and phases of the Great War, and the fact that they are now in the possession of the Government is likely to raise again the question of a national film museum. The need for an institution of the kind has already been urged in our columns, but, so far, nothing definite seems to have been done. There are still some more profits to come from the War Office Committee's work. If some of them could be expended on the proper preservation of the negatives, our substantial debt to the Committee would be increased.

ALLIES AND HUNGARY.

SUPREME COUNCIL'S PEREMPTORY NOTE.

NO DEALINGS WITH A HAPSBURG GOVERNMENT.

ARCHDUKE AND CABINET RESIGN.

A Reuter's telegram, dated Paris, Friday, states:—The Supreme Council to-day dealt with the Hungarian political situation, and decided to send the following telegram to the Inter-Allied Mission in Budapest, who will communicate its contents to the Hungarian authorities:—

"The Allied and Associated Powers have re-examined the advices contained in your reports and information received from other quarters concerning the recent events in Budapest. Their conclusions are as follow: They have the greatest desire to conclude a lasting peace with the Hungarian people, but consider they are unable to do so as long as the present Hungarian Government remains in power. This Government was not established by the will of the people, but by a coup d'état carried out by a small group of police under the protection of a foreign Army. It has at its head a member of the Hapsburg family which, through its policy and its ambitions, is in great measure responsible for the calamities from which the world is suffering, and will still suffer for a long time. A peace negotiated with a Government of this kind cannot be a durable one, and, in addition, the Allied and Associated Governments cannot accord the economic aid of which Hungary is so much in need.

NO DEALINGS WITH THE ARCHDUKE.

The Archduke Joseph has replied that he is ready, before entering into relations with the Allied and Associated Governments, to submit his position to the popular vote. Our reply to him is that this would not satisfy us, since the elections would be carried out under the auspices of an Administration at the head of which is the Archduke himself. In the present unhappy situation in Hungary it is very difficult to obtain by elections a correct expression of popular will. There would be insurmountable difficulties if the elections were to take place under the control of a Hapsburg. Even if the National Assembly were elected in conditions whereby it truly represented the country, nobody would admit it.

IN THE INTEREST OF PEACE.

It is, therefore, in the interest of European peace that the Allied and Associated Governments are obliged to insist upon the present pretender to supreme power in the Hungarian State resigning, and, in order that a Government in which all parties are represented may be elected, that the Hungarian people should be consulted. The Allied and Associated Powers would be willing to negotiate with any Government which has the confidence of an Assembly elected in this manner.

You are requested to have this message published in all districts.

THE GOVERNMENT CRISIS.

ANOTHER ROYALIST PLOT FEARED.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent in a telegram from Budapest, dated August 22 (delayed) says—The Cabinet crisis still continues, in spite of interminable conferences. It is expected that the Cabinet will resign to-morrow, because the Government is unable to obtain recognition by the Entente. Meriedrich and other Ministers have resolved to continue in office, saying that Allied recognition is immaterial, as no Government can be recognised until the National Assembly is elected.

A ROYALIST PLOT.

Fears are expressed in some quarters that the Royalist group is planning a coup d'état for the restoration of the Monarchy, with the aid of the Military Party, believing that if the Entente were confronted with such a fait accompli the new régime would be left undisturbed. The Government wished to issue a decree reinforcing the law of 1918, which safeguarded the rights of Nationalist minorities, but the Rumanian Commander forbade such a measure.

It is reported that the Allied Mission of Generals will send a protest to the Hungarian Government against the ill-treatment of Bolshevist political prisoners, who are being worse treated than the bourgeois prisoners were under the Bolshevist regime.

ARCHDUKE AND CABINET RESIGN.

A Reuter's telegram, dated August 23, says—As the result of the refusal of the Supreme Council to reorganise the new Hungarian Government, the Archduke Joseph and the Friedrich Cabinet have resigned.

A Press Association war telegram from Copenhagen on Sunday says:—It appears from a Budapest telegram that the resignation of Archduke Joseph and the Government was decided upon after the receipt of M. Clemenceau's Note yesterday afternoon. Following the resignation of the Cabinet, the Allied Mission at Budapest charged the Premier, M. Friedrich, with the formation of a Ministry in which all classes of society should be represented. The Allies have allowed three days for the formation of the new Government. The Cabinet has decided to continue to take charge of affairs until the new Government is constituted.

It appears from a Budapest telegram that the Allied Mission requested the Premier in all the circumstances to see to the maintenance of order. Subsequently at a meeting of the Cabinet the Foreign Minister, M. Lovaszy, in the name of the retiring Ministers, took farewell of the Archduke Joseph, declaring that the Archduke had in the hour of crisis made up his mind to act, and that he was, therefore, sure of the nation's eternal thanks. The Archduke then took leave of the Ministers, shaking hands with each. The Archduke is issuing a farewell proclamation to the nation on Sunday morning.

SERIOUS MOTOR CAR COLLISION.

TEN PERSONS BADLY INJURED.

A Lisbon telegram, dated Friday, states:—A motor car accident occurred here this evening in which two Cabinet Ministers were involved. One car, containing the Minister of the Interior, his secretary, and some friends, collided with another carrying the Minister of Commerce, his departmental chief, his secretary, and some friends. Ten persons, including the Minister of Commerce and his secretary, were badly injured, and the two motor cars were completely smashed. The crash was heard for a considerable distance, and gave rise to a rumour that a bomb had exploded in the centre of the town.

REVISION OF VOTERS' LIST.

Mr. Henry Campbell, Town Clerk, with Mr. C. S. Campbell, acting as legal assessor, resumed the revision of the voters' lists for the borough of Dublin in the City Hall on Saturday last. Mr. Frank B. Garland, chief inspector Unionist Association, appeared in the interests of the Unionist Party, and Mr. M. Noyk, solicitor, for the Sinn Fein Party. Night sittings will be held on Wednesday and Friday from 7 to 10 o'clock.

THE AIR MINISTRY AND MISS O'SULLIVAN.

The Times understands that Miss O'Sulivan, late Clothing Controller of the W.R.A.F., has been demobilised by the Air Ministry. Recently members of the W.R.A.F. due for demobilisation were invited to sign on for a further term, certain inducements to do so, in the shape of increased pay and additional holidays being offered. Miss O'Sulivan was one of those who took steps to accept this proposal, and signed the necessary form, but, in spite of that, she was demobilised.

WHISKEY STOCKS.

It is understood, states The Times, that for some time past there have been difficulties in insuring the very large quantities of whiskey now in bonded stores in Scotland. The values have been increasing, and some insurance offices which had already considerable lines are known to have felt it necessary to decline the offer of any further insurances. There are also large bonded stores in Ireland, and the insurance limitations do not seem to have affected these stocks to the same extent.

THE KRONSTADT VICTORY.

GENERAL GOUGH'S PROCLAMATION.

THE WAY OPEN TO PETROGRAD.

SERIOUS BOLSHEVIK DEFEATS.

In order to celebrate and drive home the brilliant naval victory at Kronstadt, General Gough has prepared the following proclamation, which will be translated and distributed by aeroplanes in Petrograd:—

Citizens of Petrograd,—A Government of North-Western Russia has been formed—a popular democratic Government. Our duty is to save you from Bolshevik tyranny, and give food to the population of Petrograd as soon as the city is freed. Measures are to be taken to convoke popular representation of the North-west district, which will assist the Government in its labours. The formation of this Government, which has been greeted with enthusiasm by wide classes of the population, coincides with a great victory gained to-day over the Bolsheviks. Kronstadt, Bolshevism's fortress, has been the object of a successful attack. The dreadnought Petropavlovsk has been sunk; the battleship Perozvanni blown up and sunk, the cruiser Pamats Azova burnt and gone to the bottom, the parent ship of the submarines has been the object of a successful attack. The ship has gone to the bottom. These instruments, which the Bolsheviks used to strengthen their yoke to suppress the people, are now removed to clear the way, that ships may carry food to your wives and children.

THE ROAD TO PETROGRAD.

Gunfire in the Sestroretsk region continued yesterday.

According to a high naval authority, the way is now clear for Petrograd. In the midst of the heartfelt rejoicing at the magnificent achievement of the British Fleet, which showed the most famous qualities of Nelsonian audacity and cool planning, comes the cheering news that the Fleet in the Gulf of Finland, after four months of unremitting toil in watching over the security of the seas from the Red piracy, will be relieved by a fresh squadron of the F class, constituting at the time of the release the largest squadron ever gathered in Finnish waters.

RED ARMY BADLY CUT UP.

DIVISIONAL STAFF CAPTURED.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent, in a telegram from Taganrog, Sea of Azoff, dated August 11th (delayed), states:—After five days of relentless fighting General Vrangel's forces have worsted a large force composed of the best Bolshevik cavalry, which is defending the approaches to Saratoff. Some three divisions of Bolshevik infantry and cavalry have been striving to break the Don Cossack front south of Voronesh. The Don Cossacks, however, routed the Bolshevik shock troops, capturing the staff of the 10th Division. One of General Denikin's aeroplanes has reached the staff headquarters of the Ural Cossacks. The Bolsheviks have sent strong infantry reinforcements, with armoured cars, to oppose General Wrangel's advance again Saratoff, and still fighting is proceeding. Don Cossacks have occupied several villages in the Borisoliebsk region, roughly half-way between Saratoff and Voronesh, and captured 1,200 prisoners and many machine guns.

Kuban Cossacks, commanded by General Markevitch, have occupied Krementchug, on the Dnieper, one of the most important railway junctions, from a strategic point of view, in South Russia. The junction of Znamenka, south-west of Krementchug, has also been occupied. Nicholaiev and Kherson have thus been cut off from railway communication with the north, and their fate is sealed. The junction of Mirgorod, north-west of Poltava, has been occupied. The local inhabitants have begun to attack the returning Red stragglers.

Alarmed at the advance of General Denikin's Army, the Bolsheviks are evacuating their institutions at Kieff, together with quantities of stolen property.

To the north there are indications that the horrors perpetrated at Kharkoff during the retirement of he Bolsheviks will be repeated at Odessa.

GERMANS IN COURLAND.

PREPARING FOR ANOTHER OFFENSIVE.

The Helsingfors Correspondent of the Svenska Dagblad, says a Reuter's telegram from Stockholm on Saturday, reports that, in spite of the assurances given to the contrary, the German troops in Courland have not evacuated the country, but seem, on the contrary, to be preparing an offensive from there against the Bolsheviks, while Russian prisoners of war are being brought in considerable numbers from Germany in order to take part in the proposed attack. The correspondent says "Possibly it is these events which have brought about the formation of a new North-West Russian Government under pressure from the Allies."

KIEFF REPORTED OCCUPIED.

A Copenhagen telegram on Sunday says:—A message from Berlin states that, according to news brought by aeroplane from Kamenetz, Podolsky, the whole of Polodia and large parts of Volhinia and the Government of Kieff have been taken from the Soviet troops by Petlura's and the West Ukrainian armies, which are approaching the River Dnieper along the entire line. Kieff is said to have been occupied.

QUEENSTOWN CATHEDRAL.

CONSECRATION CEREMONIES.

With impressive ceremonial, the Roman Catholic Cathedral of Queenstown was consecrated yesterday. Cardinal Logue presided at the function, which was attended by two Archbishops, fifty Bishops and high dignitaries of the Church, and about two hundred other clergymen. Pontifical High Mass was celebrated by the Archbishop of Cashel, and at its conclusion a sermon was preached by the Archbishop of Tuam.

Later, in the grounds of the Convent of Mercy, an address from the Dean and Chapter of Cloyne and an address from the Urban Council of Queenstown were presented to Cardinal Logue.

In his reply to the Council address, the Cardinal referred to the present political situation in the country, and adjured the people, and especially the young men of Ireland, no matter what the provocation was, not to commit any act that would be contrary to the law of God. He ventured to prophesy for Ireland a great future amongst the nations of the earth.

In the evening the Most Rev. Dr. Browne, Bishop of Cloyne, who is celebrating his episcopal silver jubilee, entertained at dinner the Cardinal, Archbishops, Bishops, and clergy who attended the Church ceremonies. An address from the Urban Council to the Bishop of Cloyne was also presented, in which reference was made to his work in completing the Cathedral.

THE MARQUIS OF LONDONDERRY.

The freedom of the City of Belfast is to be conferred on the Marquis of Londonderry in commemoration of his military services during the war and his association with the province of Ulster.

FLAX-GROWING IN MEATH.

ACTION OF THE FARMERS.

INTERVIEW WITH FLAX FIRM'S REPRESENTATIVE.

Our Navan Correspondent writes, under Saturday's date:—Owing to the unfortunate dispute in the County Meath between the Meath Farmers' Union and the labourers who are members of the Irish Transport Workers' Union, the flax-growing industry in Meath is attracting the attention of the public to a far greater extent than would have been the case under normal circumstances. The labourers who are on strike are in receipt of an allowance which, in itself, would not suffice to supply their weekly requirements; consequently, they have been forced to seek other employment to supplement their "strike pay." They have been fortunate, at a crucial period, in finding this employment in the flax fields, and hence the flax-pulling industry has been figuring prominently before the public for some weeks past.

Reports have been in circulation that labourers on strike are employed in flax-pulling, and refuse to allow anyone else to participate in the work. In order to ascertain the truth or otherwise of this statement, an Irish Times representative interviewed Mr. Bett, one of the principals of the London firm who have 800 acres under flax in Meath, principally in the Navan district, this year—their first experiment in the county. Incidentally, it may be remarked that Messrs. D. D. Leech and Son, Belfast, have some 1,400 acres under the crop in Dublin, Wicklow, Kildare, and portion of Meath bordering the last-named county, and have taken over the old mills at Slane for flax-scutching. Messrs. Bett and Co., of London, have confined their industry this year to Meath. They have purchased Rossin Mills, between Drogheda and Slane, and are expending a considerable sum of money in re-building and suitably equipping the premises as a flax-scutching mill. The firm has been dealing for fifty years in flax in Russia. Russia, for reasons known to everyone, is now out of the market, and the firm has come to Meath to revive an industry that in years gone by was an important one in Ireland from Belfast to Cork.

There were 300,000 acres in Ireland under flax cultivation at the time of the American Civil War. The industry died out in the other provinces, but in Ulster it survived and was carefully fostered. The war resulted in directing the attention of the Government to this most important industry, with the consequent sequel that to-day flax-growing in Ireland promises in the near future to regain its former position, and will mean the retaining at home of a large amount of capital that in pre-war days went abroad.

The Meath Farmers' Association wrote to Mr. Bett's firm recently, stating that if they employed any labourers, members of the Transport Union, they would advise their members not to give the firm any land next season.

Asked what action his firm took, Mr. Bett replied—We ignored it. He added:—We are not farmers. We do not belong to the Association. We are manufacturers. Flax-growing is an industry of national importance. Do you think we could stand still, and with closed eyes and folded arms see our flax crop destroyed, and not employ labour? We are paying less for pulling flax than the Government paid last year. The Government fixed an award last year for flax-pulling of 1s. 1d. per stook of 12 beats. We are paying this year 1s. per stook. We employ labour from everyone who comes to us, and we are willing to teach them to pull flax. We do not want to support the Transport Union more than anyone else. We have not given a monopoly of it to anyone. Ours is a private enterprise. The Government have nothing to do with it beyond controlling the price of flax. We are a firm, he proceeded, who are open to receive everyone who will work for us. It is not true that we have only employed Transport Union men, and that the Transport Union men have got a monopoly of our business. They have not done so. We look upon flax-growing as an essential part of the industry of Ireland at the present moment, and if we let the flax crop rot we would be fools. The Farmers' Association would not compensate us for our loss. The flax-pulling started two weeks ago, and finishes to-day.

THE WAGES

Asked if it was a fact that a pound a day can be earned, Mr. Bett told our representative that an expert, who has had years of training, can earn 20s. a day pulling flax, but the ordinary worker makes from 10s. to 13s. a day. The number of hands employed varied from day to day. Between 200 and 250 were employed—including men, women, and boys and girls of 15 years upwards.

The action of the Farmers' Association, Mr. Bett said, placed the firm in a very invidious position. They had got to compete with the North. "We want to be friendly with the Association," he proceeded. "It is the Association who are trying to be enemies to us."

In closing the interview, Mr. Bett said that he would be glad to show the Editor of the Irish Times, or a representative of the paper, round the various farms where flax-pulling was in progress, where he could see the operations and the workers, and draw his own conclusions.

On inquiry in police circles our representative was informed that they had had no information of any intimidation on the part of strikers towards other labourers pulling flax.

THE "PROFITEERING" ACT.

ARRANGEMENTS BY THE BOARD OF TRADE.

The Board of Trade, in an announcement last night, says:—The "Profiteering" Act, which became law on August 19th, authorises the Board to make orders applying the Act to any article or class of articles declared by the Board to be articles of a kind in common use by the public, or material, machinery, or accessories used in production of such article. The Board intends that the provisions of the Act shall be administered by means of committees or tribunals, and for this purpose it is proposed to establish three grades of committees or tribunals—central, local, and appeal.

Two separate and distinct lines of action are contemplated—general investigation by the Central Committee into cost and profits of production and distribution of goods to which the Act has been applied; local investigation by Local Committtees (subject to appeal, as provided by the Act) to appeal tribunals into such complaints as may be made by members of the general public concerning the prices charged and profits made in the retail distribution of goods to which the Act has been applied. In any case in which investigation discloses actual profiteering prosecution may follow. It will be an instruction of the Board of Trade to all committees and tribunals established under the Act that no action shall be taken which will hamper or restrict legitimate commercial enterprise throughout the country. It is not the intention of Parliament, as expressed in the Act, to prevent any person or company from making reasonable profit on their business transactions.

The Central Committee will be presided over by Mr. McCurdy, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Food. He will be assisted by such Deputy Chairmen as may be necessary. These will be appointed by the Board of Trade, Associated Chambers of Commerce, Associations of Employers, representatives of co-operative movement, and representatives of employés, including trade unions, are being invited to suggest the names of persons suitable for appointment as members of Committee.

As regards Local Committees, it is proposed that these shall be appointed by local authorities, the expenses of such committees being met out of local rates. The Secretary for Scotland is being asked to undertake on behalf of the Board the formation of appeal tribunals for Scotland. The Irish Government is being consulted as to the application of the Act to Ireland.

THE LATE LORD RATHMORE.

On Saturday and yesterday all the steamer flags of the L.N.W.R. Company, and the official flags over the company's North Wall offices and railway station, were flown at half-mast in connection with the death of Lord Rathmore, a director and former chairman of the company. Mr. Edward Cotton, the new Irish manager of the L.N.W.R. Company, journeyed to Greenore from Dublin in connection with the funeral arrangements of the deceased nobleman.

The remains of the late Lord Rathmore, ex-Chairman of the L. and N.W. Railway Company, were transferred by the mail boat from Kingstown last evening to Holyhead, en route for London. Mr. H. G. Burgess, Ministry of Transport Representative in Ireland, and the leading Irish officials of the L. and N.W.R., attended at the Carlisle Pier and saw the remains placed on board.

SPECIAL EXTRA.

BRITISH POLICY IN TURKEY.

A Times war telegram, dated Constantinople, August 20th, says:—It is now known here that Nury Pasha's rescuers murdered the two British soldiers who were escorting him while he was taking air exercise in a suburb of Batum. The officers in charge of the party were not killed. As regards Halil Pasha, it may be asked why the Turkish authorities did not take proper steps to guard the uncle of Enver and Nury more carefully. One of his jailers was a former motor car driver of Enver himself. It is difficult to resist the conclusion that our policy in these matters, whether inspired from London or Versailles, has not been sufficiently firm. Meanwhile, with two able relatives of Enver at large, both of whom know Transcaucasia and the Eastern Province well, with Mustapha Kemal still active, and Enver very possibly lurking in Transcaucasia, the alarm of the Armenian Republic and the Armenian community in Turkey is very comprehensible. Nor is it surprising that the American officers in charge of the relief of Transcaucasia, and American educationists and others interested in the improvements of the conditions of Eastern Turkey, are much concerned as to the future, and sometimes betray a certain soreness that our evacuation of the Transcaucasia has not yet been postponed until the arrival of winter in the Armenian upland, to prevent it from being a signal for attack on the Armenian State, and, possibly, the massacres of Armenians in Eastern Anatolia.

There is an impression in some well-informed quarters here, shared by Americans, who speak with some authority on the subject, that the British Labour leaders who have been insisting upon the evacuation of Russian territory by British include Transcaucasia in Russia. It is well that British Labour should realise that if our evacuation of Transcaucasia may lead to difficulties for its bete noir, General Denikin, it might cause much more trouble to the unhappy Persians, and would almost certainly bring about the virtual destruction of the remnant of Armenia in the interests of the Turco-Kurd movement, inspired, financed, and led by murderers, and the profiteers of the Committee of Union and Progress.

NURSE CAVELL BETRAYED.

STORY OF FRENCH SPIES' TREACHERY.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent says:—The report or precis of the charges brought against Georges Gaston Quien, whose trial begins to-day before the Sixth Courtmartial of the Military District of Paris, throws an interesting light on the organisation for aiding British, French, and Belgian soldiers to escape from the territories held by the Germans, into Holland, of which Edith Cavell was the central fiure. Quien, who is now 40 years of age, was serving in St. Quentin Jail his third term of imprisonment when the Germans tok possession of the town in August, 1914. He was discharged from prison on September, 1914. He found himself penniless in a town under the rigours of martial law. According to the report, Quien was not long in choosing a means of livelihood. The Germans needed spies among the French population. The Germans sent Quien ostensibly as one of a large number of civilian prisoners to Landrecies. He was allowed every liberty by his jailers, and went where he would in the town. It was there that he met a girl named Jeanne Balligan who was working for Miss Cavell's organisation, and who, in purest good faith, and supposing him to be loyal, offered to help him to escape. Up to that time the secret had been rigorously kept. The German authorities did not know that Miss Cavell's ambulance in Brussels was the headquarters of the organisation, working against them, and that the Chateau of Gellignies, belonging to Prince Reginald of Croy, who was living there with the Princess Marie, his sister, was a half-way house between the German lines, through which nearly all the fugutives passed. By working himself into the confidence of Jeanne Balligan, Quien learned the first stage of the way which led to liberty and Holland. Through one of her friends he was able to reach the Chateau of Belrignies to meet the Princess and Prince of Croy, to whom he represented himself as a French officer from Bellignies. He was passed on to Mons, with another fugitive, a certain Monsieur Motte, to the care of local agents of the Association, one of whom, Mademoiselle Thuliez, is among the principal witnesses against him.

SPY MEETS MISS CAVELL.

Next day Mademoiselle Thuliez took both men to Brussels, where she introduced Quien to Miss Cavell at her hospital, in the Rue de la Culture. Quien and Motte were to stay with Miss Cavell until they left for the Dutch frontier. Quien's first step was to demand money. Miss Cavell gave him 300 francs, not without surprise that he should ask for so much. Quien remained in Brussels about a fortnight. During this time he learned to know the number of members of the organisation, and the houses and hotels where they could shelter. Miss Cavell decided to get rid of him. Madame Bodart took him to her house, where he passed the night, and the next morning she led him herself, with sixteen other fugitives, to Turnhout, where the party were transferred to another guide, who brought them through the German frontier guard into Holland without molestation. Quien thus came to know the last stages of the underground way. He had already travelled it from the Chateau Bellignies to Brussels. He now knew personally the principal members of Miss Cavell's association, had lodged in their houses, taken their money, and listened to their talk. Quien immediately returned to Brussels, this time without the aid of Miss Cavell's associates; saw Miss Cavell, who received him, according to his own account, with these words: "Unhappy man! Fly! I expect to be arrested at any moment. Go to Madame Bodart; tell her to destroy the papers she has. For it seems that her son has been arrested." This statement, the report maintains, is false.

Madame Baudart declares that Quien came to her house, accompanied by a man, whom she watched from the window, and believed to be wearing a false beard. He remained outside while Quien was in the house.

PRINCE OF WALES IN QUEBEC.

The Press Association's special correspondent, telegraphing from Quebec on August 23, says—The Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Duke of Devonshire and some of the leading men of Quebec, this afternoon visited the heights of Abraham, and placed a wreath on the monuments of General Montcalm and General Wolfe. His Royal Highness also visited the great bridge over the St. Lawrence, and unveiled tablets commemorating this work. The Prince expressed his pleasure at presiding at the inauguration of this magnificent enterprise.

The Prince also visited the Ursuline Convent, and was shown the skull of Montcalm, whose remains were deposited in the sanctuary after the battle which won Quebec for the British Empire.

OBITUARY.

MR. BARRY C. GALVIN.

Mr. Barry C. Galvin, Solicitor to Cork Corporation and Cork Port Sanitary Authority, died suddenly at Harrogate yesterday. He was a son of Mr. Daniel J. Galvin, a former Mayor of Cork, and was one of the leading solicitors in the South of Ireland. He entered the employment of Cork Corporation nearly thirty years ago as Executive Sanitary Officer, and succeeded to the Solicitorship in 1901.

THE RESIDENT MAGISTRACY.

The following appears in the Dublin Gazette, dated August 22nd—The Lord Lieutenant has been pleased, by warrant under his hand bearing date the 16th day of August, 1919, to appoint Christopher Henry Robinson, Esq., to be an additional Resident Magistrate for the County of Meath.

FUNERAL OF MR. JOHN LAMBERT.

The funeral of Mr. John Lambert, who had been a sexton of St. Patrick's Cathedral for over 50 years, took place from the Cathedral on Saturday. Many friends of the Cathedral who had known and revered Mr. Lambert came to offer that last tribute of respect to his memory. The Service was fully choral, commencing with the Croft-Purcell Burial Sentences, the Anthem being Blest are the Departed (Spohr).

The Dean, in an address, spoke of Mr. Lambert's long service and absolute trustworthiness. The first part of the Burial Service was sung by Rev. Canon Wilson (Treasurer), and the Service at the Cathedral concluded with the hymn, "Now the labourer's task is o'er." Mr. W. E. Hopkins presided at the organ, and as the coffin was being removed from the Cathedral he played the Dead March in Saul. The concluding portion of the Burial Service was conducted in the cemetery.

CABINET SECRETS.

MR. HENDERSON'S RUSSIAN MISSION.

HOW HE BECAME CONVERTED.

LABOUR PARTY AND IRELAND.

The Special Representative of the Press Association, telegraphing from Widnes on Saturday, says:—The event of to-day in the contest for the Parliamentary representation of the Widnes Division was a speech by Mr. Arthur Henderson, delivered to a large audience in the Alexandria Theatre. The Labour candidate had caused it to be known that he intended on the occasion of this, his first, mass meeting to reply to alleged personal attacks made upon him, and this, no doubt, led to an accentuation of public interest in the fixture, which had been very extensively billed.

Mr. Henderson began by a refence to certain indications throughout the constituency, and these he described as proof that his opponents had "got the wind up." Instead of carrying on an educative propaganda, the other side were engaging in a campaign of malicious, calumnious misrepresentation and abuse. The last thing that he would do would be to dabble in the filth of political electioneering. The stigma sought to be attached to him was that he was a "Pacifist." He was prepared to face the issue, and to test it. If he succeeded, I use an unparliamentary phrase, and say that it is a damned lie that is being circulated, I hope that you will pardon the emphasis of the words. Mr. Sexton, who is on the platform, says that the phrase is justified. I agree with him.

THE ASQUITH CABINET.

The first witness whom he proposed to call, Mr. Henderson continued, was Mr. Asquith, of whose Cabinet he was a member in the early days of the war. While that Cabinet was in office one of the things that they had to do was to build up the Armies, and he met that noble soldier, the late Lord Kitchener, with the leader of the trade union movement when it was found that all their efforts at voluntary recruiting were insufficient. Were Lord Derby on that platform he would state whether he (the candidate) was a "Pacifist." From no man in the country had he received such expressions of gratitude as he had received from Lord Derby for help in making his scheme the success that it was. Certain papers knew that—some of his friends in the advance Labour movement were against him—and they came out with such headlines as "Mr. Arthur Henderson, the Real Labour Leader," "Mr. Arthur Henderson, the Labour Statesman." How, then, could he be a "Pacifist"? Mr. Asquith's Cabinet came to an end, and it was decided to run the country with a special Cabinet of five—(A Voice—"Orangemen," and laughter)—with Mr. Lloyd George at their head. Mr. Lloyd George at once determined that he could not run such a Cabinet without one representative of Labour, and to himself Mr. Lloyd George extended a personal invitation to become a member. He accepted, and during the early months of that Cabinet he assisted to the best of his ability in trying to win the war.

THE MISSION TO RUSSIA.

In 1917 the Cabinet unanimously decided, in his absence, to ask him to go on a mission to Russia, and he went to Russia. The people that least liked his going to Russia were the Bolshevists. The people who had most to say against his going to Russia, and the people who had had most to say against him since, were the Bolshevists. It was a curious thing that the Unionists in this and other parts of the country wished to throw him, body and soul, to those who disowned him. (Laughter.) When I went to Russia, Mr. Henderson continued, I was opposed to what is known as the Stockholm Conference, and my chief, Mr. Lloyd George, was in favour of it. I went to Russia, and I got converted. I came to two conclusions—one was that we must revise the secret treaties. The Russians who met me, said Mr. Henderson, said: "We must have the secret treaties revised." I asked: Why? They said: "When you handed over Constantinople to the Tsar, what did you get? When you handed over Constantinople, what did France get? When you handed over Constantinople to the Tsar, what did Italy get for going into the war?" "These things," said they, "are inconsistent with the principles of the revolution; therefore, we must have them revised, so that we may know that, in carrying on the war, we will be fighting for the principles of the revolution." The next thing I found out was that they wanted a Stockholm Conference, a negotiating Conference. I said that I would have nothing to do with any negotiating Conference, and yet my opponent in this contest in one of his speeches has actually said that I was prepared to go into a Conference and negotiate at the back of the Government. I ask my opponent now, at this my first public meeting in Widnes, to formulate that statement into a definite charge. If he will formulate it into a definite charge, I will meet him on any platform in this town. He can then state his case, and I will present my defence, and we will allow the electors of the Widnes Division to be the judges. (Cheers.) These Russians wanted a conference of negotiation. I would not have such a conference, and I came back, my work being done.

ANOTHER SECRET.

I am going to let you into another secret. When I went to Russia I went possessing the power to send the then Ambassador home at the end of a fortnight, and to take his job at £8,000 a year. I made up my mind that a decision would have been taken before I reached London, and that it would be most unfair for me to ask the Ambassador to return home. I wrote back to London suggesting that I should return to London, and that he should remain at his post. If I have been the mean, despicable, unprincipled politician that they are now trying to make me out to be, I could have resided in Russia at £8,000 a year, or, failing to do that, I could have returned, and, instead of saying anything about Stockholm or about revising secret treaties, or about my Russian experience or conversion, I could have gone on with my work in the Cabinet, and I could have been keeping till now my £5,000 a year. But that £5,000 a year would have been covered up in a napkin containing my principles, and would have been no good to me. I refused to do anything of the kind. (Loud cheers.)

WHY HE RESIGNED.

My friend, Mr. Sexton, knows what occurred at the first conference held after my return from Russia. You will find that there was a recommendation of the National Executive of the Labour Party that we should be prepared to have a conference at Stockholm, provided that everybody was prepared to make it a conference for the purpose of consultation, and consultation only. Because we could not agree with regard to this position, I tendered my resignation. My resignation was accepted, and I want in the most emphatic way to challenge and contradict a statement that I read in one of the newspapers to-day, that when I returned from Petrograd my resignation was asked for. I deny that absolutely. My resignation never was asked for. My resignation was tendered voluntarily and freely, because I found that the difference of policy between my colleagues and myself was so great that it was very much better for me, having the choice offered to me. I believed that

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

Mr. A. Henderson's revelations regarding the incidents which preceded his retirement from the Cabinet in May, 1917, require an official reply, which, no doubt, they will get. Mr. Henderson asserts that when he was sent to Petrograd by the Cabinet he was opposed to the Stockholm Conference, whereas his chief, Mr. Lloyd George, was in favour of it. That is quite possible, for our Prime Minister's temperament is such that he is a little apt to jump to conclusions which, on further consideration, he finds to be unsound.

I find it much more difficult to believe that Mr. Henderson was empowered by the Cabinet to dismiss the then British Ambassador and take his place. It would be an extraordinary thing for the Government to delegate its authority in a matter of such importance to any single individual, however eminent; and it would be still more remarkable to hand it over to a man who—I think I am right in saying—was unacquainted with the Russian language, and was, therefore, dependent upon interpreters for his information regarding affairs in Russia. I cannot help thinking that in this matter Mr. Henderson's memory must have played him false.

Unless the electors of Widnes take an unusual interest in foreign affairs Mr. Henderson's Russian reminiscences, whether accurate or not, are not likely to have a very direct bearing upon the result. Much more interesting from this point of view is his declaration in favour of the nationalisation of coal mines. As a Labour candidate he was, no doubt, bound to support it, but it remains to be seen whether it will gain him many of the non-labour votes that he must capture if he is to win the seat. At any rate, his opponent, Mr. Fisher, has declared against nationalisation on the ground that it could not be carried out successfully.

Even in the Labour ranks there are two opinions regarding the advantages of nationalisation. That very level-headed man, Mr. W. A. Appleton, Secretary of the General Federation of Trade Unions, writes in the Sunday Express:—"Nationalisation will inevitably entail a very pernicious kind of slavery. Organised Labour has been striving for more than a century to ensure the liberties of the workers, but the day the worker accepts any system of nationalisation he will fling away the fruits of all this effort. He will sacrifice his individuality, and he will take his place as a mere cog in the State machine."

There are other signs that Labour is beginning to look at the situation from a broader standpoint. Even Mr. Smillie, I notice, is at pains to assert that the falling off in the output of coal is simply due to the fact that "during the war practically no developments took place in the way of opening out and extending our coal mines." He asserts most emphatically that "no movement, organised or individual, exists for the purpose of deliberately restricting the output of coal."

At a meeting of the Welsh Anthracite Miners' Association the need for the maintenance of the output was insisted upon, and the impossibility of any further reduction in working hours was pointed out. The miners at several Lancashire collieries have adopted resolutions pledging themselves to increase the output as much as possible. Already a slight increase in production is reported in Lancashire, where absenteeism is less prevalent than it has been for some months.

The Saturday Review hopes that some day an authentic account of doings at Riga in recent months will be made public. "Such publication," it adds, "would provide a story in which General Gough and a young Civil Servant play parts which we imagined were reserved for Rudolf Rassendyl or some other gay hero of romance. To ride into Riga, with about two companions, to the salute of machine guns being used in violent street-fighting; to become within twelve hours de facto Governor in Riga, and to hand over the Governorship after some five days to the Premier of the Letts on the seashore is a good, ringing record."

It is highly probable that Mr. Lloyd George will go to Paris for the signing of the Austrian Peace Treaty. There is, too, a suggestion that Mr. Balfour may become the first untitled Knight of the Garter. It is difficult to see how that can be. An "untitled Knight" is a contradiction in terms, for a Knighthood must carry a title, and the King is scarcely likely to alter fundamentally the oldest order of chivalry in Europe. I am divulging no special secret when I say that Mr. Lloyd George could have had the Garter had he consented to take a title that would have to go with it.

Now that the Prime Minister is safely in Normandy—it is odd, by the way, how persistently some of the papers assert that he has gone to Brittany—the political speculators, for want of something better to talk about, have revived the story that Mr. Asquith is about to return to the House of Commons. But what they have omitted to do is to indicate the method by which he is to get back. His devoted followers in the House are not many in number, and few of them hold safe seats. Even if one of them were to resign in his favour, it is by no means certain that the sacrifice would not be in vain, for there is still a good deal of personal prejudice against Mr. Asquith for his supposed slackness in prosecuting the war. I may be wrong, but my impression is that the Liberal leader will wait until the next General Election before attempting to re-enter the House.

There is great regret in lawn tennis circles at the death of Mr. H. L. Doherty. He and his brother, "R. F.," were the second founders of the game, which had fallen a little in public estimation after the disappearance of the Renshaws. It will always be a moot point which of the Dohertys was the better. I last saw them at a Fitzwilliam tournament, some eighteen years ago, and I then thought "R. F." a shade the better by reason of his greater height and reach. But after his retirement from singles "H. L." for several years reigned supreme.

Mr. A. E. Crawley tells in the Observer a good story of "H. L.'s" extraordinary accuracy. He had been playing a match in which he had made a number of net cord strokes. His opponent and victim rallied him afterwards on these "flukes." "Well, I don't know," said Doherty, who had a fine sense of humour; "let us have a little bet." So they went to a vacant court. The other man sent three balls, with each of which Doherty hit the top of the net, the ball going over.

Senor Capablanca is probably the best living chess-player, with two exceptions. Those are Lasker, the German, and Rubinstein, the Russian. He only met Lasker once, at the Petrograd tournament just before the war, and the four games between them resulted in one win for Lasker and three draws. Rubinstein defeated him in the only game the Cuban master lost at the San Sebastian Tournament in 1910. In present circumstances there is not much chance of a match between him and Lasker in the near future, but a meeting with Rubinstein is quite on the cards.

ULSTER UNIONISTS.

IMPORTANT MEETING IN BELFAST.

An important meeting of the Ulster Unionist Council will be held in Belfast on the 2nd prox to consider the present political situation, and to take whatever steps may be considered necessary to place the position of Ulster, in relation to the Home Rule controversy, clearly before the country. Sir Edward Carson is coming specially to Belfast in connection with the meeting, and will, it is anticipated, deliver an important speech, and subsequently fulfil a number of engagements in connection with the observance of Covenant Day.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

THE STATE AND BRITISH COMMERCE.

Long before the war, declares The Times, one of the most insistent demands of the business community was for a thorough reform of the British Consular system. Reform was certainly needed, and the experience gained during the war has emphasised the need. Yet it is very doubtful whether many of the critics of the existing state of affairs are fully acquainted with the real nature of the problem which they set out to solve. Sir A. Steel-Maitland, who recently resigned his position as the First Minister in charge of the Department of Oversea Trade, and has, therefore, had the fullest opportunity of studying these questions, contributes to our columns the first of a series of articles on "Foreign Trade and Foreign Services." The creation of the Department of Oversea Trade is the most recent manifestation of the State's growing conception of its direct interest in, and its duties towards, British trade abroad. Unfortunately the new Department has not justified the hopes of the business world. It has not provided us with an efficient service of commercial intelligence, or done much to bring into their right relationship the efforts of the diplomatists and the enterprise of the traders. The reason for this failure is not to be found in details. Sir A. Steel-Maitland indicates the lines on which he thinks the Consular Service should be reformed, and we agree that a thorough change is needed; but a revision of the Consular Service alone will not avail us very much. Sir Arthur's own experience must have made him realise that what is wrong is the attitude of the State towards trade and commerce. Until the public service is inspired by patriotic enthusiasm for the progress of British commerce abroad the machine will never be really efficient. In the highest quarters there is, we know, a real appreciation of the vital part that commerce plays in promoting the prosperity and well-being of the people. We shall get no lasting improvement until all classes realise that, so far from there being anything derogatory in a commercial career, its followers lay the foundations of future progress and civilisation. So far from being mere dull routine, the pursuit of trade in its widest aspects often proves to be the entry into a world of romance, almost as fascinating as that of Art or Literature, and charged with wonderful opportunities for the advancement of mankind and the amelioration of social conditions.

IRISH-AUSTRALIAN ANALOGY.

Sir J. H. Carruthers writes to The Times from Sydney, Australia, to suggest that the Australian form of Home Rule be followed as a solution of the present deadlock in Irish affairs. To follow the precedent there must be a division of Ireland into self-governing groups, just as Australia is divided into States. In other words, there needs to be a Northern Province and a Southern Province in Ireland, each of which would have its own minor constitution, enabling it to control local matters, such as education, police, justice, Municipal or District Councils, railways, charities, industries, etc. Local bodies to represent the people would be constituted, and, whether termed Councils or Parliaments, they would have legislative powers, and to them the local administration would be responsible. Unless Ireland obtains this form of local autonomy, the Australian system will not be followed. The vexed question of Customs duties need not, continues the writer, be a cause of worry. Just as Australia and Canada and South Africa control their Customs, so should Ireland. It may be that it would be irritating and annoying to have a tariff set up in Ireland against England, or other places within or without the Empire. A few years of experience will, however, teach some lessons, and I, for one, have little fear as to any long outstanding difficulties. Just as Victoria and New South Wales found out the folly of inter-State tariffs and Border duties, so the Irish and British people, in their common-sense, will find that a common policy is the better for both.

MR. HOOVER'S TASK ENDED.

The Times Paris Correspondent has had an interview with Mr. Hoover on the eve of his return to America. The task for the relief of Europe under the auspices of the Supreme Council has now come to an end. "I have had five years of it," he remarked to the Correspondent, and he drew a deep breath, as though the mere thought of it was a burden. Since the armistice 10,000,000 tons of foodstuffs have, he stated, been shipped from America to Europe. Mr. Hoover emphasises the seriousness of the situation, and of the task which awaits the Old World. He is especially emphatic on the necessity of increased effort if Europe is to recover without further calamity from that from which she has just emerged.

URBAN ALLOTMENTS.

Insisting that provision for allotments is more difficult and more necessary in urban than in rural areas, The Times urges that there is a side to the question more important than the money value of the produce. The country is about to undergo an industrial revolution. There is to be a maximum working week of 48 hours for the vast majority of workingmen who dwell in towns. What are the artisans, clerks, shopmen, and the multitudes of indoor labourers to do with their new leisure? Some will do nothing with it, or worse. But if facilities in the way of allotments and of instruction in the growth of flowers and vegetables are given to them, very many will gladly utilise them. It will be an interest, a recreation, and a health-giving pursuit for them. Even when the working day was long, artisans and miners readily cultivated plots when these were within reach, and the dwellers in large towns should be given the same facilities. The compulsory shortening of the hours of labour must be correlated with increased provision for the hours of leisure, and in this provision allotments should be included.

REVIVAL OF COASTING SHIPPING.

Of the coastwise shipping services, which it is now sought by the Government scheme to revive, none, asserts The Times, has suffered more severely than those to and from Liverpool. Of 15 ownerships which maintained services from that port in 1914 none was recently represented in coasting trade. At Glasgow an ownership which in one service in 1914 maintained three steamers a week lately had only one steamer a week in the trade, and from London services of three steamers a week have been reduced to services of one steamer every week, ten days, or every fortnight. Some of the ships which were in the full service before the war have been sunk, while others have been profitably employed in trade with the Continent. It is hoped that as regular cargo is provided through the organisation of the Home Trade District Transport Committees, the place of the latter vessels in the coasting trade will be gradually resumed.

LIQUOR CONTROL.

We understand, says The Times, that the Government have now agreed on a policy to be pursued with regard to the future control of the liquor traffic, and that a bill embodying their decisions will be introduced directly Parliament re-assembles. It is an open secret that the Central Control Board have repeatedly urged that the transfer of authority to a new body which is to be constituted should not be delayed. The feeling of Lord D'Abernon is that the Board was established as an emergency body during the war, and that new powers and new organisation are now required. The view of the Government appears to be that the relaxation of the restrictions must not be allowed to proceed further until the new body has been constituted, as further removal of restraint would gravely prejudice the position which the new controlling authority would inherit.

A NATIONAL FILM MUSEUM.

Discussing the completion of the work of the War Office Cinematograph Committee, The Times recalls that during the past few months £80,000 of the profits have been given to the British and Colonial Governments for division among war charities, and all the negatives have been handed over either to the War Office or to the Canadian Government. They constitute a highly valuable national picture record of certain battles and phases of the Great War, and the fact that they are now in the possession of the Government is likely to raise again the question of a national film museum. The need for an institution of the kind has already been urged in our columns, but, so far, nothing definite seems to have been done. There are still some more profits to come from the War Office Committee's work. If some of them could be expended on the proper preservation of the negatives, our substantial debt to the Committee would be increased.

THE AIR MINISTRY AND MISS O'SULLIVAN.

The Times understands that Miss O'Sullivan, late Clothing Controller of the W.R.A.F., has been demobilised by the Air Ministry. Recently members of the W.R.A.F. due for demobilisation were invited to sign on for a further term, certain inducements to do so, in the shape of increased pay and additional holidays being offered. Miss O'Sullivan was one of those who took steps to accept this proposal, and signed the necessary form, but, in spite of that, she was demobilised.

WHISKEY STOCKS.

It is understood, states The Times, that for some time past there have been difficulties in insuring the very large quantities of whiskey now in bonded stores in Scotland. The values have been increasing, and some insurance offices which had already considerable lines are known to have felt it necessary to decline the offer of any further insurances. There are also large bonded stores in Ireland, and the insurance limitations do not seem to have affected these stocks to the same extent.

ALLIES AND HUNGARY.

SUPREME COUNCIL'S PEREMPTORY NOTE.

NO DEALINGS WITH A HAPSBURG GOVERNMENT.

ARCHDUKE AND CABINET RESIGN.

A Reuter's telegram, dated Paris, Friday, states:—The Supreme Council to-day dealt with the Hungarian political situation, and decided to send the following telegram to the Inter-Allied Mission in Budapest, who will communicate its contents to the Hungarian authorities:—

> "The Allied and Associated Powers have re-examined the advices contained in your reports and information received from other quarters concerning the recent events in Budapest. Their conclusions are as follow: They have the greatest desire to conclude a lasting peace with the Hungarian people, but consider they are unable to do so as long as the present Hungarian Government remains in power. This Government was not established by the will of the people, but by a coup d'état carried out by a small group of police under the protection of a foreign Army. It has at its head a member of the Hapsburg family which, through its policy and its ambitions, is in great measure responsible for the calamities from which the world is suffering, and will still suffer for a long time. A peace negotiated with a Government of this kind cannot be a durable one, and, in addition, the Allied and Associated Governments cannot accord the economic aid of which Hungary is so much in need.

NO DEALINGS WITH THE ARCHDUKE.

> The Archduke Joseph has replied that he is ready, before entering into relations with the Allied and Associated Governments, to submit his position to the popular vote. Our reply to him is that this would not satisfy us, since the elections would be carried out under the auspices of an Administration at the head of which is the Archduke himself. In the present unhappy situation in Hungary it is very difficult to obtain by elections a correct expression of popular will. There would be insurmountable difficulties if the elections were to take place under the control of a Hapsburg. Even if the National Assembly were elected in conditions whereby it truly represented the country, nobody would admit it.

IN THE INTEREST OF PEACE.

> It is, therefore, in the interest of European peace that the Allied and Associated Governments are obliged to insist upon the present pretender to supreme power in the Hungarian State resigning, and, in order that a Government in which all parties are represented may be elected, that the Hungarian people should be consulted. The Allied and Associated Powers would be willing to negotiate with any Government which has the confidence of an Assembly elected in this manner.

THE GOVERNMENT CRISIS.

ANOTHER ROYALIST PLOT FEARED.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent in a telegram from Budapest, dated August 22 (delayed) says:—The Cabinet crisis still continues, in spite of interminable conferences. It is expected that the Cabinet will resign to-morrow, because the Government is unable to obtain recognition by the Entente. Meriedrich and other Ministers have resolved to continue in office, saying that Allied recognition is immaterial, as no Government can be recognised until the National Assembly is elected.

A ROYALIST PLOT.

Fears are expressed in some quarters that the Royalist group is planning a coup d'état for the restoration of the Monarchy, with the aid of the Military Party, believing that if the Entente were confronted with such a fait accompli the new régime would be left undisturbed. The Government wished to issue a decree reinforcing the law of 1918, which safeguarded the rights of Nationalist minorities, but the Rumanian Commander forbade such a measure.

It is reported that the Allied Mission of Generals will send a protest to the Hungarian Government against the ill-treatment of Bolshevist political prisoners, who are being worse treated than the bourgeois prisoners were under the Bolshevist régime.

ARCHDUKE AND CABINET RESIGN.

A Reuter's telegram, dated August 23, says—As the result of the refusal of the Supreme Council to reorganise the new Hungarian Government, the Archduke Joseph and the Friedrich Cabinet have resigned.

A Press Association war telegram from Copenhagen on Sunday says:—It appears from a Budapest telegram that the resignation of Archduke Joseph and the Government was decided upon after the receipt of M. Clemenceau's Note yesterday afternoon. Following the resignation of the Cabinet, the Allied Mission at Budapest charged the Premier, M. Friedrich, with the formation of a Ministry in which all classes of society should be represented. The Allies have allowed three days for the formation of the new Government. The Cabinet has decided to continue to take charge of affairs until the new Government is constituted.

It appears from a Budapest telegram that the Allied Mission requested the Premier in all the circumstances to see to the maintenance of order. Subsequently at a meeting of the Cabinet the Foreign Minister, M. Lovavzy, in the name of the retiring Ministers, took farewell of the Archduke Joseph, declaring that the Archduke had in the hour of crisis made up his mind to act, and that he was, therefore, sure of the nation's eternal thanks. The Archduke then took leave of the Ministers, shaking hands with each. The Archduke is issuing a farewell proclamation to the nation on Sunday morning.

SERIOUS MOTOR CAR COLLISION.

TEN PERSONS BADLY INJURED.

A Lisbon telegram, dated Friday, states:—A motor car accident occurred here this evening in which two Cabinet Ministers were involved. One car, containing the Minister of the Interior, his secretary, and some friends, collided with another carrying the Minister of Commerce, his departmental chief, his secretary, and some friends. Ten persons, including the Minister of Commerce and his secretary, were badly injured, and the two motor cars were completely smashed. The crash was heard for a considerable distance, and gave rise to a rumour that a bomb had exploded in the centre of the town.

REVISION OF VOTERS' LIST.

Mr. Henry Campbell, Town Clerk, with Mr. C. S. Campbell, acting as legal assessor, resumed the revision of the voters' lists for the borough of Dublin in the City Hall on Saturday last. Mr. Frank B. Garland, chief inspector Unionist Association, appeared in the interests of the Unionist Party, and Mr. M. Noyk, solicitor, for the Sinn Fein Party. Night sittings will be held on Wednesday and Friday from 7 to 10 o'clock.

THE KRONSTADT VICTORY.

GENERAL GOUGH'S PROCLAMATION.

THE WAY OPEN TO PETROGRAD.

SERIOUS BOLSHEVIK DEFEATS.

In order to celebrate and drive home the brilliant naval victory at Kronstadt, General Gough has prepared the following proclammation, which will be translated and distributed by aeroplanes in Petrograd:—

> Citizens of Petrograd,—A Government of North-Western Russia has been formed—a popular democratic Government. Our duty is to save you from Bolshevik tyranny, and give food to the population of Petrograd as soon as the city is freed. Measures are to be taken to convoke popular representation of the North-west district, which will assist the Government in its labours. The formation of this Government, which has been greeted with enthusiasm by wide classes of the population, coincides with a great victory gained to-day over the Bolsheviks. Kronstadt, Bolshevism's fortress, has been the object of a successful attack. The dreadnought Petropavlovsk has been sunk; the battleship Perozvanni blown up and sunk, the cruiser Pamats Asova burnt and gone to the bottom, the parent ship of the submarines has been the object of a successful attack. The ship has gone to the bottom. These instruments, which the Bolsheviks used to strengthen their yoke to suppress the people, are now removed to clear the way, that ships may carry food to your wives and children.

THE ROAD TO PETROGRAD.

Gunfire in the Sestroretsk region continued yesterday.

According to a high naval authority, the way is now clear for Petrograd. In the midst of the heartfelt rejoicing at the magnificent achievement of the British Fleet, which showed the most famous qualities of Nelsonian audacity and cool planning, comes the cheering news that the Fleet in the Gulf of Finland, after four months of unremitting toil in watching over the security of the seas from the Red piracy, will be relieved by a fresh squadron of the F class, constituting at the time of the release the largest squadron ever gathered in Finnish waters.

RED ARMY BADLY CUT UP.

DIVISIONAL STAFF CAPTURED.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent, in a telegram from Taganrog, Sea of Azoff, dated August 11th (delayed), states:—After five days of relentless fighting General Wrangel's forces have worsted a large force composed of the best Bolshevik cavalry, which is defending the approaches to Saratoff. Some three divisions of Bolshevik infantry and cavalry have been striving to break the Don Cossack front south of Voronesh. The Don Cossacks, however, routed the Bolshevik shock troops, capturing the staff of the 10th Division. One of General Denikin's aeroplanes has reached the staff headquarters of the Ural Cossacks. The Bolsheviks have sent strong infantry reinforcements, with armoured cars, to oppose General Wrangel's advance again Saratoff, and still fighting is proceeding. Don Cossacks have occupied several villages in the Borisoliebsk region, roughly half-way between Saratoff and Voronesh, and captured 1,200 prisoners and many machine guns.

Kuban Cossacks, commanded by General Markevitch, have occupied Krementchug, on the Dnieper, one of the most important railway junctions, from a strategic point of view, in South Russia. The junction of Znamenka, south-west of Krementchug, has also been occupied. Nicholasiec and Kherson have thus been cut off from railway communication with the north, and their fate is sealed. The junction of Mirgorod, north-west of Poltava, has been occupied. The local inhabitants have begun to attack the returning Red stragglers.

Alarmed at the advance of General Denikin's Army, the Bolsheviks are evacuating their institutions at Kieff, together with quantities of stolen property.

To the north there are indications that the horrors perpetrated at Kharkoff during the retirement of he Bolsheviks will be repeated at Odessa.

GERMANS IN COURLAND.

PREPARING FOR ANOTHER OFFENSIVE.

The Helsingfors Correspondent of the Svenska Dagblad, says a Reuter's telegram from Stockholm on Saturday, reports that, in spite of the assurances given to the contrary, the German troops in Courland have not evacuated the country, but seem, on the contrary, to be preparing an offensive from there against the Bolsheviks, while Russian prisoners of war are being brought in considerable numbers from Germany in order to take part in the proposed attack. The correspondent says" Possibly it is these events which have brought about the formation of a new North-West Russian Government under pressure from the Allies."

KIEFF REPORTED OCCUPIED.

A Copenhagen telegram on Sunday says:—A message from Berlin states that, according to news brought by aeroplane from Kamenets, Podolsky, the whole of Pokodia and lare parts of Volhinia and the Gvernment of Kieff have been taken from the Soviet troops by Petlura's and the West Ukrainian armies, which are approaching the River Dnieper along the entire line. Kieff is said to have been occupied.

QUEENSTOWN CATHEDRAL.

CONSECRATION CEREMONIES.

With impressive ceremonial, the Roman Catholic Cathedral of Queenstown was consecrated yesterday. Cardinal Logue presided at the function, which was attended by two Archbishops, fifty Bishops and high dignitaries of the Church, and about two hundred other clergymen. Pontifical High Mass was celebrated by the Archbishop of Cashel, and at its conclusion a sermon was preached by the Archbishop of Tuam.

Later, in the grounds of the Convent of Mercy, an address from the Dean and Chapter of Cloyne and an address from the Urban Council of Queenstown were presented to Cardinal Logue.

In his reply to the Council address, the Cardinal referred to the present political situation in the country, and adjured the people, and especially the young men of Ireland, no matter what the provocation was, not to commit any act that would be contrary to the law of God. He ventured to prophesy for Ireland a great future amongst the nations of the earth.

In the evening the Most Rev. Dr. Browne, Bishop of Cloyne, who is celebrating his episcopal silver jubilee, entertained at dinner the Cardinal, Archbishops, Bishops, and clergy who attended the Church ceremonies. An address from the Urban Council to the Bishop of Cloyne was also presented, in which reference was made to his work in completing the Cathedral.

THE MARQUIS OF LONDONDERRY.

The freedom of the City of Belfast is to be conferred on the Marquis of Londonderry in commemoration of his military services during the war and his association with the province of Ulster.

FLAX-GROWING IN MEATH.

ACTION OF THE FARMERS.

INTERVIEW WITH FLAX FIRM'S REPRESENTATIVE.

Our Navan Correspondent writes, under Saturday's date:—Owing to the unfortunate dispute in the County Meath between the Meath Farmers' Union and the labourers who are members of the Irish Transport Workers' Union, the flax-growing industry in Meath is attracting the attention of the public to a far greater extent than would have been the case under normal circumstances. The labourers who are on strike are in receipt of an allowance which, in itself, would not suffice to supply their weekly requirements; consequently, they have been forced to seek other employment to supplement their "strike pay." They have been fortunate, at a crucial period, in finding this employment in the flax fields, and hence the flax-pulling industry has been figuring prominently before the public for some weeks past.

Reports have been in circulation that labourers on strike are employed in flax-pulling, and refuse to allow anyone else to participate in the work. In order to ascertain the truth or otherwise of this statement, an Irish Times representative interviewed Mr. Bett, one of the principals of the London firm who have 800 acres under flax in Meath, principally in the Navan district, this year—their first experiment in the county. Incidentally, it may be remarked that Messrs. D. D. Leech and Son, Belfast, have some 1,400 acres under the crop in Dublin, Wicklow, Kildare, and portion of Meath bordering the last-named county, and have taken over the old mills at Slane for flax-scutching. Messrs. Bett and Co., of London, have confined their industry this year to Meath. They have purchased Rossin Mills, between Drogheda and Slane, and are expending a considerable sum of money in re-building and suitably equipping the premises as a flax-scutching mill. The firm has been dealing for fifty years in flax in Russia. Russia, for reasons known to everyone, is now out of the market, and the firm has come to Meath to revive an industry that in years gone by was an important one in Ireland from Belfast to Cork.

There were 300,000 acres in Ireland under flax cultivation at the time of the American Civil War. The industry died out in the other provinces, but in Ulster it survived and was carefully fostered. The war resulted in directing the attention of the Government to this most important industry, with the consequent sequel that to-day flax-growing in Ireland promises in the near future to regain its former position, and will mean the retaining at home of a large amount of capital that in pre-war days went abroad.

The Meath Farmers' Association wrote to Mr. Bett's firm recently, stating that if they employed any labourers, members of the Transport Union, they would advise their members not to give the firm any land next season.

Asked what action his firm took, Mr. Bett replied—We ignored it. He added:—We are not farmers. We do not belong to the Association. We are manufacturers. Flax-growing is an industry of national importance. Do you think we could stand still, and with closed eyes and folded arms see our flax crop destroyed, and not employ labour? We are paying less for pulling flax than the Government paid last year. The Government fixed an award last year for flax-pulling of 1s. 1d. per stook of 12 beats. We are paying this year 1s. per stook. We employ labour from everyone who comes to us, and we are willing to teach them to pull flax. We do not want to support the Transport Union more than anyone else. We have not given a monopoly of it to anyone. Ours is a private enterprise. The Government have nothing to do with it beyond controlling the price of flax. We are a firm, he proceeded, who are open to receive everyone who will work for us. It is not true that we have only employed Transport Union men, and that the Transport Union men have got a monopoly of our business. They have not done so. We look upon flax-growing as an essential part of the industry of Ireland at the present moment, and if we let the flax crop rot we would be fools. The Farmers' Association would not compensate us for our loss. The flax-pulling started two weeks ago, and finishes to-day.

THE WAGES

Asked if it was a fact that a pound a day can be earned, Mr. Bett told our representative that an expert, who has had years of training, can earn 20s. a day pulling flax, but the ordinary worker makes from 10s. to 13s. a day. The number of hands employed varied from day to day. Between 200 and 250 were employed—including men, women, and boys and girls of 15 years upwards.

The action of the Farmers' Association, Mr. Bett said, placed the firm in a very invidious position. They had got to compete with the North. "We want to be friendly with the Association," he proceeded. "It is the Association who are trying to be enemies to us."

In closing the interview, Mr. Bett said that he would be glad to show the Editor of the Irish Times, or a representative of the paper, round the various farms where flax-pulling was in progress, where he could see the operations and the workers, and draw his own conclusions.

On inquiry in police circles our representative was informed that they had had no information of any intimidation on the part of strikers towards other labourers pulling flax.

THE "PROFITEERING" ACT.

ARRANGEMENTS BY THE BOARD OF TRADE.

The Board of Trade, in an announcement last night, says:—The "Profiteering" Act, which became law on August 19th, authorises the Board to make orders applying the Act to any article or class of articles declared by the Board to be articles of a kind in common use by the public, or material, machinery, or accessories used in production of such article. The Board intends that the provisions of the Act shall be administered by means of committees or tribunals, and for this purpose it is proposed to establish three grades of committees or tribunals—central, local, and appeal.

Two separate and distinct lines of action are contemplated—general investigation by the Central Committee into cost and profits of production and distribution of goods to which the Act has been applied; local investigation by Local Committtees (subject to appeal, as provided by the Act) to appeal tribunals into such complaints as may be made by members of the general public concerning the prices charged and profits made in the retail distribution of goods to which the Act has been applied. In any case in which investigation discloses actual profiteering prosecution may follow. It will be an instruction of the Board of Trade to all committees and tribunals established under the Act that no action shall be taken which will hamper or restrict legitimate commercial enterprise throughout the country. It is not the intention of Parliament, as expressed in the Act, to prevent any person or company from making reasonable profit on their business transactions.

The Central Committee will be presided over by Mr. McCurdy, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Food. He will be assisted by such Deputy Chairmen as may be necessary. These will be appointed by the Board of Trade. Associated Chambers of Commerce, Associations of Employers, representatives of co-operative movement, and representatives of employés, including trade unions, are being invited to suggest the names of persons suitable for appointment as members of Committee.

As regards Local Committees, it is proposed that these shall be appointed by local authorities, the expenses of such committees being met out of local rates. The Secretary for Scotland is being asked to undertake on behalf of the Board the formation of appeal tribunals for Scotland. The Irish Government is being consulted as to the application of the Act to Ireland.

THE LATE LORD RATHMORE.

On Saturday and yesterday all the steamer flags of the L.N.W.R. Company, and the official flags over the company's North Wall offices and railway station, were flown at half-mast in connection with the death of Lord Rathmore, a director and former chairman of the company. Mr. Edward Cotton, the new Irish manager of the L.N.W.R. Company, journeyed to Greenore from Dublin in connection with the funeral arrangements of the deceased nobleman.

The remains of the late Lord Rathmore, ex-Chairman of the L. and N.W. Railway Company, were transferred by the mail boat from Kingstown last evening to Holyhead, en route for London. Mr. H. G. Burgess, Ministry of Transport Representative in Ireland, and the leading Irish officials of the L. and N.W.R., attended at the Carlisle Pier and saw the remains placed on board.

SPECIAL EXTRA.

BRITISH POLICY IN TURKEY.

A Times war telegram, dated Constantinople, August 20th, says:—It is now known here that Nury Pasha's rescuers murdered the two British soldiers who were escorting him while he was taking air exercise in a suburb of Batum. The officers in charge of the party were not killed. As regards Halil Pasha, it may be asked why the Turkish authorities did not take proper steps to guard the uncle of Enver and Nury more carefully. One of his jailers was a former motor car driver of Enver himself. It is difficult to resist the conclusion that our policy in these matters, whether inspired from London or Versailles, has not been sufficiently firm. Meanwhile, with two able relatives of Enver at large, both of whom know Transcaucasia and the Eastern Province well, with Mustapha Kemal still active, and Enver very possibly lurking in Transcaucasia, the alarm of the Armenian Republic and the Armenian community in Turkey is very comprehensible. Nor is it surprising that the American officers in charge of the relief of Transcaucasia, and American educationists and others interested in the improvements of the conditions of Eastern Turkey, are much concerned as to the future, and sometimes betray a certain soreness that our evacuation of the Transcaucasia has not yet been postponed until the arrival of winter in the Armenian upland, to prevent it from being a signal for attack on the Armenian State, and, possibly, the massacres of Armenians in Eastern Anatolia.

There is an impression in some well-informed quarters here, shared by Americans, who speak with some authority on the subject, that the British Labour leaders who have been insisting upon the evacuation of Russian territory by British include Transcaucasia in Russia. It is well that British Labour should realise that if our evacuation of Transcaucasia may lead to difficulties for its bete noir, General Denikin, it might cause much more trouble to the unhappy Persians, and would almost certainly bring about the virtual destruction of the remnant of Armenia in the interests of the Turco-Kurd movement, inspired, financed, and led by murderers, and the profiteers of the Committee of Union and Progress.

NURSE CAVELL BETRAYED.

STORY OF FRENCH SPIES' TREACHERY.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent says:—The report or precis of the charges brought against Georges Gason Quien, whose trial begins to-day before the Sixth Courtmartial of the Military District of Paris, throws an interesting light on the organisation for aiding British, French, and Belgian soldiers to escape from the territories held by the Germans, into Holland, of which Edith Cavell was the central fiure. Quien, who is now 40 years of age, was serving in St. Quentin Jail his third term of imprisonment when the Germans tok possession of the town in August, 1914. He was discharged from prison on September, 1914. He found himself penniless in a town under the rigours of martial law. According to the report, Quien was not long in choosing a means of livelihood. The Germans needed spies among the French population. The Germans sent Quien ostensibly as one of a large number of civilian prisoners to Landrecies. He was allowed every liberty by his jailers, and went where he would in the town. It was there that he met a girl named Jeanne Balligan who was working for Miss Cavell's organisation, and who, in purest good faith, and supposing him to be loyal, offered to help him to escape. Up to that time the secret had been rigorously kept. The German authorities did not know that Miss Cavell's ambulance in Brussels was the headquarters of the organisation, working against them, and that the Chateau of Gellignies, belonging to Prince Reginald of Croy, who was living there with the Princess Marie, his sister, was a half-way house between the German lines, through which nearly all the fugutives passed. By working himself into the confidence of Jeanne Balligan, Quien learned the first stage of the way which led to liberty and Holland. Through one of her friends he was able to reach the Chateau of Belrignies to meet the Princess and Princes of Croy, to whom he represented himself as a French officer from Bellignies. He was passed on to Mons, with another fugitive, a certain Monsieur Motte, to the care of local agents of the Association, one of whom, Mademoselle Thuliez, is among the principal witnesses against him.

SPY MEETS MISS CAVELL.

Next day Mademoiselle Thuliez took both men to Brussels, where she introduced Quien to Miss Cavell at her hospital, in the Rue de la Culture. Quien and Motte were to stay with Miss Cavell until they left for the Dutch frontier. Quien's first step was to demand money. Miss Cavell gave him 300 francs, not without surprise that he should ask for so much. Quien remained in Brussels about a fortnight. During this time he learned to know the number of members of the organisation; and the houses and hotels where they could shelter. Miss Cavell decided to get rid of him. Madame Bodart took him to her house, where he passed the night, and the next morning she led him herself, with sixteen other fugitives, to Turnhout, where the party were transferred to another guide, who brought them through the German frontier guard into Holland without molestation. Quien thus came to know the last stages of the underground way. He had already travelled it from the Chateau Bellignies to Brussels. He now knew personally the principal members of Miss Cavell's association, had lodged in their houses, taken their money, and listened to their talk. Quien immediately returned to Brussels, this time without the aid of Miss Cavell's associates; saw Miss Cavell, who received him, according to his own account, with these words: "Unhappy man! Fly! I expect to be arrested at any moment. Go to Madame Bodart; tell her to destroy the papers she has. For it seems that her son has been arrested." This statement, the report maintains, is false.

Madame Baudart declares that Quien came to her house, accompanied by a man, whom she watched from the window, and believed to be wearing a false beard. He remained outside while Quien was in the house.

PRINCE OF WALES IN QUEBEC.

The Press Association's special correspondent, telegraphing from Quebec on August 23, says—The Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Duke of Devonshire and some of the leading men of Quebec, this afternoon visited the heights of Abraham, and placed a wreath on the monuments of General Montcalm and General Wolfe. His Royal Highness also visited the great bridge over the St. Lawrence, and unveiled tablets commemorating this work. The Prince expressed his pleasure at presiding at the inauguration of this magnificent enterprise.

The Prince also visited the Ursuline Convent, and was shown the skull of Montcalm, whose remains were deposited in the sanctuary after the battle which won Quebec for the British Empire.

OBITUARY.

MR. BARRY C. GALVIN.

Mr. Barry C. Galvin, Solicitor to Cork Corporation and Cork Port Sanitary Authority, died suddenly at Harrogate yesterday. He was a son of Mr. Daniel J. Galvin, a former Mayor of Cork, and was one of the leading solicitors in the South of Ireland. He entered the employment of Cork Corporation nearly thirty years ago as Executive Sanitary Officer, and succeeded to the Solicitorship in 1901.

THE RESIDENT MAGISTRACY.

The following appears in the Dublin Gazette, dated August 22nd:—The Lord Lieutenant has been pleased, by warrant under his hand bearing date the 16th day of August, 1919, to appoint Christopher Henry Robinson, Esq., to be an additional Resident Magistrate for the County of Meath.

FUNERAL OF MR. JOHN LAMBERT.

The funeral of Mr. John Lambert, who had been a sexton of St. Patrick's Cathedral for over 50 years, took place from the Cathedral on Saturday. Many friends of the Cathedral who had known and revered Mr. Lambert came to offer that last tribute of respect to his memory. The Service was fully choral, commencing with the Croft-Purcell Burial Sentences, the Anthem being Blest are the Departed (Spohr).

The Dean, in an address, spoke of Mr. Lambert's long service and absolute trustworthiness.

The first part of the Burial Service was sung by Rev. Canon Wilson (Treasurer), and the Service at the Cathedral concluded with the hymn, "Now the labourer's task is o'er." Mr. W. E. Hopkins presided at the organ, and as the coffin was being removed from the Cathedral he played the Dead March in Saul. The concluding portion of the Burial Service was conducted in the cemetery.

CABINET SECRETS.

MR. HENDERSON'S RUSSIAN MISSION.

HOW HE BECAME CONVERTED.

LABOUR PARTY AND IRELAND.

The Special Representative of the Press Association, telegraphing from Widnes on Saturday, says:—The event of to-day in the contest for the Parliamentary representation of the Widnes Division was a speech by Mr. Arthur Henderson, delivered to a large audience in the Alexandra Theatre. The Labour candidate had caused it to be known that he intended on the occasion of this, his first, mass meeting to reply to alleged personal attacks made upon him, and this, no doubt, led to an accentuation of public interest in the fixture, which had been very extensively billed.

Mr. Henderson began by a refence to certain indications throughout the constituency, and these he described as proof that his opponents had "got the wind up." Instead of carrying on an educative propaganda, the other side were engaging in a campaign of malicious, calumnious misrepresentation and abuse. The last thing that he would do would be to dabble in the filth of political electioneering. The stigma sought to be attached to him was that he was a "Pacifist." He was prepared to face the issue, and to test it. If he succeeded, I use an unparliamentary phrase, and say that it is a damned lie that is being circulated, I hope that you will pardon the emphasis of the words. Mr. Sexton, who is on the platform, says that the phrase is justified. I agree with him.

THE ASQUITH CABINET.

The first witness whom he proposed to call, Mr. Henderson continued, was Mr. Asquith, of whose Cabinet he was a member in the early days of the war. While that Cabinet was in office one of the things that they had to do was to build up the Armies, and he met that noble soldier, the late Lord Kitchener, with the leader of the trade union movement when it was found that all their efforts at voluntary recruiting were insufficient. Were Lord Derby on that platform he would state whether he (the candidate) was a "Pacifist." From no man in the country had he received such expressions of gratitude as he had received from Lord Derby for help in making his scheme the success that it was. Certain papers knew that—some of his friends in the advance Labour movement were against him—and they came out with such headlines as "Mr. Arthur Henderson, the Real Labour Leader," "Mr. Arthur Henderson, the Labour Statesman." How, then, could he be a "Pacifist"? Mr. Asquith's Cabinet came to an end, and it was decided to run the country with a special Cabinet of five—(A Voice—"Orangemen," and laughter)—with Mr. Lloyd George at their head. Mr. Lloyd George at once determined that he could not run such a Cabinet without one representative of Labour, and to himself Mr. Lloyd George extended a personal invitation to become a member. He accepted, and during the early months of that Cabinet he assisted to the best of his ability in trying to win the war.

THE MISSION TO RUSSIA.

In 1917 the Cabinet unanimously decided, in his absence, to ask him to go on a mission to Russia, and he went to Russia. The people that least liked his going to Russia were the Bolshevists. The people who had most to say against his going to Russia, and the people who had had most to say against him since, were the Bolshevists. It was a curious thing that the Unionists in this and other parts of the country wished to throw him, body and soul, to those who disowned him. (Laughter.) When I went to Russia, Mr. Henderson continued, I was opposed to what is known as the Stockholm Conference, and my chief, Mr. Lloyd George, was in favour of it. I went to Russia, and I got converted. I came to two conclusions—one was that we must revise the secret treaties. The Russians who met me, said Mr. Henderson, said: "We must have the secret treaties revised." I asked: Why? They said: "When you handed over Constantinople to the Tsar, what did you get? When you handed over Constantinople, what did France get? When you handed over Constantinople to the Tsar, what did Italy get for going into the war?" "These things," said they, "are inconsistent with the principles of the revolution; therefore, we must have them revised, so that we may know that, in carrying on the war, we will be fighting for the principles of the revolution." The next thing I found out was that they wanted a Stockholm Conference, a negotiating Conference. I said that I would have nothing to do with any negotiating Conference, and yet my opponent in this contest in one of his speeches has actually said that I was prepared to go into a Conference and negotiate at the back of the Government. I ask my opponent now, at this my first public meeting in Widnes, to formulate that statement into a definite charge. If he will formulate it into a definite charge, I will meet him on any platform in this town. He can then state his case, and I will present my defence, and we will allow the electors of the Widnes Division to be the judges. (Cheers.) These Russians wanted a conference of negotiation. I would not have such a conference, and I came back, my work being done.

ANOTHER SECRET.

I am going to let you into another secret. When I went to Russia I went possessing the power to send the then Ambassador home at the end of a fortnight, and to take his job at £8,000 a year. I made up my mind that a decision would have been taken before I reached London, and that it would be most unfair for me to ask the Ambassador to return home. I wrote back to London suggesting that I should return to London, and that he should remain at his post. If I have been the mean, despicable, unprincipled politician that they are now trying to make me out to be, I could have resided in Russia at £8,000 a year, or, failing to do that, I could have returned, and, instead of saying anything about Stockholm or about revising secret treaties, or about my Russian experience or conversion, I could have gone on with my work in the Cabinet, and I could have been keeping till now my £5,000 a year. But that £5,000 a year would have been covered up in a napkin containing my principles, and would have been no good to me. I refused to do anything of the kind. (Loud cheers.)

WHY HE RESIGNED.

My friend, Mr. Sexton, knows what occurred at the first conference held after my return from Russia. You will find that there was a recommendation of the National Executive of the Labour Party that we should be prepared to have a conference at Stockholm, provided that everybody was prepared to make it a conference for the purpose of consultation, and consultation only. Because we could not agree with regard to this position, I tendered my resignation. My resignation was accepted, and I want in the most emphatic way to challenge and contradict a statement that I read in one of the newspapers to-day, that when I returned from Petrograd my resignation was asked for. I deny that absolutely. My resignation never was asked for. My resignation was tendered voluntarily and freely, because I found that the difference of policy between my colleagues and myself was so great that it was very much better for me, having the choice offered to me. I believed that, the situation was such that I could not remain Secretary to the Labour Party and continue a member of the War Cabinet, holding views that I did. I, therefore, decided to sacrifice my £5,000 a year and stand by my party and my principles. (Cheers.) On the question of "Pacificism," Mr. Henderson asked whether the war could have been run from 1914 until the closing of 1916 without Mr. Lloyd George knowing whether he was a "Pacifist" or not. He read an extract containing the Premier's own testimony to the services rendered by him as a member of the War Cabinet.

LABOUR AND IRELAND.

Speaking on his programme generally, Mr. Henderson urged the need for increased production, and spoke also on the subject of the nationalisation of coal mines. If ever Labour was given the opportunity, redress of Irish grievances would be one of the first tasks that a Labour Government would take in hand.

During the latter days of the week there has been a considerable output of electioneering literature observable from the central offices of both Mr. Fisher and Mr. Henderson, and, as much of this is pictorial, the walls are assuming an aspect strongly reminiscent of war-time. The Unionist candidate has arranged for two main gatherings during the coming week in the St. Helens district. He has experienced some opposition at the smaller meetings while dealing with such topics as "profiteering," nationalisation, and problems connected with tariffs and preference. Exception was taken to a statement of the candidate, that, while the Army was fighting the German, the miners were exploiting the people of this country by striking for higher pay. He regards nationalisation of the mines as impossible to carry out successfully, and is opposed to nationalisation of the land, for the reason that he has seen this attempted in a very modern democratic country and break down as recently as 1912.

Both candidates are receiving a deputation on the subject of police reinstatement.

UNIONIST CANDIDATE'S CHALLENGE.

TO DEBATE THE ISSUES IN PUBLIC.

Telegraphing on Sunday, the Press Association's correspondent says that the following is the text of a letter written by Mr. F. M. B. Fisher, the Unionist candidate, to Mr. Arthur Henderson, the Labour candidate:—

Conservative Club,
Liverpool, 23rd August, 1919, 6.30 p.m.

DEAR MR. HENDERSON,—My attention has just been directed to some remarks made in your speech this afternoon. You are apparently under the impression that I have been guilty of making a personal attack upon your candidature behind your back. Had I done so I would have earned your censure, but I am glad to be able to assure you that I have said not one word respecting your candidature which I would not more gladly say in your presence. I do not believe that you ought to be returned to Parliament; if only on the ground of your attitude towards your colleagues, and after—and I emphasise the word after—your return from Russia, when the Prime Minister found it necessary to demand your resignation. Apart from this, there are other issues of great public moment upon which your views and mine are widely divergent. Under these circumstances, I venture to suggest that you and I should share a public platform in Widnes. The admission shall be by ticket, one half the tickets shall be at your disposal and one half at mine. We would, of course, share the expenses. We shall suggest one name each for the position of chairman, and settle the issue by ballot. We shall discuss politics only. There shall be no questions; no resolutions shall be put to the meeting. We shall leave the audience free to judge between you and me. Each speaker shall have two turns of twenty minutes, and shall ballot who starts. This will settle the question of personalities, and leave us a clear field for the free discussion of matters of national and international importance. A letter, addressed to me here, will receive attention.—Yours, truly,

F. M. B. FISHER.

The foregoing letter was communicated to the Press Association representative for publication, with the following comment from an official source:—

At a previous meeting, addressed by Mr. Fisher last Wednesday, he offered to share a platform with any one of his opponents for the purpose of debating the issues of the election. On Saturday, the 23rd, after reading in a local newspaper a summarised report of the first part of Mr. Henderson's speech, dealing with the personal abuse of which the Labour candidate complained, Mr. Fisher wrote the letter as set out. This Mr. Fisher did before he had read, or heard, of the offer contained in the latter part of Mr. Henderson's speech. The letter was sent by registered post, and addressed to Mr. Henderson, Central Committee Rooms at Widnes.

EAST ANTRIM.

MR. HANNA, M.P., AND UNIONIST ASSOCIATION.

Addressing a meeting of his constituents at Ballyclare, Mr. George B. Hanna, M.P., said that when they returned him as their member in accordance with what he knew was their feelings, he reported to his leader, Sir Edward Carson, his desire that he should honour that constituency by introducing him in the House. He never had any quarrel with Sir Edward Carson or his policy. The only quarrel he had was that a handful of people, calling themselves by whatever name they liked, should dictate as to whom they should send to Parliament. Arising out of the representations he made he was asked to delay the taking of his seat so that the spirit which the ladies had manifested in their speeches might permeate. During the time they were waiting there was to be no activity on the part of the East Antrim Unionist Association, or on the part of those committees who worked so well for him. "I say here, advisedly and deliberately," continued Mr. Hanna, "that the meeting that was held here, supposed to be the annual general meeting of the East Antrim Unionist Association, was held against the wish of the leader, Sir Edward Carson, and all the Ulster Unionist party. (Hear, hear.) And when I heard on the Wednesday that they had held their meeting, that they had appointed their officers, and that they had put my name off—(laughter)—I took my seat as your member in the House on the next day." (Applause.) Proceeding, Mr. Hanna said that he wanted the co-operation of every Unionist man and woman in the constituency in the formation of a Unionist Association where the voice of the people would be heard and answered.

TO FINANCE IRISH HOUSING.

HUGE SUMS REPORTED TO BE AVAILABLE.

Mr. J. S. Kelly, T.C., has forwarded to the Press a copy of a letter which Alderman J. J. Kelly has addressed to Alderman Thomas Kelly, Chairman of the Corporation Housing Committee. In the course of his letter, Alderman J. J. Kelly states that he has been in London for some time in connection with the National Development Company of Ireland, Limited, which has completed arrangements with a large trust, which is composed of American and Scottish people, who have large sums available for investment. Continuing, he says:—"We complete arrangements yesterday (August 21) for £150,000,000 to be used for housing in Ireland. This money will be lent out through the County, District, and Urban Councils, and will be repayable out of the rates at 5 per cent. per annum, which pays both principal and interest. This 5 per cent would be repayable for 50 years, when the principal and interest would be extinguished." The letter asks Alderman Kelly to have a special committee called to put the matter before them.

CO. MEATH LABOUR DISPUTE.

Settlement in Sight.

A conference representative of the interests concerned in the agricultural labour dispute in County Meath, which was convened by the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction with a view to an endeavour to avert the danger to the harvest and the food supply involved through a continuance of the dispute, was held at the Department's offices on Saturday. There is every reason to hope for a successful outcome from the conference.

TULLAMORE BAKERS' DEMANDS.

Owing to a threatened strike by their bakers, Messrs. Thomas English and J. A. Lumley, master bakers, applied to Mr. G. B. Butler, R.M., at Tullamore Petty Sessions, on Saturday, for permission to increase the price of the 2lb. loaf from 4½d. to 5d., and the 4lb. loaf from 9d. to 10d.

In making the application, Mr. Thomas Conway, solicitor, stated that the bakers demanded an increase of 14s. per man per week on their present wages, which was 45s. per week, and when the demand was refused a strike became imminent, but in order to prevent the people of the town being left without bread the employers eventually agreed to the 14s. increase, pending a licence to increase the price of the loaf.

The Resident Magistrate said that he would take a few days to consider the application.

SOUTH WESTMEATH ROAD LABOURERS.

Road labourers in South Westmeath working under the County Council have struck work for a minimum wage of £2 a week.

DEDICATION OF WAR MEMORIAL

IN ST. BARNABAS' PARISH CHURCH.

At the Morning Service in St. Barnabas' Parish Church, Dublin, yesterday, Rev. Chancellor Hemphill, D.D., dedicated a war memorial, which has been placed in the church to those parishioners who died on active service in the war. The memorial is in the form of a mural tablet, inscribed—"Erected by the Parish of St. Barnabas, in grateful memory of the following parishioners who died on active service in the great war," with the names of twelve men who made the supreme sacrifice, and the text from 1 Cor. xv., 54, "Death is swallowed up in victory."

The Rev. Chancellor Hemphill having solemnly dedicated the memorial, the Last Post was sounded by Bugler George Gerty, and Mr. W. H. Henn, organist, played the Dead March.

There was a very large congregation present, and the Rev. Chancellor Hemphill preached an impressive sermon from Revelation xv., 2, "And I saw as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire; and them that had gotten the victory over the beast, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name, stand on the sea of glass, having the harps of God." In the course of his sermon he said that they had come together in God's house for a very special and particular purpose, and that was to thank God for twelve heroes who were once members of that congregation, but who were now, as they hoped, enjoying the blessings of the saints in light. These twelve men had belonged to that parish or neighbourhood, and he thought that many of them never expected that the time would come when they would be acclaimed as heroes, or when they would be obliged to bear arms on behalf of their country. Most of them were ordinary civilians, but one of them, who fell at the battle of Mons, at the beginning of the war, belonged to the old Army. To those who did not belong to the old Army the same call came, and these men cheerfully and willingly went forth to do battle on behalf of the right. They loved not their lives unto death. Those twelve men, having made the supreme sacrifice, did not come back when the Army passed on the day of the Peace Celebrations: they slept in foreign lands, but they were not lost to memory. They had raised to themselves the greatest and most glorious monument which could be raised to anyone, and that was the success of the cause for which they fought. Their real monument—that monument which would never be wiped off the face of the earth, much less wiped off the page of history—was victory. They saved civilisation; they rescued the Empire, they won a splendid, a complete, and an almost incredibly astonishing victory. That victory cost the community something truly incalculable. He would speak only of 800,000 British lives that had to be given up for that victory. That number was only a part, as they knew, of the lives sacrificed, but it was a preponderating part—nearly a million lives—given in order to secure victory for civilization. These twelve men—twelve heroes who had been connected with that congregation of St. Barnabas'—went to make up the number of that 800,000. They poured out their souls unto death. There were there those who sorrowed for them: there were sighing and tears; homes that were desolate and hearts that ached, but that day they were reminded that there was another side to the picture—

There is a land of pure delight,
 Where saints immortal reign;
Infinite day excludes the night,
 And pleasures banish pain.
There everlasting spring abides,
 And never-withering flowers;
Death like a narrow sea divides
 That heavenly land from ours."

Those men were enjoying that everlasting spring and the never-withering flowers, and the members of that church liked to have their names in the sanctuary that they loved, to hand down to coming generations. The memorial was worked by a soldier, a member of the congregation, who himself had been wounded, and that would be an outward and visible sign of the blessing, and the peace, and the rest now entered into by those who fought the good fight, finished their course, and kept the faith. There was Scriptural authority, as they were aware, for having the names of those heroes inscribed in the House of God—"The high priest was wont to go into the Holy of Holies once a year to make atonement for the sins of the whole people, and on his breast he wore twelve precious gems, each inscribed with the name of one of the tribes of the people that he loved." He had spoken of their twelve heroes as being in the land of peace and blessing, and only a narrow stream divided that land from us. That stream was bridged in the Isle of Patmos, and St. John gave a description of it. There was no abstract idea of victory in St. John's mind: he saw a distinct and clear picture of the conquerors, and when they thought of victory they did not think of it in an abstract way. They remembered that it had been won out of the blood and tears of their own dear kith and kin. They remembered that victory came to them through the loyalty and valour, the perseverance and the endurance of their men—their own flesh and blood; and it was through those men whose names would continue on the walls of that church for many generations that God gave them that victory. Nothing could be too great for them to do to keep green and fresh the memory of those victors through whom their people had been secured in their liberty and in their civilisation.

After the sermon the congregation sang the National Anthem, and the concluding hymn was "For all the Saints who from their labours rest."

LEOPARDSTOWN.

(BY OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

On Saturday afternoon the first act of Dublin's August social drama was presented at Leopardstown before a large and important gathering, to which most of the Irish counties had contributed their quota. A pleasant breeze tempered the atmosphere, and the sun shone gaily at intervals, showing up the beauty of the landscape, which always is at its best in the early autumn.

The generally expressed hope that the Lord Lieutenant might be present was not fulfilled, but a small party from the Viceregal Lodge, with the Chief Secretary and Mrs. Macpherson, occupied the Viceregal stand, which, however, looked somewhat triste without the gay draperies and flowers on the balcony and the Union Jack fluttering from the flag staff, significant details which always betoken the presence of the Viceroy. Colour was also lacking in the scene on the lawn, where the latest fashions were, as a rule, interpreted in neutral tints and dark tones, while the vivid hues which were the striking features of the Ascot and Goodwood toilettes were reserved except in a few instances for lending effective touches to sombre costumes, which were chiefly of the tailor-made order. Hats and parasols were also of subdued shades, but, perhaps, Dame Fashion has been holding back pour mieux sauter in a riot of colour this week, a reaction which will be very welcome after the more or less drab outlook of the past five years.

Amongst the noticeable toilettes was Mrs. Wyndham Quin's navy blue cloth costume, trimmed with loops of ribbon, placed like a number of little flounces round the skirt, which was fashioned on the new straight and narrow lines; Mrs. Macpherson was in mourning, and wore a very large black hat, with a draped black charmeuse gown; Lady Decies, in white crêpe de chine, with a picturesque black hat with lovely ospreys, and black fox furs, was with Lord Decies, their journey to America having been postponed for a week; the Hon. Lady McCalmont, in a mole silk costume and hat of the same shade, was taking a keen interest in the racing; Mrs. Van Cutsem, who was escorted by Sir John and Captain Arnott, wore one of the new knitted silk overdresses in shot gold and black, with a black satin skirt, and toque with black and white ospreys; Mrs. Lindsay Fitzpatrick was dressed in black, with a smart hat; and a lovely satin foulard gown, surmounted by a sapphire blue satin cloak, was worn by Mrs. Haig, who came with Colonel Haig; Colonel and Mrs. Cecil Perry, the Dowager Lady Grace, with Sir Valentine Grace and his daughter. Mrs. McCulloch and Miss Evans were amongst the groups on the lawn; Mrs. Alfred West, wearing a costume of deep mushroom charmeuse, with a toque to match; Mrs. Harry Jackson's black hat, with cerise pink ostrich feathers, was worn with a black and white striped suit; Lady Milbanke wore a tabac tweed tailor-made costume with the newest fashioned skirt, and a toque of plumage of the same shade; Mrs. Clement Gore and her sister-in-law, Mrs. S. Saunderson, came with Mr. Percy La Touche from Harristown; the Earl of Enniskillen, the Lord Chancellor, Lord Castlemaine, and General Waldron were strolling about with friends in the intervals between the races; Mrs. Waldron was wearing a mole cloth tunic over black satin, with lines of shaded silk tracery. With her were Miss Minnie Fitzgerald, in a grey costume, with a grey hat, and Mrs. Deering wearing a striped black suit and a red hat. Lady Mary Kirk, one of last week's brides, came with her husband, and looked very pretty in a dark blue costume, with a swathed belt of bright regal blue satin and feathers of the same hue, lying fringe fashion on the brim of her hat; Mrs. Henry Guinness, who brought a party, was in a navy-blue cloth tailor-made coat and skirt, with fox furs and a brown hat; Mrs. Sheridan, in a fawn suit and black, was with her brother, Major C. Walker; Miss Hughes had a navy blue suit, with a dark purple hat; Mrs. Dames-Longworth, in black and saxe blue crêpe de chine, with a big black hat, brought Miss Dames Longworth, dressed in navy blue cloth; Captain and Mrs. Keith brought their little son and Miss Pim; Mrs. Caldecott, in pale mauve voile, printed with purple pansies, was accompanied by her daughter, who wore a cream coloured gown, with faint blue embroideries; Captain and Mrs. Woods, Sir Horace Plunkett, General Sir J. Byrne, Colonel Day were watching the sport from the members' stand; Mrs. Day was in white cloth, with a knitted jumper of a becoming shade of red; the smartest jumper seen in the enclosure was of oriental patterned printed satin, edged with deep grey silk fringe, and worn over a skirt of Indian red material. Colonel and Mrs. Fowle were present, the latter wearing a shepherds plaid coat and skirt, with a white hat and veil; Dr. O'Reilly, Mrs. O'Reilly, whose black costume was brightened with fine gold embroidery, and a band of gold gauze ribbon round her black hat; Sir James and Lady Murphy brought a party; Mrs. Stewart wore a light striped tailor-made; and Miss Stewart, blue cloth; Major and Mrs. Bryan Cooper, Mrs. Ferrier and party; Miss Bellaney, in a navy blue costume, came with Mr. E. Bellaney; the Misses Hamilton, Captain and Mrs. Sullivan, Right Hon. Frank Brooke, Major and Mrs. Bury Barry, the Misses French, Mrs. Hugh Moore and party; Colonel Clarke, Major Litton, Mr. Domvile, Major Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Brereton Molony, the latter in a very smart black and white toilette, and a big hat, with osprey; Major Roberts, Mr. J. Vernon, Mrs. Woodlock, Miss Joynt, Mr. de B. Tombe, Mr. and Miss Dudgeon, Mr. and Mrs. Evans, Mrs. and Miss Daly, Mr. Maher, Mr. Maxwell Arnott, Mr. Hughes, Mr. Courtenay, Captain Tuthill, Mr. Alfred West. There was a number of officers from all the regiments in the Dublin and Curragh Garrisons, as well as from the Royal Air Force, while the uniforms of the Indian Cavalry, and several other overseas forces, were also to be seen, the gathering being thoroughly representative of the sporting side of Ireland.

COLLECTING TILLAGE STATISTICS.

Under the direction of the Department of Agriculture quite a large number of men are now engaged throughout the country in collecting statistics of the areas which each farmer has under grain this year. These statistics are authorised by the Corn Production Act, so that the Government may be in a position to judge accurately what amount of compensation a farmer is entitled to if the price of grain falls below that which has been fixed, and published in the Gazette.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS.

STOCKS CLOSED STRONG.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, SATURDAY.

Stocks opened irregular, but Specialities of various classes continued to advance under week-end covering, on the belief that the market had discounted the labour threats, and eventually turned strong, Motors and their Specialities being the feature. Oils and Shipping rose 1 to 5 points, and Metal descriptions and others 1 to 3. Steel Common, however, went up only a fraction, and Rails were apathetic. The closing was strong.

GOLIATH AEROBUS SAFE.

A Casablanca telegram of Sunday says—The safety of the Goliath aerobus and passengers and crew is officially confirmed by a telegram from Dakar. The missing men were found at a point exactly 90 miles north of St. Louis. The machine was only one hour's distance from St. Louis when it was obliged to descend for some reason not yet explained. The smashing of the propeller made it impossible to resume the flight.

Lotus
PURCHASERS of Lotus and Delta shoes always find the price they ought to pay on the soles, branded there with a hot die in plain though small figures.
Prices are fixed not by the sellers but by the makers of Lotus and Delta and profit is based on a percentage that is lower now than it was before the war.
The percentage of profit is lower because prices are higher than they were in 1914.
This way of pricing effectually stops all speculating and profiteering with Lotus and Delta.
A further safeguard for the public against speculation is the fact that all Lotus and Delta are sent never through middlemen but always direct from factory to shops.

It is a very valuable food as well as a prime luxury. One ounce added to a pint of milk multiplies its own weight in food value. And the flavour! The captivating flavour that it imparts to rhubarb, fruits, tarts, &c., places these dishes in quite another category. You just try it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

AMALGAMATION OF DIOCESES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—"Sigma," in your issue of to-day, states as a reason for not amalgamating the Diocese of Meath with that of Dublin (or any other) that the Bishop of Meath takes precedence of the other Irish bishops, and is the only bishop styled "Most Reverend." All faithful children of our Church will realise that this reason, apart from any other, must render amalgamation unthinkable. What would happen to the Church of Ireland if some wretch, destitute of all religious principle, were to address a Bishop of Meath as "Right Reverend," or—monstrous thought—as plain "sir"?

We live in dangerous times, and it is to be hoped that the clergy and laity of all our dioceses will resist to the uttermost any proposal which—whatever improvement it might effect in the incomes of the former—would tend to rob our bishops of those titles (or any portion thereof) which were, doubtless, borne by the earliest bishops, Peter and his fellow-Apostles.—Yours, etc.,

"CHURCH OF IRELAND LAYMAN."

Dublin, August 23rd, 1919.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It is a pity that your correspondent "Nemo" did not disclose his identity in writing on the above subject in Thursday's issue. He seems to regard Meath Diocese as a sort of limited company, with no soul, subject to compulsory liquidation. He may, however, rest assured that his view is not shared by many—if any—people in the country. The business of the premier bishopric of Ireland cannot be treated as an appendage to that of the Diocese of Dublin, and transacted satisfactorily with the aid of "a first-class shorthand clerk and typist" in "an hour in the morning" to "clear up letters."

It is a gratuitous insult to the Dean and Archdeacon of Meath to imply, as your correspondent seems to imply, that they receive their emoluments for doing nothing, and it is illogical to infer, because past Bishops of Meath have lived part of the year in Dublin, that on that account the centre of Church life for Meath ought to be in Dublin in the future.—Yours, etc.,

F. BONYNGE.

Rathconnell Rectory, Westmeath,
August 23rd, 1919.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The letter of "Nemo" focuses attention on a definite opportunity presented to those in whose hands the power lies of putting into practice one, at any rate, of the remedial proposals so often proclaimed in public and with applause. Now, surely, something might be done to prevent the occurrence of this possible amalgamation from being overwhelmed with objections. If one is to judge by the facts of the case, Meath Diocese ought to be merged into union with Dublin Diocese. In addition to the cogent reasons enumerated by "Nemo," it is quite likely that the clergy, etc., of Meath Diocese would neither be, nor consider themselves to be, neglected if they were to find themselves under the jurisdiction of the Archbishop of Dublin. Probably, as suggested, if this chief overseer were to procure the services of a first-class shorthand clerk and typist, he would not find that his correspondence and other episcopal duties would be a dragging burden, even if he were fascinated by the call of political and national demands.—Yours, etc.,

A WORKING MAN'S BUDGET.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Will you allow me to detail the budget of a Donegal family of five—husband, wife, and three children, of nine, eleven, and thirteen years—living in a Government cottage, at 1s. 9d. per week? The husband's wages are 30s. per week, with no food. In this case both husband and wife have hobbies: the husband's Sunday afternoons from March to October are spent looking after his bees. From his three hives he last year took 140lbs. of honey, sold 100lbs. at 2s. per lb., and kept 40lbs. for his own table. The wife keeps poultry, twenty hens, and ten runner ducks. She has, on an average, four dozen hen eggs to sell weekly, and, from October to May, three or four dozen duck eggs as well. She averages well over £1 per week all the year round and, allowing the generous amount of 10s. per week for feeding, she makes £26 per year from her poultry, as well as giving her husband two new laid eggs for breakfast every day. Further, she rears four flocks of chickens each season, and the roosters from these provide many substantial dinners for her family. The "crocs" (as the pullets are called in Donegal) replace her hens, and these she sells to the passing "fowlman" at 5s. each. In addition, she has two good goats, and gets from them, on an average, three pints of the best of milk daily all the year.

As well as this, the three boys earned a substantial sum—in June, gathering gooseberries (for the writer) at 1s. per stone; in August, "lifting" flax and gathering flax-bands; and in September, gathering blackberries for a local shop at 3s. per stone, and later gathering sloes at 2s. a stone. So prosperous were they that the whole family had a new outfit and spent a week at Bundoran, and closed the year with a good round sum in "the stocking." In this family all the children are boys. I know of girls under fifteen earning from 15s. to 25s. per week for "sprigging."

There is no poverty in rural Donegal at least, and, with "the mind to do," existence need not be one long sordid struggle to keep body and soul together.—Yours, etc.,

"FLORA."

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS: A GUIDE TO APPLICANTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Under this heading, in your issue of Friday last, the following appears:—"Civil Liabilities Commission, 33 Molesworth street, Dublin, assists men who, by reason of their service in the recent war, are unable to resume their pre-war occupation." May I set out the following rules as to the proper channels through which applications should be made? Ignorance of these is at present causing delay and disappointment to deserving men:—

I. Where the pre-enlistment occupation can be resumed if financial help is provided, apply to the Commissioners of the Military Services (Civil Liabilities) Committee for the province in which the applicant resides. The applications must be on Form "A" or "B," obtainable at all post offices.

II. Where, by reason of disability, the pre-enlistment occupation cannot be resumed, and financial help is needed in order to adopt a new occupation, apply—(a) Ex-officers, to Military Services (Civil Liabilities) Committee, Savoy place, Victoria Embankment, London, W.C.2, stating the facts of the case, and asking for appropriate form of application; (b) other ranks, to Local War Pensions Committee for the district in which the applicant resides. The Local Committee will supply the necessary form "C," and investigate the application.—Yours, etc.,

G. W. SHANNON, Barrister-at-Law, Commissioner for Leinster.

TO-DAY'S RECIPE
REPLACE MEAT WITH OMELETTES.
Making an omelette is as easy as roasting a joint once you know how. Try this recipe:
SAVOURY OMELETTES.
Half oz. Brown & Polson's Corn Flour. Half teaspoon each salt, pepper and made mustard. Half teacupful milk. 2 eggs. Half oz. lard.
Mix Corn Flour to a smooth cream with a little milk, bring the remainder to the boil, pour in the Corn Flour; boil for 5 minutes, stirring, allow to cool. Separate egg yolks from whites and beat them in basin; add seasonings and the cooked Corn Flour, beating well. Beat egg whites to a stiff froth, with pinch of salt, and add to mixture.
Heat the lard in omelette pan and pour in omelette. Shake the pan gently over the fire till the underside is nicely browned, then hold in front of the fire till the top is brown. Fold over and serve on hot plate at once.

DUBLIN HORSE SHOW.

A VARIED AND INTERESTING WEEK.

The Royal Dublin Society's Horse Show, which begins to-morrow at the Ballsbridge premises, promises to be a memorable one. Its revival after a lapse of six years is looked forward to with the most pleasurable anticipation. This is amply evidenced by the great numbers of people who have already arrived in Dublin, and are now accommodated in all the city hotels, boarding-houses, and other places where they have been fortunate enough to secure rooms for the week. Interest in the great carnival, indeed, was never keener. Notwithstanding the lapse of a few years, it still retains the popularity associated with the event in the past, and now in the piping days of peace one may look forward to its becoming once more the great annual engagement that it was in the fashionable and sporting world. Horse Show week in Dublin has been usually attended with fine weather, a factor that means a great deal in regard to the success of any outdoor fixture, but particularly so in respect to an event of such importance as the Horse Show, associated with which, as is well known, there are so many other interesting events and functions—business, social, and sporting. There are all the indications that this week's carnival will be equally well favoured, and the hope of everyone whose intention is to take the road to Ballsbridge is that the Clerk of the Weather will remain in the good humour he has displayed for the past few weeks.

During the week-end there was a further influx of visitors into the city, rail, road, and steamer each bringing its quota. Cross-Channel visitors are extremely numerous, and the American accent is heard on all sides, while Canadians are in our midst in large numbers. Our cousins from across the "pond" seem bent on enjoying themselves. Already a number of the horses competing at the Show have arrived at Ballsbridge, where much interest was shown on Saturday at the detraining of the animals. The classes are all well filled. The annual sales of horses are another important feature in connection with the Show. Messrs. Goff's auctions will take place on the grounds. They will commence with an afternoon sale to-morrow at 2.30 o'clock, and on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday at 10 a.m. sharp. Messrs. Sewell's sales will take place at their repository, the first being to-morrow at 11 o'clock; Thursday, 11 o'clock; Friday, 10 o'clock; Friday, 5 o'clock; Saturday, 10 o'clock. Visitors should note that the sale of season tickets for the Show closes to-day, after which they will be increased in price by 25 per cent. These season tickets are on sale at Leinster House.

As is usual, there are many and varied attractions, apart from the Show itself, provided for visitors and holiday-seekers during the coming week. To-day the sport-loving public will patronise the Leopardstown Races. The horse-jumping competitions on each day of the Show—always a big feature—will, no doubt, attract extensive patronage, and on Friday and Saturday there will be races at Phœnix Park. On the latter day also there will be a polo tournament at the Nine Acres, and interesting cricket fixtures will be played off during the week. Special programmes have been arranged by the theatres and picture houses, and carnivals are being held in Donnybrook and Fairview. The arrangements made by the various railway companies for the carrying of both passengers and live-stock are excellent in all the circumstances. In the social sense there will be many interesting gatherings. Many distinguished people are amongst the house parties formed, and society will be splendidly represented at the Show.

HOUSE OF INDUSTRY HOSPITALS, DUBLIN.

MR. BONAR LAW'S REPLY TO MR. DEVLIN.

Mr. Joseph Devlin, M.P., has received the following letter from Mr. Bonar Law:—

11 Downing street, Whitehall, S.W.,
21st August, 1919.

DEAR MR. DEVLIN,—As I promised in my letter of the 2nd August, I have carefully looked into the points raised in the statement forwarded with your letter of the 29th July with reference to the House of Industry Hospitals in Dublin. The contention that under the Hospitals (Dublin) Act of 1856 these hospitals are Government institutions is, I think, incorrect. The grants to Dublin hospitals are made in pursuance of the obligations of the Act of Union to provide for charitable purposes in Ireland not less than the average amount granted by the Irish Parliament from 1794 to 1800. Under this Act a grant of £7,600 a year has been made to the four hospitals in question. The Treasury has always held the settlement of 1856 to be final.

I would particularly refer you to Lord Crawford's statement on the whole matter, made in the House of Lords on the 13th of August.

In all the circumstances, I fear that the Treasury cannot be expected to give any additional assistance to these institutions, and that their continued existence must depend on what support may be forthcoming from the local community.—Yours very truly,

(Signed) A. BONAR LAW.

THE ALLIANCE AND DUBLIN CONSUMERS' GAS COMPANY EXCURSION.

The first annual excursion and sports of the Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Company was held on Saturday at the Murrough, Co. Wicklow, through the generosity of the directors. The party, consisting of over 350, left Westland Row in a special train, accompanied by Messrs. J. L. Scallan, W. Fottrell, and A. Bond (directors), W. J. Grey (secretary), E. V. Lowry (superintendent), W. Dumbleton (works manager). On arrival at Wicklow the party proceeded to the Murrough, where during the day sports were indulged in. A pleasant programme of music was supplied by St. James's Brass and Reed Band, under the baton of Mr. M. Farrell. During lunch, which was supplied by Messrs. Kidds, Ltd., Nassau street, Mr. E. J. Butler conveyed a hearty vote of thanks to the directors for their great kindness in providing such a pleasant outing. Mr. J. L. Scallan, replying on behalf of the directors, said he was very pleased to see all the members of the party meeting on the same level. Mr. Grey also spoke, expressing the wish that many more happy outings so auspiciously commenced would be repeated in the future, and commented on the admirable organisation displayed by the various committees responsible for the outing.

Lotus

PURCHASERS of Lotus and Delta shoes always find the price they ought to pay on the soles, branded there with a hot die in plain though small figures.

Prices are fixed not by the sellers but by the makers of Lotus and Delta and profit is based on a percentage that is lower now than it was before the war.

The percentage of profit is lower because prices are higher than they were in 1914.

This way of pricing effectually stops all speculating and profiteering with Lotus and Delta.

A further safeguard for the public against speculation is the fact that all Lotus and Delta are sent never through middlemen but always direct from factory to shops.

IF you are one of the few who have not yet tasted it you really must ask your grocer to send you a trial packet or tin to-day.

It will prove a revelation to you as it has done to others who—until they had used THOMPSON'S—thought they had tasted custard at its best.

It is a very valuable food as well as a prime luxury. One ounce added to a pint of milk multiplies its own weight in food value. And the flavour! The captivating flavour that it imparts to rhubarb, fruits, tarts, &c., places these dishes in quite another category. You just try it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

AMALGAMATION OF DIOCESES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—"Sigma," in your issue of to-day, states as a reason for not amalgamating the Diocese of Meath with that of Dublin (or any other) that the Bishop of Meath takes precedence of the other Irish bishops, and is the only bishop styled "Most Reverend." All faithful children of our Church will realise that this reason, apart from any other, must render amalgamation unthinkable. What would happen to the Church of Ireland if some wretch, destitute of all religious principle, were to address a Bishop of Meath as "Right Reverend," or—monstrous thought—as plain "sir"?

We live in dangerous times, and it is to be hoped that the clergy and laity of all our dioceses will resist to the uttermost any proposal which—whatever improvement it might effect in the incomes of the former—would tend to rob our bishops of those titles (or any portion thereof) which were, doubtless, borne by the earliest bishops, Peter and his fellow-Apostles.—Yours, etc.,

"CHURCH OF IRELAND LAYMAN."

Dublin, August 23rd, 1919.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—It is a pity that your correspondent "Nemo" did not disclose his identity in writing on the above subject in Thursday's issue. He seems to regard Meath Diocese as a sort of limited company, with no soul, subject to compulsory liquidation. He may, however, rest assured that his view is not shared by many—if any—people in the country. The business of the premier bishopric of Ireland cannot be treated as an appendage to that of the Diocese of Dublin, and transacted satisfactorily with the aid of "a first-class shorthand clerk and typist" in "an hour in the morning" to "clear up letters."

It is a gratuitous insult to the Dean and Archdeacon of Meath to imply, as your correspondent seems to imply, that they receive their emoluments for doing nothing, and it is illogical to infer, because past Bishops of Meath have lived part of the year in Dublin, that on that account the centre of Church life for Meath ought to be in Dublin in the future.—Yours, etc.,

F. BONYNGE.

Rathconnell Rectory, Westmeath,
August 23rd, 1919.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—The letter of "Nemo" focuses attention on a definite opportunity presented to those in whose hands the power lies of putting into practice one, at any rate, of the remedial proposals so often proclaimed in public and with applause. Now, surely, something might be done to prevent the occurrence of this possible amalgamation from being overwhelmed with objections. If one is to judge by the facts of the case, Meath Diocese ought to be merged into union with Dublin Diocese. In addition to the cogent reasons enumerated by "Nemo," it is quite likely that the clergy, etc., of Meath Diocese would neither be, nor consider themselves to be, neglected if they were to find themselves under the jurisdiction of the Archbishop of Dublin. Probably, as suggested, if this chief overseer were to procure the services of a first-class shorthand clerk and typist, he would not find that his correspondence and other episcopal duties would be a dragging burden, even if he were fascinated by the call of political and national demands.—Yours, etc.,

A WORKING MAN'S BUDGET.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Will you allow me to detail the budget of a Donegal family of five—husband, wife, and three children, of nine, eleven, and thirteen years—living in a Government cottage, at 1s. 9d. per week? The husband's wages are 30s. per week, with no food. In this case both husband and wife have hobbies: the husband's Sunday afternoons from March to October are spent looking after his bees. From his three hives he last year took 140lbs. of honey, sold 100lbs. at 2s. per lb., and kept 40lbs. for his own table. The wife keeps poultry, twenty hens, and ten runner ducks. She has, on an average, four dozen hen eggs to sell weekly, and, from October to May, three or four dozen duck eggs as well. She averages well over £1 per week all the year round and, allowing the generous amount of 10s. per week for feeding, she makes £26 per year from her poultry, as well as giving her husband two new laid eggs for breakfast every day. Further, she rears four flocks of chickens each season, and the roosters from these provide many substantial dinners for her family. The "crocs" (as the pullets are called in Donegal) replace her hens, and these she sells to the passing "fowlman" at 5s. each. In addition, she has two good goats and gets from them, on an average, three pints of the best of milk daily all the year.

As well as this, the three boys earned a substantial sum—in June, gathering gooseberries (for the writer) at 1s. per stone; in August, "lifting" flax and gathering flax-bands; and in September, gathering blackberries for a local shop at 3s. per stone, and later gathering sloes at 2s. a stone. So prosperous were they that the whole family had a new outfit and spent a week at Bundoran, and closed the year with a good round sum in "the stocking." In this family all the children are boys. I know of girls under fifteen earning from 15s. to 20s. per week for "sprigging."

There is no poverty in rural Donegal at least, and, with "the mind to do," existence need not be one long sordid struggle to keep body and soul together.—Yours, etc.,

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS: A GUIDE TO APPLICANTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Under this heading, in your issue of Friday last, the following appears:—"Civil Liabilities Commission, 33 Molesworth street, Dublin, assists men who, by reason of their service in the recent war, are unable to resume their pre-war occupation." May I set out the following rules as to the proper channels through which applications should be made? Ignorance of these is at present causing delay and disappointment to ex-service men:—

I. Where the pre-enlistment occupation can be resumed if financial help is provided, apply to the Commissioners of the Military Services (Civil Liabilities) Committee for the province in which the applicant resides. The applications must be on Form "A" or "B," obtainable at all post offices.

II. Where, by reason of disability, the pre-enlistment occupation cannot be resumed, and financial help is needed in order to adopt a new occupation, apply—(a) Ex-officers, to Military Services (Civil Liabilities) Committee, Savoy place, Victoria Embankment, London, W.C.2, stating the facts of the case, and asking for appropriate form of application; (b) other ranks, to Local War Pensions Committee for the district in which the applicant resides. The Local Committee will supply the necessary form "C," and investigate the application.—Yours, etc.,

TO-DAY'S RECIPE

REPLACE MEAT WITH OMELETTES.

Making an omelette is as easy as roasting a joint once you know how. Try this recipe:

SAVOURY OMELETTES.

Half oz. Brown & Polson's Corn Flour.
Half teacupful milk.
Half teaspoon each salt, pepper and made mustard.
2 eggs.
Half oz. lard.

Mix Corn Flour to a smooth cream with a little milk, bring the remainder to the boil, pour in the Corn Flour; boil for 5 minutes, stirring, allow to cool. Separate egg yolks from whites and beat them in basin; add seasonings and the cooked Corn Flour, beating well. Beat egg whites to a stiff froth, with pinch of salt, and add to mixture.

Heat the lard in omelette pan and pour in omelette. Shake the pan gently over the fire till the underside is nicely browned, then hold in front of the fire till the top is brown. Fold over and serve on hot plate at once.

Brown & Polson's "Patent" Corn Flour

DUBLIN HORSE SHOW.

A VARIED AND INTERESTING WEEK.

The Royal Dublin Society's Horse Show, which begins to-morrow at the Ballsbridge premises, promises to be a memorable one. Its revival after a lapse of six years is looked forward to with the most pleasurable anticipation. This is amply evidenced by the great numbers of people who have already arrived in Dublin, and are now accommodated in all the city hotels, boarding-houses, and other places where they have been fortunate enough to secure rooms for the week. Interest in the great carnival, indeed, was never keener. Notwithstanding the lapse of a few years, it still retains the popularity associated with the event in the past, and now in the piping days of peace one may look forward to its becoming once more the great annual engagement that it was in the fashionable and sporting world. Horse Show week in Dublin has been usually attended with fine weather, a factor that means a great deal in regard to the success of any outdoor fixture, but particularly so in respect to an event of such importance as the Horse Show, associated with which, as is well known, there are so many other interesting events and functions—business, social, and sporting. There are all the indications that this week's carnival will be equally well favoured, and the hope of everyone whose intention is to take the road to Ballsbridge is that the Clerk of the Weather will remain in the good humour he has displayed for the past few weeks.

During the week-end there was a further influx of visitors into the city, rail, road, and steamer each bringing its quota. Cross-Channel visitors are extremely numerous, and the American accent is heard on all sides, while Canadians are in our midst in large numbers. Our cousins from across the "pond" seem bent on enjoying themselves. Already a number of the horses competing at the Show have arrived at Ballsbridge, where much interest was shown on Saturday at the detraining of the animals. The classes are all well filled. The annual sales of horses are another important feature in connection with the Show. Messrs. Goff's auctions will take place on the grounds. They will commence with an afternoon sale to-morow at 2.30 o'clock, and on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday at 10 a.m. sharp. Messrs. Sewell's sales will take place at their repository, the first being to-morrow at 11 o'clock; Thursday, 11 o'clock; Friday, 10 o'clock; Friday, 5 o'clock; Saturday, 10 o'clock. Visitors should note that the sale of season tickets for the Show closes to-day, after which they will be increased in price by 25 per cent. These season tickets are on sale at Leinster House.

As is usual, there are many and varied attractions, apart from the Show itself, provided for visitors and holiday-seekers during the coming week. To-day the sport-loving public will patronise the Leopardstown Races. The horse-jumping competitions on each day of the Show—always a big feature—will, no doubt, attract extensive patronage, and on Friday and Saturday there will be races at Phœnix Park. On the latter day also there will be a polo tournament at the Nine Acres, and interesting cricket fixtures will be played off during the week. Special programmes have been arranged by the theatres and picture houses, and carnivals are being held in Donnybrook and Fairview. The arrangements made by the various railway companies for the carrying of both passengers and live-stock are excellent in all the circumstances. In the social sense there will be many interesting gatherings. Many distinguished people are amongst the house parties formed, and society will be splendidly represented at the Show.

HOUSE OF INDUSTRY HOSPITALS, DUBLIN.

MR. BONAR LAW'S REPLY TO MR. DEVLIN

Mr. Joseph Devlin, M.P., has received the following letter from Mr. Bonar Law:—

11 Downing street, Whitehall, S.W.,
21st August, 1919.

DEAR MR. DEVLIN,—As I promised in my letter of the 2nd August, I have carefully looked into the points raised in the statement forwarded with your letter of the 29th July with reference to the House of Industry Hospitals in Dublin. The contention that under the Hospitals (Dublin) Act of 1856 these hospitals are Government institutions is, I think, incorrect. The grants to Dublin hospitals are made in pursuance of the obligations of the Act of Union to provide for charitable purposes in Ireland not less than the average amount granted by the Irish Parliament from 1794 to 1800. Under this Act a grant of £7,600 a year has been made to the four hospitals in question. The Treasury has always held the settlement of 1856 to be final.

I would particularly refer you to Lord Crawford's statement on the whole matter, made in the House of Lords on the 13th of August.

In all the circumstances, I fear that the Treasury cannot be expected to give any additional assistance to these institutions, and that their continued existence must depend on what support may be forthcoming from the local community.—Yours very truly,

(Signed) A. BONAR LAW.

THE ALLIANCE AND DUBLIN CONSUMERS' GAS COMPANY EXCURSION.

The first annual excursion and sports of the Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Company was held on Saturday at the Murrough, Co. Wicklow, through the generosity of the directors. The party, consisting of over 350, left Westland Row in a special train, accompanied by Messrs. J. L. Scallan, W. Fottrell, and A. Bond (directors), W. J. Grey (secretary), E. V. Lowry (superintendent), W. Dumbleton (works manager). On arrival at Wicklow the party proceeded to the Murrough, where during the day sports were indulged in. A pleasant programme of music was supplied by St. James's Brass and Reed Band, under the baton of Mr. M. Farrell. During lunch, which was supplied by Messrs. Kidds, Ltd., Nassau street, Mr. R. J. Butler conveyed a hearty vote of thanks to the directors for their great kindness in providing such a pleasant outing. Mr. J. L. Scallan, replying on behalf of the directors, said he was very pleased to see all the members of the party meeting on the same level. Mr. Grey also spoke, expressing the wish that many more happy outings so auspiciously commenced would be repeated in the future, and commented on the admirable organisation displayed by the various committees responsible for the outing.

A Paris telegram, dated Friday, states:—M. Clemenceau this evening conferred with various Ministers on the subject of the coal crisis, and also consulted other Ministers regarding the general re-victualling of the country.

SCENES IN CORK.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S CLUB ATTACKED.

SHOTS FIRED AT DANCE PARTY.

Our Cork Correspondent telegraphed last night:—In the early hours of this morning a disgraceful attack was made upon the premises in Great George's street, Cork, of the Comrades of the Great War Association while a dance was in progress. The place was wrecked. For the first time since the Association took up the premises they exhibited a large Union Jack and other flags from the windows on Saturday and to-day, and this is the only motive which can be assigned for the outrage.

Members and lady friends, numbering 200, were at supper when, without the slightest warning, fusillade after fusillade of stones were flung through the windows by a crowd of about 300 men. A scene of great confusion ensued in the building. Thirteen of the ladies fainted, and others sought cover. In addition to stones and half bricks, over 14 shots were fired into the building. The members pluckily dashed out and dispersed their assailants. A force of thirty police arrived soon afterwards and dispersed the rioters, who took shelter in by-ways and adopted sniping tactics.

The ground floor of the building consists of five shops, with large plate glass windows, belonging to the Hive Ironworks, Messrs. Harrington, drapery and woollen merchants; and Husteed, shoemaker, and these windows were destroyed. The club windows show clearly small round punctures, where bullets entered.

A man named Mullane, residing in Blarney street, was arrested, and lodged in the Bridewell.

An extraordinary feature of the occurrence is that none of the dancers was injured by the missiles flung into the place.

The "Comrades" are still in possession, with their flags flying intact from the building.

DERRY GUARDIANS AND LORD FRENCH.

Heated scenes were witnessed at the meeting of the Derry Board of Guardians on Saturday, when a letter was read from the Local Government Board stating that the proposed payment of 10s. each to the workhouse carpenter and tailor, on the occasion of the celebration of peace, was illegal, and could not be sanctioned.

Mr. James Blair proposed that the matter be referred back for reconsideration.

Mrs. Morris, opposing the payment, said that the Board had presented an address to Lord French——

Mr. Blair—That has got nothing to do with this. Keep Lord French out of it. He is the representative of His Majesty the King in this country, and we are not going to have him blackballed here.

The Chairman (Dr. Maclaughlin) said that Mrs. Morris had no right to refer to Lord French in the debate.

Mr. Blair—Why don't you rule her out of order? The King's representative is not going to be made a tool of here.

Mrs. Morris said that she would write to the Local Government Board, as she wrote about Lord French. If the Unionists wanted to present addresses for party purposes they would have to do it out of their own pocket. The rates had enough to pay for broken windows.

Mr. Blair's motion was carried.

THE PROCLAMATION OF DERRY WALLS.

On a requisition signed by six Nationalist members of the Derry Corporation, the Mayor has convened a special meeting "to consider the circumstances under which a portion of the city was proclaimed on the 15th August, and pass such resolution thereon as may be deemed expedient."

MORE SEARCHES IN DERRY.

The Derry police, on Saturday, carried out a number of searches for arms and property looted during the recent riots. Two Unionist houses in Fountain street were searched for arms, but none were found. Five houses in a Nationalist quarter were raided for arms and loot. No arms were got, but in three of the houses twelve odd boots and three pairs of boots were seized, and these were afterwards identified as having been stolen from McCutcheon's boot shop on the night of the disturbances. It is expected that prosecutions will follow.

POLICE SEARCHES IN DUNDALK.

Between 7 and 10 o'clock on Saturday morning the local police searched half-a-dozen shops and private houses in Dundalk, and carried off some Finn Fein literature and a copy of the Fianna handbook. The search seems to have been directed against the members of the Cumann na mBhan, the female wing of the Sinn Fein organisation, as most of the premises raided are occupied or owned by prominent members of the local branch of that society. The stationery shop of Miss Angela Mathews, the President of the organisation, was searched as was also that of Miss Mary Mandeville, Church street; the private house of a railway employé, named McHugh, Vincent avenue; the rooms occupied by Miss Maggie McDermott, another prominent member of the Cumann na mBhan; the boot shop of Mr. Nicholas Murtagh, Park street. The office of the Dundalk Examiner was visited, but no search was made here, nor was anything removed from the stationery business run in conjunction with the newspaper. On this occasion, which is the second search made in town during the week, the police were not accompanied by military.

EXTENSIVE EWE SALE IN DUBLIN.

In the Dublin Cattle Market on Friday, Messrs. Gavin Low, Ltd., conducted a special sale of brood ewes, store wethers, and lambs. The entries totalled 3,527, about 100 more than at the corresponding sale last year, and it was expected that values would be governed by those ruling at the end of last season. The fact that they failed to do so may be attributed to the shortage of grass and the general unrest. At the same time, when compared with the opening sales of last year, prices showed little variation. Labour troubles had a perceptible effect upon the attendance, which, however, was business-like.

Among the shortwools, Mr. W. J. Walsh's shrop ewes brought £5 15/- each; Capt. Boyd Rochfort's crossbreds, 71/-; greyfaces from the Waterford estate, 80/-; the Misses Tottenham's half-breds, 71/- and 72/-; Col. Proby's crossbreds, 68/-; Col. Purdon Winter's Shrops, 78/-. Mr. John Murray's Roscommon and Oxford ewes brought 95/- and 98/-; Mr. R. J. Cotton's Roscommons, 100/-; Mr. Toler Aylward's Roscommons, 120/-; Mr. M. Flynn's Galways, 98/- to 105/-, and crossbreds to 70/-. Mr. Luke Flynn's Roscommon and Galway ewes realised 125/-; Mr. Pat Naughton's 100/- and 110/-; Mr. Jas. Mulhern's 102/6; Mr. P. J. Naughton's 84/- and 100/-; Mr. E. Brady's 90/-; Mr. P. Henderson's 81/-; Mr. M. Kelly's 80/6; Mr. J. Higgins' 84/-.

There was an unusually big display of Cheviots for an opening sale, and, trade not being equal to the supply, many were left unsold. Col. Proby's lot brought 60/6, and Miss Eustace's 65/-. For blackface horny sheep there was a good demand. Messrs. Laurie Bros. sent shearlings off Barnagee Mountain that realised 65/- per head. Mr. P. King Joyce's lot made 43/-, Mr. M. Moran's 45/-, and Mr. J. P. Hoban's 47/-. Three-quarter-bred wether lambs from Waterford estate made 56/-, and greyfaces 51/-. Mr. P. King Joyce's crossbreds realised 48/- and 49/-. Mr. Arres Mather's half-breds 35/- and 37/-; Col. Proby's half-breds 30/- and 32/-; the Abel Buckley estate B.F.'s 32/6 and 33/-, and Mr. J. Edwards' Cheviots 36/-. Crossbred wethers from Mr. L. A. Rooney made 64/-, and B. F. hornys from Mr. P. King Joyce 62/-.

FETE AT FAIRVIEW.

A garden fête, with many of the accessories of an Oriental bazaar was opened on Saturday afternoon by the Lord Mayor at Fairview, on the eastern suburb of Dublin, its purpose and object being to raise funds to liquidate a debt on the parish National Schools, and to provide a club or parochial hall for the men of the district, where they could meet together for social and intellectual improvement in their leisure time. The project has been launched with the united support of the people of the district, and they are generously assisted by their neighbours and friends outside the district. Favoured by fine weather, the attendance of the public was very encouraging, something like twenty-five thousand persons having passed the turnstiles. Annadale Park, where the fête is being held, is completely enclosed and surrounded by trees, so that one may easily imagine himself in the country, and not in a town. There are the usual attractions and aids to pastime, which are associated with undertakings of the kind. These include merry-go-rounds, hobby horses, swing-boats, helter-skelter, aerial flights, maze of mirrors, home of nonsense, palm-reading, etc. A splendid ball-room has been specially provided, and here Mr. Clarke-Barry's orchestra began business, which was kept up until midnight. No part of the fête attracts anything like the patronage which the dance floor receives. Then there are tea rooms, a café chantant, where Miss Teresa Owens, Miss W. McGough, Miss Alice Donoghue, Miss May Doyle, Mrs. Heffernan, Mr. Joseph O'Kelly, Mr. T. J. Young, Mr. C. J. Williams, Mr. Harry Lino, Mr. E. Meagan, and others entertain the visitors with music, song, and dance. There will be dancing competitions, for which gold medals are offered. The band of the Artane Industrial School played on the grounds during the evening.

The Rev. Canon Petit, P.P., at the opening ceremony, referred to the Lord Mayor's valuable services as peace-maker and settler of industrial strikes. His lordship was also doing good by lending his help to this fête, which was undertaken to provide opportunities for the young men of the parish, after their day's labour, to rest, and improve themselves by the study of social and economic problems which urgently demanded attention.

The Lord Mayor, in declaring the fête open, said its objects were most praiseworthy, and for that reason deserved public support. He should like to see a social club in every parish throughout the country, where life was, generally speaking, so dull for the young people. Canon Petit was doing well in providing a safe place of resort in the evenings for the people of his parish, and thus keeping them out of the city, clear of the temptations which too often proved the undoing of young men.

On the motion of Mr. J. McCormack, seconded by the Rev. E. McSweeney, the thanks of the assembly were voted to the Lord Mayor.

There was again a very large attendance yesterday afternoon and evening. The fête will be continued till Sunday evening next.

DONNYBROOK FAIR CARNIVAL.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

Donnybrook Fair Carnival, a fête organised in aid of the Irish Mission of the Holy Ghost Fathers in Africa, and also to liquidate the debt on the Church of the Sacred Heart, Donnybrook, was opened on Saturday in the grounds of Blackrock College. The opening day was a great success, and bids fair to continue for the rest of the week. It has been well organised. The means of amusement and entertainment were many, varied, and novel. The grounds were profusely decorated with bunting, and presented a gay and inviting appearance to pleasure-seekers, of whom a very large crowd gathered to enjoy the pleasures of the carnival. The amusements include a fine ballroom, a café chantant, tea gardens, donkey polo matches, handball tournaments, and all kinds of fun out of doors. The dance music is provided by Mr. Moody's Orchestra. At the upper side of the ground Mrs. P. J. Bermingham runs a well-managed tearoom, with the assistance of numerous young ladies. It was well patronised.

The Most Rev. Dr. O'Gorman, C.S.Sp., Bishop of Sierra Leone, formally declared the carnival open.

Right Rev. Mgr. Dunne, P.P., Donnybrook, presided at the opening ceremony, and proposed a vote of thanks to Dr. O'Gorman, whose illness, he said, prevented his lordship from telling them of his mission experiences in Africa. He said the Holy Ghost Order had never made an appeal before for funds. They were glad of having the opportunity of combining with the Donnybrook Fête Committee to make a success of the carnival for the double object. The Order had very extensive missions all over Africa, and performed an enormous amount of work among the natives.

Mr. Gerald Horan, K.C., seconded the motion of thanks, which was passed by acclamation.

The audience then dispersed to the business and pleasures of the carnival, and the first day was at its close pronounced by everybody to have been a great success and most enjoyable.

IRISH CATTLE TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Executive Committee of the Irish Cattle Traders' and Stockowners' Association met last Wednesday at the City Arms Hotel, Prussia street, Dublin. Mr. P. J. Kennedy, J.P., presided. There were also present:—Messrs. Wm. Field, Hon. President; George Lennon, J.P., Vice-Chairman; John Leonard, J.P.; Joseph O'Connor, Co.C.; Matthew Bruton, James Cullen, Leonard Storey, John Cregan, Michael Beattie, Edward Wakefield, J.P.; T. L. Smith, J.P.; Edward Keasham, and John P. MacAvin, T.C., Secretary.

Since the previous meeting the following series of questions relative to the importation of Irish cattle to Birkenhead and other centres was put to the Government:—

"To ask the Food Controller whether he is aware that, as the result of two weighting tests held during the past year under Government auspices, it was found that Irish cattle lost about 8 per cent. in their live weight, as the result of cross-Channel transit; whether, seeing that English-fed cattle not subject to such shrinkage must show a better return on live weight than those Irish cattle, while the latter necessarily produce a comparatively higher return on dead weight, Irish traders send most of their cattle to Birkenhead for sale on dead weight, which is not obtainable in other western distributing centres; whether that practice has led to congestion at Birkenhead, to relieve which the Ministry of Food had made regulations for the transfer of 40 per cent. of stock landed at that port, and for the restriction to 2,400 cattle per week to be received thereat from all Ireland; whether those regulations deprive Irish traders of the only means open to them to sell their cattle by dead weight, and on somewhat more equal terms with British stockowners; and whether, seeing that it would allay the growing discontent in Ireland, and at the same time facilitate automatic distribution of Irish live stock, he will grant an addition of 8 per cent. for shrinkage to the present live weight price for Irish cattle. (Friday, 15th August)."

The reply made by Mr. Roberts on behalf of the Government was as follows:—

"I have no information as to the tests referred to in the first part of the question. After giving the matter careful consideration, I am not prepared to make an allowance for shrinkage in the cases of cattle travelling a considerable distance in Great Britain or coming from Ireland. During recent months the proportion of imported cattle received at Birkenhead has been considerably in excess of the normal, and it has been found necessary to regulate the numbers received at that port. This arrangement does not compel Irish dealers to sell cattle on live-weight, as Irish fat stock is accepted on the dead-weight basis at any of the ports open for traffic in Irish cattle."

The Committee considered the reply very unsatisfactory and contrary to facts. It showed a great want of knowledge of the full facts of the case that such misleading information should be circulated by a responsible member of the Government. The Committee considered that, where such large and important interests are involved, the reply was inexcusable. After a lengthy consideration of the matter, the following resolution was proposed by Mr. P. J. Kennedy, J.P., Chairman, and seconded by Mr. William Field, Honorary President:—

"That our Secretary write to Mr. Roberts, Ministry of Food, pointing out that it is apparent from his recent reply to Captain Dixon he was misinformed, because, firstly, as the Department of Agriculture and everyone on this side is aware, two tests for shrinkage were made last autumn under direction of subordinate officials of the Ministry of Food and of the said Department; and, secondly, with reference to the concluding paragraph of his reply, it is a fact that at certain ports, such as Holyhead and Heysham and Silloth, there are no facilities for slaughtering and ascertaining dead-weight. That cattle trained from port to inland centres for slaughter are frequently held over, and the owner or his representative is not on the spot to look after his interests."

It was ordered that copies of this resolution be sent to Captain Dixon, M.P.; Messrs. Edward Archdale, M.P.; Hugh Barrie, M.P.; and Joseph Devlin, M.P.

THE RECEIVING DEPOT.

Mr. William Field has written Mr. Churchill, Minister for War, asking if it is intended to transfer the Receiving and Examining Depot from Oriel House, Dublin, to the Shell Factory, Parkgate street, a position which, he states, is neither so central nor convenient to the Government and manufacturers.

The trial began in Paris on Saturday of Georges Gaston Guyier, accused of having, among other crimes, denounced Edith Cavell to the enemy.

MILTON uses in the month of August.

What about it

That ugly stain on your tablecloth—the problem is not who put it there, but how to remove it. Don't worry, Milton will remove it for you—completely, quickly and easily.

Tea stains, fruit stains, ink stains, wine stains—on undyed cotton and linen fabrics—vanish away like magic when Milton is used. The same with stains on paper and porcelain. Don't rub or scrub: Milton washes out the stain without injury to the material. Perfectly safe to use even on delicate lace. But you must not use Milton on silk, woollen or dyed fabrics.

MILTON

serves a hundred and one purposes, and saves you buying a dozen or more different preparations. Although a powerful fluid, it is perfectly safe—non-poisonous and non-inflammable.

FOOD
A New Idea

You put sauces, relishes, spices, etc., on your food to make it taste better, but do you put anything on it to make it pure and perfectly safe?

The idea of putting MILTON on your food is novel, but isn't it sensible?

You can put MILTON on meat, fish, poultry, fruit, vegetables—on anything you eat. MILTON will not add the slightest taste or smell—it only freshens the natural flavour of food—and will completely remove all dangers of impurities, fly-blow, or ptomaine poisoning, and the food won't go bad.

Just add a tablespoonful of MILTON to each pint of cold water. Wash the meats and fish, or soak the vegetables, before cooking. The food tastes better, is safe, and will keep.

SURREY v. MIDDLESEX.

Fully twelve thousand people saw the opening of the return match between Surrey and Middlesex at Lord's on Saturday. Surrey made a magnificent start after winning the toss. On a plumb wicket Hobbs and Knight put on a hundred runs in the first hour, and were not separated until the total reached 171 in an hour and forty minutes, when Hobbs was caught at extra mid-off for a brilliant 82, which included eight 4's. Knight completed his hundred in two hours, and was second out at 219 for a delightfully-played 117. He was missed at 87, hit fifteen 4's, and was batting two hours and a quarter. Sandham scored 63 in two hours; but, apart from Crawford and Hitch, the quality of the remaining batting proved moderate, and Surrey were all out in four hours and forty minutes for 395. The light was failing fast when Middlesex went in before six o'clock, and after they had lost two wickets for sixty in forty-five minutes further play was abandoned for the day. Score:—

TO-DAY'S FIXTURE.

Phœnix v. Mr. Moore-Brabazon's XI. (1st day), Phœnix Park.

ATHLETICS AND CYCLING.

IRISH COMMAND CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Another heavy programme was got through on Saturday at the Curragh, and it may be said of the Irish Command Championship meeting that in every particular it was one of the most successful athletic tournaments held in this country for a very considerable time, the fixture being concluded without the slightest hitch being noticeable from start to finish. Captain Cook secured two championships, the 100 Yards and 220 Yards, which he won rather easily; and Captain Nolan prevailed in the Hurdles, while Lieutenant Neale finished second in the 220 Yards, Captain Hart third in the Half-mile, and Lieutenant Cotter second in the Hop, Step, and Jump. But, perhaps, the finest performances of the afternoon was the running of Battery Quartermaster-Sergeant Old, of the R.H.A., who was successful in the Mile and Three Miles, in which Corporal Moody and Private Tizzard disappointed, but the last-named placed one championship to his credit—viz., the Half-mile—in which he showed good pace and judgment. The Tugs of War were very interesting, and the Relay races proved most attractive additions to a varied and well arranged programme. Details:—

YACHTING.

DUBLIN BAY SAILING CLUB.

The somewhat overcast sky of Saturday afternoon was accompanied by a wind in Dublin Bay varying between north-west and west, and though the latter was never more than a light breeze it was at least of uniform strength, and gave excellent racing in the four events decided at Kingstown by the D.B.S.C.

Mr. Paget Hatfield was officer of the day.

CLASS I.—25 FOOTERS. Handicap for club prizes. Usual Club Course. Start at 3.20 p.m.

FINISH:

	H.	M.	S.
Fodhla (winner) (2 mins.)—Mr. W. Curtis	5	35	30
Punctilio (scr.)—Messrs. Newsom and Stephens	5	39	5
Alana (1 min.)—Mr. A. H. Seale	5	39	58
Eva (2nd prize) (2 mins.)—Mr. G. Murphy	5	40	25

Fodhla was leader away in an all-round excellent start, in which Alana, Eva, and Punctilio followed practically in line. Commencing with a broad reach to the Bar Buoy, they were subsequently down wind to the Rosbeg with spinnakers boomed out, Fodhla and Punctilio completing this leg nicely ahead of the other pair. Going to the South Burford Buoy it was still simple sailing, the fleet only coming on the wind after they had rounded the latter mark. Then with a beat home Fodhla and Punctilio stood on a long board towards Sandycove, while Alana and Eva worked a more seaward course, though Alana later followed the leaders in a board shorewards, and, close on Punctilio's heels, worked up the back of the East Pier. Meantime Fodhla had done excellently when close hauled, and when she finally came about off the Pier Head for a board in to the line she held a commanding lead.

CLASS II.—21 FOOTERS. Handicap for club prizes. Usual club course. Start at 3.35 p.m.

FINISH:

	H.	M.	S.
Geraldine (scr.)—Mr. W. McDowell	5	10	1
Innisfallen (1st prize) (5 mins.)—Messrs. Weir and Nesbitt	5	10	53
Estelle (scr.)—Miss Blacker Douglass	5	11	24
Oola (2nd prize) (5 mins.)—Messrs. C. and J. Moore	5	11	29
Maureen (3 mins.)—Mr. M. S. Orr	5	12	37

Selecting a leeward berth at the start, Geraldine was first to break the line at the gun, with Innisfallen second, Estelle, at the windward end of the line, next, and then Oola and Maureen. As they crossed, Geraldine was travelling fastest of the lot, and she at once shot out with a lead of several lengths; and after a reach to the Bar Buoy she rounded that mark nicely ahead of Oola, with Innisfallen now in third place, followed by Maureen and Estelle. They had then a free wind to Bullock, where sheets were hardened in for the windward turn back to Harbour. For the majority it was a case of a long and short leg to fetch the Harbour mouth, and at the close of the round the order was Geraldine, Innisfallen, Oola, Estelle, and Maureen. On the second round, the distance to Bullock and back, there was again a turn to windward when making for home, but, except that Estelle worked ahead of Oola, there was no change in the order. The finish was a close one, and gave little chance to the scratch boats to allow their handicaps to the others, Innisfallen and Oola accordingly taking first and second prizes.

Class III.—17 FOOTERS. Handicap for Club prizes. Usual Club Course. Start at 3.30 p.m.

FINISH:

	H.	M.	S.
Eileen (scr.)—Mr. J. E. Mills	4	56	20
Mimosa (4 mins.)—Mr. J. B. Boyd	4	56	25
Nautilus (2nd prize) (5 mins.)—Mr. T. Atkinson	4	56	53
Rosemary (1st prize) (7 mins.)—Col. C. Sammon	4	57	23

In a straggling start Nautilus lead Rosemary, Eileen, and Mimosa away in the order named, the first-mentioned continuing to hold her lead in the earlier stages of the race, while reaching and running. When they came on the wind at the Bullock mark, however, she was quickly overhauled by Eileen and Mimosa, and this pair had a great set to as they beat for home. Eileen had been just ahead at the mark, and, in the short tacking which ensued, she was successful in keeping the other under her lee, finally coming about off the Harbour on Mimosa's weather, and taking the winning gun five seconds ahead.

Class IV.—WAGS. Handicap for club prizes. Usual Club Course. Start at 3.45 p.m.

FINISH:

	H.	M.	S.
Coquette (2nd prize (scr.)—Mr. G. H. Jones	5	1	34
Madeleine (1st prize) (9 mins.)—Mr. J. Starkey	5	4	8
Barbara (7 mins.)—Dr. J. T. Wigham	5	9	45
Mollie (7 mins.)—Dr. J. P. Meldon	5	9	47

The order away was Mollie, Coquette, Madeleine, and Barbara, but in the amount of windward work which each round gave, Coquette was at her best. She was leader at the end of the first round, and at the finish won comfortably, though failing to allow Madeleine her handicap for first prize.

GOLF.

THE AMATEUR AMERICAN CHAMPIONSHIP
A BOY FINALIST.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION TELEGRAM.)

PITTSBURG, FRIDAY.

Playing on his own course at the Oakmont Country Club, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, to-day, the winner in 1910, W. C. Fownes, was beaten in the semi-final of the United States Golf Association's Amateur Championship by R. T. ("Bobbie") Jones, the seventeen-year-old competitor from Atlanta. Not only did Jones keep pace with his elder rival, but during the first 18 holes he more than once took the lead. For a boy, he secured a great length through the green, his wooden club play, in particular, being better than that of Fownes, whilst his play on the green was on several occasions in advance of that of the former holder. Fownes was obviously uncomfortable at times, and his position was not improved by the fact that the sympathies of the huge crowd were plainly with the boy. Jones did not allow his successes to influence him. Indeed, the thoroughness of his game in varying circumstances was worthy of a much older and much more experienced player. On several occasions, after losing his lead, he drove from the next tee with the utmost coolness. At the thirty-third hole his brassie shot found rough grass to the right, but he got on to the edge of the green with his next essay. He had a four-feet putt for the hole and the right of participation in the final. He did not unduly study the line, but struck the ball firmly and truly. In its passage towards the hole, it ran across a slight hillock, swung round on to the right lip of the hole, and then hung on the back of the tin for a fraction of a second, almost its own weight carrying it to the bottom.

With reference to Jones's performance, it is interesting to recall that Mr. John Ball, the famous Royal Liverpool player, finished sixth in the British Open Championship at Prestwick in 1878, when he was 15 years of age, his score for the 36 holes being 165, eight more than that of "Jamie" Anderson, of St. Andrews, who, on that occasion, won the second of his three consecutive open championships.

The other semi-final was not without its sensation, as Wood Platt, yesterday's conqueror of Ouimet, failed to put up a sustained fight against Herron, who took the lead almost at the start.

SEMI-FINAL RESULTS.—R. T. ("Bobbie") Jones (Atlanta, Ga.) beat W. C. Fownes, junior (Oakmont, Pa.)—5 and 3; P. Herron (Pittsburg) beat Wood Platt (North Hills, Pa.)—7 and 6.

PITTSBURG, SATURDAY.

The 17-year-old boy, Bobby Jones, failed in the final of the National Amateur Championship to-day, his 21-year-old victor, Herron, winning by 5 and 4. Play was close in the morning, and until the turn in the afternoon, but at the 29th hole Herron became 3 up through Jones's faulty second and over-played third. Then Jones was bunkered at the 30th, which hole he conceded. Herron won the next, and the following hole was halved. Result:—

Herron, beat Jones—5 and 4.

BRAY TOURNAMENT.
SOUTH-EASTERN COUNTIES CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Splendid weather was associated with what should have been the concluding day at Bray on Saturday, but owing to the very large entry it was found impossible to finish, the Gents' Singles Championship and two handicaps having to be held over till to-day. The large attendance was treated to some really splendid contests, the most exciting match, probably, of the season taking place in the Gents' Doubles Championship. In the final, however, the holder, Mrs. Price, playing better than she has so far this season, won the first set 6-1, lost the next 3-6, but won the decider 6-3. It was late in the evening when McCrea and Meldon started the final of the Gents' Singles Championship. REASSURING MEDICAL REPORT.

A Reuter's telegram, dated Simla, August 19, says:—Lieutenant-General Sir C. H. Burtchaell, Director-General of Medical Services, has given Reuter's Correspondent the fullest opportunity of examining all the papers connected with the medical statistics of the sickness of troops on the frontier. The reports which have reached England are evidently greatly exaggerated. The difficulties and consequent discomforts of rapidly improvised hospitals in the early days were great, but these were soon remedied owing to the way everyone worked, and all the hospitals are now reported to be in excellent order. From the 15th May to the 9th August the total admissions to hospital were 10,882 British, and 45,774 Indian troops and followers, giving a daily admission rate per 1,000 strength of 4.98 British and 20.97 Indians. The deaths from disease were 12 officers and 77 other ranks British, and nine officers and 1,260 ranks and followers Indian troops.

An unusually severe cholera epidemic broke out at no less than 30 stations. It was at its worst in June. There have been 76 cases, with 30 deaths, among the British troops, and 2,045 cases and 617 deaths among the Indians, or 30 per cent. of fatal cases. The actual number of sick to-day is 10,028.

PORTADOWN MAGISTRATE ASSAULTED.

A serious street row occurred in Portadown on Saturday, in the course of which Mr. John George Waugh, a farmer, residing at Ballinary House and a magistrate for Co. Armagh, was seriously assaulted. After the fight, Mr. Waugh was brought to the surgery of Dr. J. Dougan, J.P., where his wounds were dressed. It was found that he had received rather serious injuries about the head, and his condition was such that it was considered advisable to have his deposition taken.

A special court was afterwards constituted in the surgery, at which an ex-soldier named Hugh Grimley was charged with assaulting Mr. Waugh.

In the course of his deposition, Mr. Waugh said that, when coming up Woodhouse street, he saw a soldier in kilts, who shouted "Up Sinn Fein." A crowd rapidly gathered, and the man in kilts took the stick (produced) from the prisoner Grimley. Both the prisoner and the man in kilts shouted "Up Sinn Fein." The police came and took the soldier away. The prisoner followed in the crowd, shouting. Deponent said to the prisoner—"For goodness sake, don't try to raise a row on the street; go home." Prisoner then struck him on the shoulder with a stick. Deponent said—"You know I would not strike you." As he was turning prisoner struck him on the head with the stick. He stumbled with the blow, and prisoner again struck him with the stick on the head. Deponent was taken to Dr. Dougan's surgery, where his wounds were dressed. He had known the prisoner for some time.

His Worship remanded the accused in custody.

SOLDIERS' "STRIKE."

The strike of soldiers who refused to embark at Southampton had a sudden ending on Saturday morning, when a battalion of the Royal Sussex Regiment motored over from Portsmouth and escorted the men, who had spent the night rolled up in their coats in the park, back to camp. The men were removed in motor lorries.

With reference to the report that the men of a certain draft have refused to embark at Southampton for Russia, the Press Association is officially informed that this draft was not going to Russia, but to Turkey. The men forming the draft had recently been sent home from France for a period of draft leave, and, the leave having expired, they were returning to France on their way to Turkey.

Damage estimated at £50,000 was caused by a fire which broke out yesterday morning at Newry on the premises of Messrs. Samuel Carr and Sons, chemists. The fire, which originated in a portion of the establishment stored with oil, petrol, and other inflammable materials, is believed to be due to spontaneous combustion, the heat of the past week having been intense in Newry. Despite the efforts of the firemen and soldiers, the fire raged for five hours.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

The Company is formed to carry out the objects set out in the Memorandum of Association and primarily to develop an important British invention in the Motor Car Industry known as the "Rapid Rim," the Letters Patent for which are dated 5th June, 1915.

The invention possesses features that must strongly appeal to all motorists, especially those who drive their own cars, as it bears distinct advantages over any other type of Rim or spare wheel for the following reasons:—

1. It can be removed and replaced with a new Tyre in a few minutes.
2. There are no parts that can work loose.
3. It has ONLY ONE screw-bolt in contrast with other Rims which have several nuts and side flanges.
4. It is extremely light.
5. It is adaptable to any type of wheel (Artillery, Wire, or Pressed Steel).
6. It can be operated by the greatest novice (and is fool-proof).
7. It is a combination whereby a spare Rim can be carried, but in the case of one or MORE punctures, the tyre can be changed without undue exertion.

Briefly, there is nothing to equal the "Rapid Rim" in durability, lightness, simplicity, ease of application and efficiency. After severe tests (1,000 miles) the "Rapid Rim" received the Certificate of the Royal Automobile Club, and as conclusive evidence that it is the best Rim on the market and performs all that is claimed for it, the following opinions of Motor Experts of acknowledged world-wide reputation are appended:—

The Royal Automobile Club Certificate (published in the Royal Automobile Club News of October 13th, 1916) states:—

"On examination at the conclusion of the trial (1,000 miles) the Rims were found to be firmly fixed upon the wheels, and there was no sign of movement having taken place. There was no sign of wet having entered either at the beads of the cover or at the transverse split in the Rim. All the Rim tyres were removed without effort at the end of the trial.

"The following are the times for putting the cover upon the Rim:—Goodrich (Beaded), 84 secs.; Goodrich (Straight Sided), 26 secs.; Goodyear (815 x 105), 44 secs.; Palmer Cord, 28 secs.; and Michelin 69 secs.

"All the times are for the actual operation of changing, and do not include getting out tools, jacking up, or inflation. One man was engaged on the work."

From Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, C.S.I., etc., dated January 8th, 1919:—

"I have seen and carefully examined the Rapid Rim you brought me, and think it is full of promise. Its mechanical construction seems to me sound, and in my opinion the principle on which it works is correct."

From Lieutenant-Colonel Warwick Wright, late Managing Director of Warwick Wright, Limited (late Sole Concessionnaire for the World, excepting Germany and Russia, for Metallurgique Cars, and late Concessionnaire for Minerva Cars in England), dated July 11th, 1916:—

"I have now thoroughly examined and tested the contracting and expanding detachable Rim, and am convinced that the principle involved is the correct solution to a long-felt want amongst motorists. Its lightness in weight, the fewness of parts, absence of bolts, nuts, and loose pieces, together with the facility and ease with which a tyre can be changed and remounted, is remarkable.

"I have a long experience with all types of detachable Rims, and can safely say that, provided yours is properly handled and marketed, there is a very successful future before it, a demonstration of its usefulness being all that is required to decide any unprejudiced motorist to adopt it in preference to all others."

Major Low, A.C.G.I., D.Sc., etc., was specially instructed on behalf of the Directors to examine the Rim and report thereon. Major Low is a Technical Expert in the Motor Car Industry of high reputation, and was the Commanding Officer of the R.F.C. Experimental Works.

Major Low's Report, dated June 27th, 1919, is fully confirmatory of the favourable views held by all the other Experts who have examined the Rim, and the following is an extract from his report:—

"The Rapid Rim differs essentially from other attempts which have been made to devise means for the quick changing of both rims and tyres.

"Not only can it be run in balance, but the locking mechanism can be constructed in an extremely simple manner, and yet it throws no alternating load upon the supporting screw.

"The strain is entirely self-contained, and steel blocks not only do away with the possibility of wear during rough usage, but at the same time obviate any possibility of unintentional detachment.

"The proportionate strain round the inner surface of the Rim is evenly divided, a condition which applies to no other Rim. The Rapid Rim therefore can maintain perfect truth even after rough commercial use, and I see no reason why in addition it should not be adapted to lighter vehicles, or even motor bicycles, thus giving it a far better and greater field of usefulness than any other system.

"In spite of its technical superiority it is extremely simple."

There must necessarily always be the risk of punctures with pneumatic tyres, so that the carrying of either a spare Rim or wheel is practically unavoidable. The spare wheel, however, costs more than the "Rapid Rim," adds to the running weight of the car, and in cases where the puncture occurs after the wheel has been changed the only alternative then, in the absence of a second spare wheel, is to perform the always unpleasant and laborious task of removing or repairing the tyre. The "Rapid Rim" not only combines all the advantages of a spare wheel, but has the additional advantage of being not merely detachable from the wheel with a minimum of physical exertion, but is also easily and quickly detachable from the tyre itself, thereby rendering the replacing of a tyre or tube the work of a few minutes. A lady motorist has actually removed the "Rapid Rim" and refitted it on to the wheel with a new tyre in two minutes.

Suitable premises, which can be extended, can be acquired, in which it is proposed immediately to instal machinery (at an estimated cost of about £10,000) capable of assembling parts to produce an output of 400 complete sets of Rims per week, or approximately 20,000 sets per annum. The price of the Rim to the motoring public will be moderate, and will not exceed that of any other existing Rim, and, as the cost will be far less than that of a spare wheel, it is obvious that once the "Rapid Rim" is available in quantities it will be specified on new cars, of which it should become a standardised feature.

This Company is formed as a Parent Company, and will acquire the Patent Rights for Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Japan, and Germany, and the benefit of an application for a Patent for Canada. The Company will also acquire the benefit of applications for patents for Austria and Russia. Owing to the War and the conditions in Austria and Russia the exact position with regard to the rights and applications for these countries is at present uncertain. Negotiations are taking place for the sale of some of the principal Foreign Patent Rights, and the Directors believe that they can obtain substantial cash payments in addition to reasonable Royalties.

The Motorists Purchasing Association, Limited, of "Egyptian House," 170-3 Piccadilly, London, W.1, will be appointed sole Concessionnaires for the United Kingdom, and have agreed to take a minimum of 5,000 sets of Rims within 12 months from date of first delivery, with annually increasing deliveries. The terms of the Contract are remunerative, and assure the earning of substantial Dividends.

The active co-operation of this well-known and powerful combination of Motorists should prove invaluable in rapidly popularising the Rim.

Mr. F. Greenhouse, the Manager of Watkins and Doncaster, Limited, of 95a Great Portland street, London, W., the well-known Automobile Agents and Engineers, states:—

"I anticipate a very large demand for the "Rapid Rim, and as soon as they are placed on "the market I should estimate the sales would "greatly exceed 20,000 sets per annum, as in my "opinion, based on conversation with experts in "the Motor Trade, it is the finest detachable rim "on the market, being adaptable to any type "of wheel."

For trade reasons the Directors do not consider it desirable to give details of costs and profits, but after going carefully into the matter they feel fully justified in stating that on the minimum output of 10,000 sets per annum the net profits for the FIRST TRADING YEAR, after allowing for Management Expenses, Directors' Fees, Depreciation and Reserve, etc., should amount to at least £25,000.

As the output is expected rapidly to increase, the above figure is, in the opinion of the Board, conservative, and is quite apart from any profits to accrue from exploiting the above mentioned Foreign Patent Rights.

The manufacture of Rims, whether for pleasure or commercial cars, is one of the largest branches of the motor car trade, and the Directors are confident that the "Rapid Rim" will find an immense demand waiting for it on practically a cash basis. The adaptation of the Rim for use on Ford Cars and Motor Cycles would be a development of the first importance.

The subscription of the shares now offered will provide, after deduction of the cost of the Assemblage Works and Plant, Patent Rights, and expenses of the issue, nearly £40,000. This sum will be ample for working capital, as it is anticipated that deliveries in quantities of the Rim will commence in about six months' time.

Considerable cash expenditure has been made by The Patents Acquisition Syndicate, Limited, whose Registered Office is at 2 Coleman street, in the City of London, who are the Vendors, during the past two or three years in developing the invention to its present great commercial value, and the purchase price for all the Patent Rights enumerated above has been fixed at £65,000, payable as to £40,000 in cash and the balance by the allotment as fully paid up of 10,000 Preferred Ordinary Shares of £1 each and 300,000 Ordinary Shares of 1/- each. The sum of £20,000 cash and 120,000 of the said Ordinary Shares, being a portion of the above mentioned purchase price, will be paid and allotted to Carmen de Fleury, of Shandwick place, Edinburgh, Scotland, or her nominees, in consideration of the release by her of an option held by her for the purchase of the said Invention, and as compensation for valuable financial and other services rendered to the Patents Acquisition Syndicate, Limited, during the War period.

Of the Shares now offered for subscription The Alpha Agency, Limited, whose Registered Office is situate at 13 St. Helen's place, London, E.C., who are the promoters, have underwritten 80,000 shares at a commission of 6 per cent., plus an overriding commission of 1½ per cent., payable by the Company, together with the allotment to the Agency of 100,000 Ordinary Shares of one shilling each as fully paid up.

Dated 15th August, 1919.

Application will be received on this Form on the basis of the terms of the full Prospectus.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Few developments of general interest or importance were manifest in the routine of the week's trade and commerce. A fair miscellaneous business was put through. Catalogues for week commencing 25th inst. embrace 31,234 packages Indian tea, 21,390 Ceylon, besides China and some Java parcels. Wool sales maintain well-balanced stability with strong buying for Continental markets. Provision markets firm throughout.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed April 5th, 1917) ......5 p.c.

LONDON, SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Week-end conditions prevailed in the Money market, though owing to the paying over of Victory Bond subscription money by the banks to the Treasury, funds were none too plentiful. The call loan rate was fairly firm throughout around 3 p.c., and weekly and other short fixtures were wanted at 3½ p.c. About a quarter of a million was disbursed in dividends, chiefly upon Furness Railway Stocks. The Discount market was much the same. The available supply of bills was not large, but takers continue to exercise marked caution with the approach of autumn uncertainties. A fine rate for two months' drafts was 3⅞ p.c., while three months' bills changed hands at 3⅞ to 3¾ p.c., and six months at 4¼ p.c.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

THE OUTLOOK.—The immediate future of the Stock Markets depends largely upon the course of the foreign exchanges, and that is extremely difficult to forecast. Much depends upon the measures taken at the coming conference of bankers in Paris. The selling of international securities seems likely to continue, but prices may fall much further, as the dealers have already marked them down more than the actual volume of selling warranted by way of protecting their own interests. The upward tendency of American and Canadian dollar securities has been checked by the recovery in exchange. The removal of the remaining restrictions on trade should make for active conditions in the industrial market. New issues promise to be very plentiful this autumn, to provide the necessary capital for extending existing undertakings, and enabling them to play their part in adding to the volume of our export trade. The textile companies are likely to be very busy, and all of the leading shares are well worth holding.

We believe (says the Sunday Times) Courtaulds will eventually stand much above the present level, and Joshua Hoyles are worth attention in view of the high yield, allowing for the dividend being paid free of income tax. Similarly the principal Iron and Steel and Engineering Shares possess attractive possibilities. Motors are reviving, and the rise in Dunlops, to which we have frequently drawn attention, seems fully justified by the company's strong position and excellent prospects. Cements are worth picking up on any reaction, together with shares of other companies which will benefit from reconstruction work.

Because Johannesburg prices have recently ruled rather lower than those of London, the latter have declined to bring them more into line with the Cape level, and the Frenchmen and Belgians hold no inconsiderable amounts of Kaffirs. These it was feared (says the Observer) might, to some extent, be dumped in London, and hence the sagging tendency. So far the expected has not happened. Johannesburg has made no attempt to arbitrage. The Continent is apparently willing to keep most of its mining commitments for the present. Accordingly there was a rather better appearance for Kaffirs at the end of the week. Trade was bad, but it is consoling to have the tone good. All the interest in Mining Shares is centred elsewhere than in the Kaffir circus at present. Thus Mexicans, "Barrier" Shares, and even a little interest in Russians. Looking beyond immediate influences, the bullish point is noticeable of a free and lively market between London, Paris, and the Cape. Good business possibilities silver-line the clouds.

The coupons of the Chinese Imperial Government 4½ p.c. Gold Loan of 1898 for £16,000,000; the Royal Siamese Government 4½ p.c. Gold Loan of 1905 for £1,000,000; and the Royal Siamese Government 4½ p.c. Gold Loan of 1907 for £3,000,000, due 1st September next, will be paid on and after that date at the Hong-Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, 9 Gracechurch street, London, E.C.

It is now understood (says the Pall Mall Gazette) that the rumours suggesting that Burmah Corporation was to be formed into an Indian company have materialised. The capital, which, of course, will be in rupees, is to be considerably increased to a figure more commensurate with the potential wealth of the mine. The present issued capital is close upon £1,000,000, but the market valuation with the shares quoted 9¼ is around £9,360,000. The new capital will probably be increased tenfold, giving shareholders about £10 for each £1 share. At present values of silver and lead the estimated ore reserves are valued about £85,000,000.

The uninterrupted rise in the price of silver awakens interest again in the rupee exchange. There appears to be an increasingly large outside demand for remittances on India, which is also a factor to be taken into consideration. This may compel the authorities to increase the amounts at the weekly tenderings, and if the technical position of the metal should not deteriorate the value of the rupee must again be advanced.

The African World is authoritatively informed that Sir Abe Bailey, Bart., has arranged the amalgamation of the Giant Mines, Enterprise Gold Mines, and the London and Rhodesian Mining and Land Companies. A new company is to be formed with a capital of £2,000,000, in 5/- shares, the shareholders of the Enterprise receiving one new share for every present share, while shareholders in the Giant and London and Rhodesian Companies will receive two new shares for each one share now held. The balance of shares to be held in reserve. It is proposed to issue working capital shares to shareholders at 5/-, carrying options, and guaranteed by the Anglo-American Rhodesian Corporation, Ltd.

Messrs. Baldwins, Ltd., of Swansea, have taken possession of the plant of British Forgings, Ltd., at Toronto, and will produce tinplate, employing over 2,000 hands.

MARKET REPORTS.

CATTLE.—DONCASTER, Saturday.—A meagre supply of cattle, consisting almost entirely of milch beasts, for which there was only a slow inquiry; top value, £60 to £65; second, £50 to £56; third, £40 to £45, and good heifers, £35 to £45 per head. Large supply of sheep; moderate trade; shearlings, 80/- to 90/-; Lincoln lambs, 55/- to 60/-, and hairbred, 60/- to 64/- each. Pigs—Young stores, 35/- to 50/-; strong stores, £5 to £7 each.

NORWICH, Saturday.—Fat cattle were again in small supply, only 30 being shown; quality poor, no first grade beasts being on offer. Fat sheep were a short entry, and quality not good. Few fat pigs on offer, and nearly all taken locally. Fair show of store cattle, and quality average, but demand was slow, best animals made up to £36, and others £10 10/- to £30. Store sheep, consisting mostly of ewes, were a smaller supply, and trade was firm for the best breeding ewes, which made to £6 10/- per head; while others realised from 70/- to 90/-. Lambs were of poor quality, and trade was slow, prices ranging from 40/- to 60/-. Pigs sold at late rates.

Lever's Palm Nut Cake and Meal, Dairy Cake and Meal, Loboi Pig Meal. Agent—William Bourke, 36 North Circular road, Dublin. 'Phone 3617.—(Advt.)

GRAIN.—NEWCASTLE, Saturday.—English wheat was rather short, and foreign supplies were selling readily. English oats maintained their rise, 15/- to 18/-. Quotations:—English wheat, 76/6; foreign, 85/-; maize, 64/- to 65/-; beans, 160/-; English oats, 65/- to 70/-; foreign, 65/-; barley, 67/- per quarter; G.B. flour, 44/3 per sack.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC), Saturday.—WHEAT and MAIZE nominally unaltered in the absence of official offers. BARLEY steady, quiet; American malting 48lbs. August-September quoted 72/-, and No. 4 Canada Western September-October 75/- per 400lbs. OATS quiet, unaltered.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday.—There were no c.i.f. parcels of wheat or maize put out on sale by the Royal commission to-day, but prices were nominally unchanged. WHEAT on the spot ruled quiet but steady at yesterday's market currencies. MAIZE—Spot parcels scarce and nominal. FLOUR still quiet, but imported was obtainable on the Government terms. BARLEY in forward positions firm, and rejected Canadian feed, September-October shipment, sold to Manchester at 72/3 per qr. OATS for future delivery steadily held. CHINA HORSE BEANS showed no change. Imports of Grain (cwts.)—To-day—Wheat, 19,700; flour, 6,000; maize, 3,900. This week—Wheat, 331,430; flour, 53,600; maize, 25,461; peas, 10,850; beans, 1,780. This year—Wheat, 9,367,481; flour 1,362,689; maize, 1,773,128; peas, 123,799; beans, 233,744.

CARLISLE, Saturday.—A small supply of new oats, and a steady inquiry; consumers, however, were asking all sorts of prices. The market as yet being very unsettled, dealers held back, and sales were so few that no real actual price basis could be given.

PROVISIONS.—DUBLIN POTATO, Saturday.—Very dull and limited trade for potatoes. Any accession in supplies would certainly bring down values sharply in the present situation. Rates, 9/- to 10/- per cwt. for town delivery.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday.—BACON—The market for American hog products here continues unsettled, consequent on the awkward situation brought about by the sudden re-imposition of control. Advices from Chicago record a further sharp advance in both live hogs and products, and there are again fair arrivals at this port, but an additional recovery has taken place in the rate of exchange. Only a moderate demand is again experienced, which is partly supplied from old stocks in wholesalers' hands and some few allotments made by the Controller, chiefly quay parcels, which are not in good condition, and find little favour with buyers, sales concluded being at about late rates for bacon, hams, and shoulders. LARD on the spot in fair request, the small allocations being readily placed at about fixed rates. Irish bacon still scarce and wanted. CHEESE moves steadily at 1/3½ per lb., delivered to retailers, for Government owned, mainly Cheshire, the few lots of free about selling at 158/- to 160/- per cwt. BUTTER remained firm, and finds ready acceptance at the fixed rates. EGGS firm at 35/- to 37/- for Irish hen, 31/- to 33/- Canadian and 28/- to 29/- for American. Imports of Provisions (cwts.)—To-day—Bacon, 2,171; hams, 545; lard, 5,439; cheese, 384. This week—Bacon, 26,960; hams, 6,703; lard, 46,517; cheese, 11,483; beef, 200; butter, 55,635. This year—Bacon, 681,745; hams, 132,192; lard, 733,844; pork, 4,348; cheese, 213,926; beef, 14,529; butter, 677,428.

DUBLIN VEGETABLE, Saturday.—A fair week-end general supply of field and garden stuff on market. York cabbage, 22/- to 85/- per load; cauliflowers, 3/- to 4/- and 5/3 per dozen; rhubarb, 2/- to 4/- per dozen bunches; carrots, 1/8 to 2/- ditto; swede turnips, 4/- to 5/8 per cwt.; white turnips, 4d. to 7d. per bundle; parsley, 10d. per dozen; red cabbage, 9d. per dozen; beet, 4d. to 8d.; onions, 9d. to 1/3 per bundle; scallions, 6d. to 1/-; apples plentiful at 1/9 to 6/6 per tray.

DUBLIN FISH, Saturday.—Fair country arrivals of fish; condition soft, and prices irregular; 7 packages salmon, 11 sheets lobsters came in. Salmon, grilse, and live trout made 2/- to 2/8½ per lb.; first pick of lobsters, 15/- to 25/- per 13; seconds, 10/- to 12/6; brill, 1/- to 2/6 each; best soles, 20/- to 30/- per 9 pairs; medium, 10/- to 15/-; slips, 6/- to 8/- per 9 pairs; large plaice, 12/- to 30/-; ray, 8/- to 12/-.

BILLINGSGATE FISH, Saturday.—Supply liberal; good demand. Salmon, also grilse, 2/8½; salmon trout, 2/- to 2/6; red mullet, 1/-; soles and slips, 2/- to 2/3; turbot, 1/-; brill, 10d. to 11d.; live eels, 2/-; dead, 1/-; cured haddocks, 7d. to 10d.; halibut, 1/4 per lb.; plaice, 13/-; lemon soles, 14/- to 16/-; whitches, 10/-; morrans, 5/-; cod, 6/- to 9/-; mackerel, 3/-; whiting, 5/-; gurnet, 3/-; hake, 9/-; haddocks, 4/-; skate, 6/- to 7/-; coley, 7/- to 9/-; bream, 3/- per stone.

GRIMSBY FISH, Saturday.—Supplies were fairly good, landings being made from 26 North Sea and one Iceland boats; demand good; prices generally firm. English cod made 8/-; plaice, 12/- to 15/-; hake, 10/-; dabs, 8/-; sprags, 6/6; lemon soles, 18/-; halibut, 19/-; small haddocks, 3/- per stone; soles, 2/- to 6/-; gibbers, 7/- to 8/-; whitings, 1/3 per lb.; brills, 1/-; turbots, 1/3 per lb.

LONDON BORO' AND SPITALFIELDS POTATO, Saturday.—Supplies on a fairly large scale, and trade quiet. Kents, also Essex, quoted at 7/- to 7/6; Lincoln Epicures, 7/-, and Blackland Epicures, 7/6.

BUTTER.—CORK, Saturday.—Firsts, 272/-

[illegible]

OILCAKES AND FEEDING STUFFS.—LONDON, Saturday.—LINSEED CAKES—A more settled feeling is noticeable in this market, and buyers are coming forward with more freedom, but, in view of the difficulties that have to be surmounted before supplies can be secured, many consumers prefer to purchase on the spot. Imported descriptions are very little in evidence owing to the high level of values, the c.i.f. quotation being well above the controlled rate for English makes. COTTON CAKES continues extremely scarce, home and imported cakes being practically unobtainable, and this is likely to continue until the new crop supplies are available. COCOANUT CAKES are in good demand for imported sorts, whilst English are firm at the controlled price of £21 in bulk and £21 in bags. RICE BRAN sells readily at £20 per ton, landed, whilst RICE BRAN CAKES are in steady request at 10/- per ton less. FEEDING TREACLE continues strong, with a good demand at £11 to £12 according to position.

CLYDE CRUSHED SUGAR, Saturday.—The market closed firm.

HAY AND STRAW.—LONDON, Saturday.—Moderate supplies experienced a steady trade for best sorts at full requisition prices.

Visitors to the Horse Show are respectfully invited to call at Walpoles' to inspect their beautiful handwoven pure Irish Linen Table Damasks and other Household Linens.

Walpoles' are one of the few firms who produce the true old-fashioned handloom damasks, and in the cottages in Waringstown, in Co. Down, the craftsmen weave by hand the incomparable flax yarns into those exquisite Walpole damasks that, for excellence of design, fineness of texture and durability, have few equals and no superiors.

So that ladies can secure to-day the traditional qualities of Irish Linen by purchasing Walpoles' Linen—a linen esteemed by generations of linen lovers for over 150 years.
